ROOSEVELT ELECTED IN LANDSLIDE; DEMOCRATS GET CONGRESS CONTROL

Swept Into Office to Head New Administration

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT. JOHN NANCE GARNER.

GOV. ROOSEVELT SILENT PENDING FINAL RETURNS

THANKS ASSOCIATES FOR CAMPAIGN WORK

Reiterates His Intention of Striving for Return of Prosperity.

Biltmore Hotel, New York (Wednesday), Nov. 9 (A.P.).—Franklin D. Roosevelt left the headquarters of the Democratic national committee shortly before 2 o'clock today for his home in Sixty-fifth street, saying he had received personally neither a telegram from President Hoover nor returns from the Pacific Coast. Pending those, he withheld any statement.

The President-elect was in high spirits as he entered his home to retire after receiving the returns at party headquarters.

A photographer buttonholed him on the doorstep for "just one more picture, Mr. President."

"Sure," said Gov. Roosevelt. "I've had the best night of my life."

Earlier, at headquarters, a statement had been prepared, and despite the lateness of the hour, a crowd still surged about his door waiting for it.

Praises Associates.

Hasty conferences of his advisers and associates were held; James A. Farley, the chairman of the national committee, and half a dozen others of those who have been associated with him and Mr. Roosevelt during the campaign were inside the room. Mrs. Roosevelt, too, had joined the group.

Outside the crowd scrambled for admittance only to be shoved back into half orderly lines now and then by the burly policemen who had been stationed at the doors.

A little earlier, shortly after his victory became apparent, the President-elect made two brief talks, thanking his friends and party workers for the efforts which he said had won a liberal victory.

"My friends," he said, "I have come out here to bid you Godspeed and to thank you, particularly those who have worked so hard in headquarters. There are two people more responsible than any others for this great liberal victory, my old friend and associate Col. Louis McHenry Howe and that splendid American, Jim Farley.

Plans for Prosperity.

"The returns from the West Coast have not all come in and I am therefore making no formal statement. If the victory is as the returns indicate for the next four years, I hope all of us will do what we can to restore this country to prosperity."

With difficulty, the police cleared the crowd away again and he reentered his quarters.

LANKFORD CRUSHED, STATE BACK IN FOLD

Gov. Roosevelt Big Winner; Solid Democratic Group Elected to House.

Virginia emphatically renewed its traditional alliance with the Democratic party last night, piling up an early and heavy majority for the Roosevelt-Garner ticket and balloting nine Democrats into the House of Representatives—a solid State Democratic delegation.

The Democratic standard bearer and his running mate amassed 158,144 votes in 1,265 precincts against Hoover's 67,280, late returns revealed. Reports were lacking from 421 precincts.

The sweeping reversal of the Old Dominion's showing in the 1928 election was reflected strongly in nearby Virginia, where the City of Alexandria and Arlington and Fairfax Counties—the northern edges of the solid South—went heavily Democratic.

Early in the night the return of Virginia to the Democratic fold became apparent and long before midnight Representative Menalcus Lankford, of Norfolk, the State's only Republican congressional survivor from 1928 in the present Congress, conceded his defeat.

Colgate W. Darden, of Norfolk, and A. Willis Robertson, of Lexington, are the victorious Democratic candidates for representative who will augment the present seven Democrats from the Old Dominion in the House of Repre-

THE ROOSEVELTS

PRESIDENT-ELECT—NEW FIRST LADY

A flood of ballots has swept Franklin D. and Anna Eleanor Roosevelt to the threshold of the White House—and into the glare of the world-wide spotlight.

This man chosen to lead the United States. His wife. What are they like? What is their background? How do they live? These are the questions on millions of lips, asked while election returns are still coming in.

And while the news is still "hot," The Washington Post will give the stories of the Roosevelts, the answers to a thousand questions.

Starting tomorrow The Washington Post will present two series of copyrighted articles written by Associated Press staff writers, reporters who know Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt, who have worked with them—trained observers, skilled writers. Six articles on President-elect Roosevelt by Gardner Bridge. Three stories on Mrs. Roosevelt by Lorena Hickok, who was assigned to her by the Associated Press during the campaign just ended.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET WINS IN MARYLAND

G. O. P. Beaten by Roosevelt First Time Since 1916; Tydings Elected.

In a smashing victory through Maryland, the Democratic party, for the first time since 1916, was assured of the State's vote in the electoral college. The Roosevelt-Garner ticket piled up a lead of 80,110 in the City of Baltimore, and was holding substantial leads in all sections of the State.

With more than three-quarters of the polling places heard from, Senator Millard Tydings held an insurmountable lead over his Republican adversary, Wallace Williams. There were indications early today that the Democratic majority would approach 150,000.

A solid Democratic delegation in the House was also in prospect with each of the Democratic candidates in the six congressional districts holding substantial leads over their Republican opponents.

In 901 out of 1,371 polling places, Roosevelt had 207,660 votes compared with 108,859 for Hoover. In the same number of districts Senator Tydings

Hoover's Predicted Lead Slashed in Philadelphia

Philadelphia (Wednesday), Nov. 9 (A.P.).—Complete returns from Philadelphia County, which Republican leaders predicted would give President Hoover from 150,000 to 200,000 plurality, gave the President but a scant margin of 72,000.

The Philadelphia vote, completely tabulated at 2 o'clock this morning: Hoover, 327,806; Roosevelt, 255,923.

Japan Seems Pleased When Roosevelt Wins

Tokyo, Japan (Wednesday), Nov. 9 (A.P.).—Noontime crowds eagerly seized upon newspaper extras, announcing the Roosevelt victory in the United States.

Officials held comment would be discourteous, but the general reaction appeared to be satisfaction with the prospective change in the American administration.

British See Dry Law Doomed by U. S. Vote

London (Wednesday), Nov. 9 (A.P.).—The Daily Mail's reaction to the American election came out this morning in an editorial entitled "prohibition doomed."

Results of the election were received too late for comment in other papers.

ELECTORAL VOTES INCREASED TO 461 TO SET NEW MARK

PRESIDENT, AT CALIFORNIA HOME, CONCEDES HIS DEFEAT

Governor Wins in Most Sweeping Victory in History; Senate Captured and Heavy Gains Registered in House.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Rolling up unprecedented majorities in both popular and electoral votes, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York yesterday was elected President of the United States by the most sweeping landslide in history.

Incomplete but decisive returns from all 48 States indicated a final popular majority approximating 8,000,000 for the Roosevelt-Garner ticket, as compared with a Hoover majority of 6,300,000 in 1928, the previous high record.

In the Electoral College, the Democratic national ticket had captured 461 votes early this morning, with but 59 votes in six States standing safely in the Hoover column, which compares with 87 won by Alfred E. Smith four years ago.

With the presidential sweep, the Democrats registered heavy gains in the House, captured the Senate and elected governors in half a dozen normally heavily Republican States of the East and Middle West.

Six States in Hoover Column.

With approximately 14,000,000 votes out of an expected total of approximately 40,000,000 tabulated at 2 o'clock this morning six States appeared definitely in the Republican column—Maine, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Vermont, Delaware and Pennsylvania. These States carry a total of 59 electoral votes.

In Pennsylvania, however, the Republican advantage was but 85,000 votes when one-fourth of the State's 8,199 precincts had been tabulated. In all other States Roosevelt was leading, but Michigan was so close as to remain in the doubtful column.

New York 47 Votes Conceded.

Scattered and fragmentary returns from 26 States as early as 7 p. m. showed Roosevelt and Garner leading in 21. Shortly after 8 o'clock, William H. Hill, the Republican manager in New York State, conceded that Commonwealth's pivotal 47 electoral votes to the Democratic ticket. There was never a break in this early trend, and shortly after 10 o'clock Eastern standard time, the following message from Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde was made public at President Hoover's home in Palo Alto, Calif.:

"Regardless of election results, your shadow will lengthen in history."

Less than five hours after he had cast his own ballot on Stanford University campus, President Hoover sent the following message to Gov. Roosevelt at New York:

"I congratulate you on the opportunity that has come to you to be of service to your country."

Urges Restoration of Prosperity.

Shortly before this message had arrived the President-elect had told a group of friends at the Hotel Biltmore headquarters:

"I hope all of us will do what we can to restore this country to prosperity."

Capturing New York State by a margin of 800,000, or a little more than the Democratic majority delivered by Tammany in the metropolitan area, Roosevelt forged ahead early in Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey and Rhode Island.

With the Solid South back in the Democratic ranks by the traditional overwhelming majorities of 4 to 1, or better, the Roosevelt-Garner ticket also rode the high tide of economic dislocation into the Republican strongholds of Indiana, Illinois, Ohio and Kansas, and held the Hoover-Curtis ticket to a neck-and-neck race in Michigan and Iowa. California headed into the Democratic column by better than 2 to 1 on the face of early returns.

Col. Donovan Swamped by Lehman.

George H. Moses, president pro tem of the Senate and arch foe of the "Sons of the Wild Jackass," was defeated by a narrow margin on the face of early returns in the New Hampshire senatorial race, although President Hoover was carrying the State by 20,000 when returns from half the precincts had been tabulated.

William Gibbs McAdoo was out to a substantial lead over Tallant Tubbs, Republican, in the California senatorial race at an early hour today. In Connecticut Senator Hiram Bingham was hanging on by a precarious margin over Augustine Lonergan, his Democratic opponent.

Bertrand H. Snell, Republican leader in the House, was reelected by a comfortable majority in New York State, but Representative Fiorello H. LaGuardia, firebrand of the Republican insurgents, went down to defeat by a slender margin in his Manhattan district. James J. Lanzetta, a Tammany Democrat, captured this seat in one of the most spectacular struggles of the congressional campaign.

Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, conceded his defeat by Dr. Elbert D. Thomas.

The wet forces made notable gains in both the House and Senate. Although no extensive tabulation was possible last night, the late returns disclosed in the new House list many men classified in the campaign as militant advocates of repeal or revision. Five of the first seven senators definitely elected were on record for repeal.

Along with his sweeping victory on the national ticket, Speaker John N. Garner was elected again to his seat in the House of Representatives for the Fifteenth Texas District. Announcing his determination to go to bed at 9 p. m. regardless of the state of the presidential election, Speaker Garner was able to retire with the knowledge that he had been swept to new political honors on the largest tide of votes in American history. He made no announcement, however, concerning his retirement from the House in the Seventy-third Congress.

Owing to a peculiar State law, tabulation of election returns in Kentucky may not begin until 10 a. m. today. On the basis of results in all the other border States, however, Kentucky's 11 electoral votes have been conceded by the Republican State managers.

G.O.P. LOSES MANY LEADERS IN SENATE

Watson and Moses Go Down to Defeat; Democratic Control Certain.

By J. BERNARD McDONNELL.

The Democratic sweep which carried Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York and Speaker John N. Garner, of Texas, to victory was reflected in senatorial contests throughout the country.

The Democratic landslide swept out of office some of the veterans, among the Republicans in the Senate, including Senator James E. Watson (Republican), of Indiana, Republican leader, and Senator George H. Moses (Republican), of New Hampshire, president pro tempore of the Senate.

Out in Washington the saturnine-appearing, quiet-voiced Senator Wesley Jones, author of the notorious "five-and-ten" prohibition law, was running far behind Homer T. Bone, his Democratic opponent. Returns from 209 out of 2,682 precincts gave Senator Jones 15,014; Bone, 23,708, and Frederick R. Burch (Liberal), 178.

Watson Concedes Defeat.

With returns piling up a growing margin of votes for his Democratic opponent, Frederick Van Nuys, Senator Watson himself conceded defeat.

That the Democrats would control and organize the Senate in the next Congress seemed assured, but whether they would sweep away the nominal Republican majority in the closing session of the Seventy-second Congress, which is to convene again in December, depended on the outcome of two elections, that in New Jersey, where Senator Warren W. Barbour (Republican), was fighting to hold his seat against the assault of Representative Percy H. Stewart (Democrat), and in Colorado, where Walter Walker (Democrat) and Karl C. Schuyler (Republican) are fighting for the vacant senatorial seat of that State.

Assuming the Democrats won both these fights they would have control of the Senate in the forthcoming session if Senator Henrik Shipstead (Farmer-Labor) voted with them.

Whether he would vote with them or with the Republicans, Senator Shipstead refused last night to discuss.

Leading in Other Races.

Other returns showed the Democratic candidates leading in the contests for six other seats now held by Republicans.

The reelection of the Democratic senators from Southern States was conceded. They were Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia; Senator Hugo L. Black, of Alabama, and Senator Ellison D. Smith, of South Carolina. Election of a New Democratic senator from North Carolina, to fill the place of Senator Cameron Morrison (D.), who was defeated in the primary, also was conceded.

In Arkansas, Mrs. Hattie D. Caraway (D.), was making a runaway race of it against her Republican opponent, John W. White, and was thereby writing a chapter in the political history of the country. She is the first woman to be elected to the United States Senate, although others have served there under appointment.

In Connecticut the tall, silvery-haired Senator Hiram W. Bingham (Republican), one of the most outspoken wets in Congress, was defeated by Representative Augustine Lonergan (Democrat).

Missouri Democrat Wins

In Missouri Bennett Champ Clark (Democrat), son of the former Speaker of the House, won election to the Senate over Henry W. Kiel (Republican), and Julius Pollack (Communist). Pollack ran so far behind everybody else that his vote was relatively immaterial.

Senator James J. Davis weathered the vicissitudes of his recent political life and defeated Lawrence H. Rupp (Democrat), by a wide margin. Returns from 2,713 out of 8,199 precincts gave: Davis, 426,441; Rupp, 342,380.

Illinois voters followed the national fashion and voted out Senator Otis F. Glenn (Republican), and voted into the Senate William H. Dieterich, a Democrat, in his place. Returns from 3,162 precincts out of 7,211 gave: Glenn, 552,185; Dieterich, 688,213.

After trailing in the early returns, Representative Stewart took a decided and increasing lead in the race for senator in New Jersey. Returns from 334 districts out of 3,415 gave Stewart 60,055 and Barbour 43,366.

Jersey Gives 4-to-1 Lead to Roosevelt

Mayor Hague Sees Victory; Senator Warren Trailing Stewart for Senate.

Newark, N. J., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—With Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt holding a commanding 4-to-1 lead in early returns over President Hoover, New Jersey tonight seemed destined to join the parade of States into the Democratic column.

With 124 districts out of 3,414 reporting, Roosevelt had rolled up 86,803 votes to Hoover's 9,436. One hundred of the districts reported were in Democratic Hudson County, where Mayor Frank Hague, State Democratic leader, predicts Roosevelt will have a 125,000 plurality on the final count.

In the senatorial contest between United States Senator W. Warren Barbour, Republican, and Representative Percy H. Stewart, Democrat, for the unexpired term of the late Dwight Morrow, scattered returns indicated that Stewart was headed for victory. Returns from 23 districts, none of them in Democratic strongholds, give Barbour 1,397 and Stewart 1,092.

Daniels Says Roosevelt To Make Drastic Change

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 8 (U.P.).—Election of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt as President means "the death blow to privilege in Government" and "as drastic a change in the spirit and policy of our Government as when Jefferson drove out the Federalists," Josephus Daniels, World War Secretary of the Navy, said in a statement tonight. Roosevelt was Assistant Secretary of the Navy under Daniels.

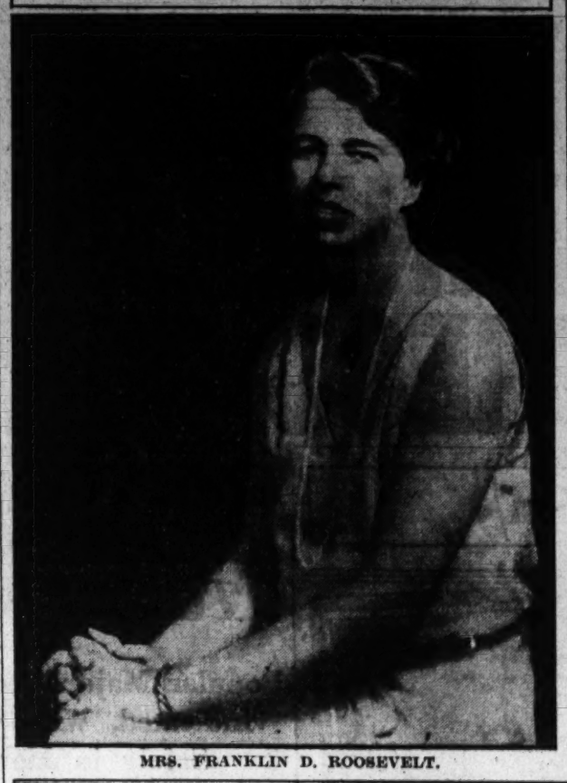
THE NEW "FIRST LADY"



MRS. FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

Mrs. Roosevelt Is Silent As Nation Picks President

Tarrytown, N. Y., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—The wife of the Democratic candidate for the Presidency was just Mrs. Roosevelt today as she drove up through the hills along the Hudson to Hyde Park—mile after mile, thinking her own thoughts.

She had with her an anthology of verse borrowed from the library of the school where she taught all morning and where she will be teaching again tomorrow, and, as she drove along she discussed some of her favorite poets, Matthew Arnold, W. E. Henley, Shelley and Keats.

She talked, too, of the Bronte sisters and George Eliot and the music of Wagner that both she and her husband love. For miles at a time, however, she was silent, staring soberly ahead at the road that unwound itself through the russet-colored hills.

"'Thy woods and templed hills'—that's a beautiful line of poetry, isn't it?" she said, softly, "but better still I love the psalm 'I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills.'" She made no mention of what was happening today.

She arrived at her school at 8:50, ten minutes early. At 11 she was in her roadster en route to Hyde Park. At 3 p. m. she had voted and, in another car, was on her way back to New York with the governor.

The program for the rest of the day called for an early dinner at the town house, after which the Roosevelts were due at the Biltmore Hotel about 6 o'clock.

New York, Nov. 9 (Wednesday) (A.P.).—Returns from 4,458 election districts out of 5,043 outside of New York City give Roosevelt, 1,000,870; Hoover, 1,220,154. Watchers Find Vote Machines Were Fixed Philadelphia, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—S. Davis Wilson, special counsel for the House subcommittee investigating election irregularities in Pennsylvania, said tonight agents watched the polls in many sections.

Asserting rubber bands, buttons and bits of metal had been used in tampering with vote machines, he said agents were stationed at polls in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Erie, the anthracite coal regions and other districts. More than 100 complaints were received, Wilson said. Wilson, a Philadelphian, is chairman of the State Roosevelt Independent League.

Election Wager Makes Horse of Losing Bettor

Richmond, Va., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Either Charles A. Somma, general manager of the Virginia State Fair Association, or Charles M. Mosby, former chairman of the Capital City Republican committee, will "go for a ride" after the election. Before the major party conventions they started an argument. Somma said a Democrat would be elected. Mosby said "nay," and the wager was on.

The loser will pull a buggy down Broad street from union station to the city hall and the winner will ride in it.

CONTROL OF HOUSE HELD BY DEMOCRATS

Antiprohibition Majority Is Indicated; LaGuardia Is Defeated.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

Continued Democratic dominance in the House of Representatives, with an increased lead and enough additional wet votes to give an antiprohibition majority, appeared certain early this morning.

While returns were far from complete, Democrats were known to have captured 140 of the 435 House seats, and Republicans, 34. Final results still were undetermined in 218 contests.

There were upsets aplenty in the early returns, and some disappointments to Government workers and local residents, notably in the defeat of Representative Fiorello H. LaGuardia (Republican), New York, by James J. Lanzetta, Democratic lawyer.

Democratic Victories.

Representative LaGuardia, for nine years, had fought the battles of Federal employes in Congress. This group saw some consolation, however, in the reelection of Representative James M. Mead, William I. Sirovich and Anthony J. Griffin (Democrats), New York, who took leading roles in the last fight on pay cuts.

Among notable turnovers indicated by this morning's fragmentary returns were three Republican seats hastily annexed by Democrats in New York, Connecticut and Pennsylvania.

From Connecticut came word that Francis T. Maloney, Democratic Mayor of Meriden, had defeated Tad Jones, former Yale football coach, for the seat now held by Representative John Q. Tilson, former Republican floor leader. In Pennsylvania Francis E. Walker (Democrat) defeated Representative William R. Coyle, Republican incumbent. Alfred F. Beither (Democrat) defeated Representative Edmund F. Cooke, Republican incumbent in New York's Forty-first District.

Snell Is Reelected.

Representative Bertrand H. Snell, Republican House floor leader, did not share the fate of Senator Watson, his party's Senate floor leader. He was reelected from the Thirty-first New York District over Kenneth Gardner, his Democratic opponent.

Speaker John Nance Garner, vice presidential candidate on his party's national ticket, yet running for Congress again from the Fifteenth Texas District, was reelected, as were all other Texas Democratic aspirants.

Mrs. Mary T. Norton (Democrat), New Jersey, received a new lease on the House District committee chairmanship, outdistancing her Republican opponent, Mortimer Neuman. Reelection followed a bitter campaign in which Mrs. Norton's vote against the bonus made her target for veterans' opposition. From a nearby district, Representative Charles A. Eaton, Republican, joined in the futile fight to defeat her.

She was one of the first of the House "feminine bloc" of seven women assured of reelection. Indications were that the bloc will be slightly depleted next session. From California came word that Mrs. Florence P. Kahn, veteran Republican member of the women's clique, had been reelected, but Representative Ruth Baker Pratt (Republican), New York, conceded election of her Democratic opponent, Theodore A. Peyser. Mrs. Effigene Wingo (Democrat), Arkansas, and Mrs. Willa B. Ealick (Democrat), Tennessee, were not candidates for reelection.

Among those active in District affairs reelected yesterday was Representative Ernest W. Gibson (Republican), Vermont. Gibson, author of the Gibson law, enacted last session, revising local license fees upward, defeated his Democratic opponent, Joseph A. McNamara.

Also reelected was Representative Vincent L. Palmisano (Democrat), Maryland, who presides over the House District committee in Mrs. Norton's absence.

Maryland Picks Kennedy.

Maryland's Fourth District elected Ambrose J. Kennedy (Democrat), for short and long terms to succeed the late Representative J. Charles Linthicum, chairman of the House foreign affairs committee. The foreign affairs post, now open, may be taken by Representative Sam D. McReynolds (Democrat), Tennessee, reelected in yesterday's balloting.

Republican candidates were ahead in early returns from up-State New York, normally heavily Republican. Wet Representative Frank Crowther narrowly defeated Lambertson, Democrat, by 1,700 votes.

A contest of social interest was waged in the First New York District, where Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, socially prominent Democrat, trailed Representative Robert L. Bacon, likewise socially prominent. The unofficial count for Bacon was 152,969, to 121,762 for Whitney. Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, national Democratic committeewoman from the district, actively participated in young Whitney's campaign.

Former Senator James W. Wadsworth, Republican, made a successful bid for the House in the Thirty-ninth New York District.

Gain in Missouri.

Democrats chalked up a net gain of five seats in Missouri, sweeping four Republicans out of office. By redistricting, the present House allotment of twelve Democrats and four Republicans was cut to thirteen seats. Democrats won in all thirteen contests.

From Tennessee came word that Representative Joseph W. Byrns (Democrat), chairman of the House appropriations committee and aspirant for the House speakership, had defeated Dr. M. K. Freeman, Republican. Representative John McDuffie, House Democratic whip, and another candidate to succeed Garner as Speaker, was reelected in Alabama.

Scattered returns the country over held out little hope that militant drys could send a majority to the House strong enough to defeat Volstead act modification. A total of 641 candidates favored either repeal or resubmission. It was generally conceded that if wets were successful in a simple majority of their contests, the House, which voted 228 to 169 against beer at the last session, could pass a modification measure at the next.

Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., Is Elected to House Seat

SENATOR WATSON CONCEDES DEFEAT

Indiana Leans to Democrats After Many Years in Republican Ranks.

Indianapolis, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Indiana, a State found in the Republican column for many years, leaned toward democracy in today's election. Not since 1912 has the State's electoral votes been given to a Democratic presidential candidate.

Steadily mounting pluralities were given to the Democratic candidates for President, U. S. senator and governor as returns became available from all parts of the State.

The Democratic victory that seemed inevitable brought a concession of defeat from the State's veteran Republican senator, James E. Watson. At his home city of Rushville he received the early returns and telegraphed a message of congratulation to his Democratic opponent, Frederick Van Nuys, Indianapolis attorney.

In 935 of the State's 3,691 precincts Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt had 303,304 votes to 247,115 cast for President Hoover. Nearly a third of these returns included precincts located in Indianapolis.

Wife With Hoover As Vote Is Watched

President Hoover's Home, Palo Alto, Calif., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Mrs. Herbert Hoover, who has traveled with her President husband through all his 11,000 miles of campaigning, tonight remained close by him as the returns from the polls came into their home.

Playing the part of hostess, she received guests and neighbors as they came in to pay their respects, while during much of the evening the Chief Executive remained in his study.

Now a seasoned campaigner in her own right, the First Lady today gave every appearance of enjoying the series of thundering receptions given the presidential party as it moved across California, into San Francisco to the echo of a 21-gun salute, along its Market street to the tune of cheers and shouts, and on to still another reception at Stanford University here, her alma mater.

Vote for Rivals Is Even In Arlington Hall Poll

A presidential poll, conducted by the school magazine yesterday, showed the student body of Arlington Hall School, near Clarendon, evenly divided in its preferences, President Hoover and Gov. Roosevelt each receivnig 46 votes.

Among the faculty, however, Gov. Roosevelt was a three to one favorite, the vote being Roosevelt 21, Hoover 7. The school magazine is edited by Miss Dorothy Ahlers, of Pittsburgh.

Ballot Bet Loser Must Wear Overalls 4 Years

Asheville, N. C., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—V. V. Bryson and Bill Hill made a bet on the outcome of today's election and the one losing will wear overalls for four years.

"If Hoover wins," said Bryson, "I don the denims twelve hours every day and do my stuff."

DEMOCRATIC TREND SHOWN IN MICHIGAN

State Leaders Claim First Electoral Victory in 80 Years.

Detroit (Wednesday), Nov. 9 (A.P.).—A Democratic trend, which appeared in the earliest returns, grew stronger early today when nearly a fifth of the voting precincts in Michigan had reported.

Returns from 659 of the State's 3,417 precincts—including only 31 from Wayne County (Detroit) where Democrats admittedly were strongest—gave Gov. Roosevelt a lead of 5,000 over President Hoover, and Democratic leaders issued a victory statement, which claimed the State's electoral vote for their party for the first time in 80 years. The vote in 659 precincts was: Roosevelt, 151,738, and Hoover, 146,772.

In the governor's race the Democratic lead was three times as large, William A. Comstock having a lead of 15,000 over the Republican incumbent, Wilber M. Brucker, in 693 precincts. The vote was: Comstock, 135,878; Brucker, 120,153.

The Republicans had hoped to pile up a lead of 200,000 or more outside of Wayne County and expected that to insure the customary victory for their party. In congressional races, too, every district showed heavy Democratic strength.

Harvey Casts Vote In Snow and Cold

Says He Will Push Drive Until Fiscal System Is Changed.

Monte Ne, Ark., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Smoking his corncob pipe, W. H. (Coin) Harvey, 80-year-old presidential candidate of the Liberty party, braved snow and cold to cast his vote here at 8 o'clock this morning.

The veteran campaigner, who stumped the hustings as a free silver advocate with the late William Jennings Bryan a quarter century ago, was accompanied to the polls by his wife and his secretary, Kenneth Doescher. After voting, Mr. Harvey returned to work at his office and in the afternoon had his usual nap. He said he did not expect to win, but withal would continue his crusade until the present financial system, which he says threatens the destruction of the Government, is changed.

The "sage of Monte Ne," as he is known in this Ozark hill section, went to bed early in the peaceful shadow of the pyramid he has been building to preserve for posterity the relics of this civilization, which he says will be destroyed.

Montgomery County gave Gov. Roosevelt 3,547 votes more than were cast for President Hoover, who polled 8,257. In the senatorial race, Senator Tydings received 11,607 against 6,701 for his opponent.

Representative David J. Lewis, the incumbent, led his Republican opponent, Harold C. Smith, 11,078 votes to 7,896.

The Montgomery County figures are complete.

Complete returns from precincts in Prince Georges County gave Gov. Roosevelt, 11,074, against 6,386 for President Hoover. Senator Tydings was given a majority of 10,118 over Williams, who polled 4,522. Representative Gambrill received 10,353 against 4,627 for his opponent A. Kinsley Love.

Down on the Eastern Shore, Representative T. Alan Goldsborough, running as a dry, held a commanding lead over the wet Republican, Harry T. Phoebus. In tabulations from 100 of 175 precincts, Representative Goldsborough had a lead of 9,233.

In the Second Congressional District William P. Cole, jr. (Democrat), was leading his Republican opponent, David L. Elliott, by 7,363 on the basis of returns from 63 precincts and he was gaining steadily.

The Democratic incumbent, Vincent L. Palmisano, was reelected by a majority of 23,200 over R. Palmer Ingram, and in the Fourth District, Ambrose J. Kennedy, Democrat, defeated Col. Claude Sweezy, 46,352 to 29,562. Kennedy will serve the unexpired term of the late Representative Linthicum and will begin his own term next March.

David J. Lewis, the Democratic candidate in the Sixth Congressional District, which includes Montgomery County, had a lead of 3,487 votes over Harold C. Smith, with all Montgomery County tabulated and but 35 precincts counted in Frederick, Washington, Garrett and Alleghany counties.

Throughout the Fifth Congressional District Representative Stephen W. Gambrill continued to hold a substantial lead over his adversary, A. Kinsley Love, Republican. Early today, with most of the votes tabulated, he had a majority of 1,324.

Republican 76 Years, He Supports Roosevelt

Smith, a godson of President Andrew Jackson and a personal friend of Lincoln, had voted straight Republican tickets, he said, at the 19 other presidential elections in which he participated. For governor, he said, he voted for Judge Henry Horner.

Roosevelt Congratulated On Win as Voting Ends

Believing his election assured when Eastern polls closed, Dr. Charles Frederick Pabst, chief dermatologist of the Greenpoint Hospital, Brooklyn, N. Y., who was in Washington last night, sent the following telegram to Gov. Roosevelt at 6 p. m. yesterday:

"Congratulations on your election as President of the United States.

"Best wishes for your health, happiness and prosperity during your two terms."

3 Precinct Guards Slugged in West

Kansas City, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Police received reports here today of the slugging of two Republican precinct captains and a deputy election commissioner during the voting.

Ray Hollenbeck, one of the precinct captains, said that one of three men who entered a polling place struck him on the head with a revolver and he then was placed in a motor car and taken to North Kansas City, where he was released. Hollenbeck said the men warned him his life was in danger if he returned to the polling place. The precinct captain had been challenging voters.

E. S. Gaines, another precinct captain, said two men stepped out of a line at a precinct where he was challenging voters, demanded to know why he was slowing the voting, and floored him with a blackjack. Walter Cox, deputy election commissioner, went to Gaines' rescue and also was knocked down. The assailants fled.

Dribble From Spillway Encourages Democrats

Baltimore, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Democrats were heartened today as the water from the Loch Raven dam here began to dribble down the spillway for the first time since July 2.

The reason for their joyousness was that those who believe in omens said last night that if the water flowed over the crest today it would mean not only a Democratic landslide for Roosevelt, but that all of their State candidates would be elected.

The telegram was signed by Mr. Costello, John B. Colpoys, chairman of the District Democratic Central Committee; Conway W. Cooke, director, District campaign, and Mrs. Conway W. Cooke, executive secretary of the District Central Committee.

Mills Casts Vote; Refuses to Talk

Treasury Secretary Says He Is Glad Speaking Tour Is Over.

New York, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Ogden L. Mills, Secretary of the Treasury, made a special trip from Washington to vote today and cast his ballot at 4 p. m. at Sixty-eighth street and Lexington avenue.

Accompanied by his daughter, Dorothy, who also voted, the Secretary took his place in line behind 37 other voters and declined with thanks offers of preference in the voting line. Asked if he had any comment to make, the Treasury head said, "I'm through talking. I'm thankful to say. I haven't any comment."

He said he would receive election returns at the Republican Eastern campaign headquarters at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel and at the office of the New York Herald-Tribune.

Text of Hoover's Address On Arrival in Sacramento

Fellow Californians: It is difficult for me to find words to express the feeling I have on coming to my own State. One of the disappointments of the last four years has been the inability to leave Washington for more than a night's journey because of the most difficult and terrible crisis which the United States has been going through. We have looked forward to coming home each summer, but in this great crisis we have had to give up that pleasure.

The election is on today. Most of you have come to your conclusions. There are many things of vital interest to California. All of our industries practically are supported by the protective tariff. Our opponents say that they will reduce the tariff.

California has seen in the last Democratic administration nine-tenths of the products of California placed on the free list, and if it had not been for the intervention of the World War California's industries would have been destroyed. We are now faced with the same issue, and you have many other interests which are important besides agriculture, and the jobs of the workmen in them depend upon the tariff.

I was presented just now with a demand from some Democratic labor commission demanding to know why I refused to employ white labor on my ranch at Palo Alto. There is no question to which I will not reply, even though it is itended as an insult. First, I have no ranch at Palo Alto, only owning a half acre of ground there.

Second—Up to three years ago I had an interest in a ranch in the San Joaquin Valley and the photographs which are being circulated with that sign were taken about a year and a half ago as a political trick and have been denounced as untrue by a dozen respectable men.

And that leads me to make a remark on the conduct of this campaign in California. There has been unceasing untruth and misrepresentation in some of the press of California, and particularly by the press of William Randolph Hearst. One would have thought that the President of the United States coming from California was a monster. If Mr. Hearst represented the ideals and the character of California he would have been President long ago.

The people of California realize the tremendous crisis through which the world has been passing. They know the dangers that have been warded off from the American people. And they know that much as has been the distress we are the only Nation in the world that can point with pride to the fact that there is no starvation and cold. We can point to the fact that the measures of our Government have made more progress than that of any other country in the world in emergency from the world-wide calamity.

During the last three or four days I have been referring to the reports of our Government departments who have stated that during the last four months a million men have been returned to their normal jobs.

Declares 1,500,000 Have Returned to Work.

Last night I received the correction of that statement. The American Federation of Labor does not agree with my statement. They place increases of employment in the month of September at 560,000 when I estimated it at 360,000. That shows that the increase has been more rapid than I had anticipated and with that ratio of increase of estimates from other sources, 1,500,000 men have been returned to their jobs as the result of the constructive measures which we have initiated for the benefit of every family and fireside in the United States. But the purpose and the result of those measures have been distorted and misrepresented morning, noon and night to the people of California.

But I have gotton upon a vein which I had not thought to discuss, but because of the threat handed me a moment ago that unless I made denial it would be taken as a fact.

I have been interested for these years in averting dangers and restoring progress to the American people. I have not been interested in the flood of misrepresentation by Mr. Hearst.

But my purpose today is to express to you my gratitude for the welcome which you have given to me on this home coming. I have been much absent, but the major absences have been in public service to the American people. Your reception gives me faith and confidence and hope and I thank you for it.

Hyde Praises Defeated President in Telegram

President Hoover's home, Palo Alto, Calif., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—One of the first messages received by President Hoover tonight as he watched the mounting election returns was from Secretary Hyde, saying that "regardless of election results today, your shadow will lengthen in history."

The telegram from the Secretary of Agriculture follows: "Win, lose or draw, you have made a gallant fight, both as President and as candidate. Regardless of election results today, your shadow will lengthen in history."

Mrs. Taft Votes At New Haven

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Mrs. William Howard Taft, the former President's widow, who came to her old home here from Washington, D. C., for the election, voted this morning in the same precinct as two of Connecticut's nominees for re-election.

The Taft home, now occupied by J. J. Pelley, president of the New Haven Railroad, is near the residences of Gov. Wilbur L. Cross, Democrat, and Senator Hiram Bingham, Republican.

The 70-year-old governor, who was on the Yale faculty at the time Taft was a law professor there, cast his ballot shortly before Mrs. Taft voted. She came here Saturday to spend a few days with friends.

McAdoo Claims Victory As California Senator

Los Angeles, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Telegrams of congratulations on a "magnificent victory" were sent to President-Elect Franklin D. Roosevelt and John N. Garner, Vice President-elect, tonight by William Gibbs McAdoo, who told Mr. Garner that "I have carried" California for election to the United States Senate.

The telegram to Mr. Roosevelt: "California gives you 22 electoral votes. Congratulations on your magnificent victory in this State and in the Union: Best regards."

STANFORD STUDENTS PAY HOOVER HOMAGE

President Sends Rival Wire, Promising Support in Nation's Service.

President Hoover's Home, Palo Alto, Calif., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—In a briefly worded telegram, President Hoover tonight told Franklin D. Roosevelt, "I congratulate you on the opportunity that has come to you to be of service to the country."

While a gathering of friends and neighbors of the Hoovers lingered in the big living room of his home, one of the Chief Executive's secretaries handed to newspapermen the following message to the New York Governor:

"I congratulate you on the opportunity that has come to you to be of service to the country and I wish for you a most successful administration. In the common purpose of all of us I shall dedicate myself to every possible helpful effort.

"HERBERT HOOVER"

The President sent this telegram from his study after watching the returns pile up increasing majorities for his opponent.

Students Pay Homage.

When the announcement of the President's conceding defeat came, shortly after 9:30 p. m. (Pacific standard time), a throng of Stanford University students filled his driveway. They waited an opportunity to stage a rally for him.

Shortly, the Chief Executive, with Mrs. Hoover by his side, appeared on the front balcony of their pueblo dwelling, and a burst of cheering that lasted for four minutes was started.

Large powder candles were set off, lighting the driveway and the crowd there bright as day.

Smoke from the candles swirled upward, almost completely enveloping the President and First Lady, but they stood, smiling, until the smoke diminished.

Some one in the college called for another yell for the President and Mrs. Hoover" and a "siren" consisting of a whistle or two and a "boom, rah, President and Mrs. Hoover" was given.

Secretary Wilbur, president on leave of Stanford University, who was with Mr. Hoover when he signed the telegram to Roosevelt, shook hands with him and offered his condolences.

Wilbur Expresses Sorrow.

Later, standing in the doorway of the Hoover home, while Mr. and Mrs. Hoover were on the balcony, the Secretary of the Interior told newspapermen:

"I am sorry. He made a great fight."

After the colleges cheer had been given, the cheer leader called for quiet, and when a silence had fallen so complete that the hiss of the powder candles could be heard, the President said:

"I thank you for your fine loyalty and I deeply appreciate this very hearty greeting. Thank you."

The President spoke with very evident emotion and, as he concluded, turned away.

What the Hoover plans will be now could not be immediately ascertained. Some days ago the President let it be known that unless some emergency arose in Washington he desired to rest for about a week at his home here.

Hebert in Polite Bow To Will of Majority

New York (Wednesday), Nov. 9 (A.P.).—United States Senator Felix Hebert, of Rhode Island, Eastern campaign manager for President Hoover, issued the following statement at 1 a. m., today:

"The great body of the electorate of the country has spoken. We who have been faithful to the Republican cause bow to the will of the majority. After all that is the spirit of America. President Hoover is no less magnificent in defeat than he has been in his victory against the forces of depression. It remains for every citizen of our country to wish unbounded success to the President who is to be and to express the hope that his administration will meet the most sanguine expectations of his supporters."

Hurley Praises Hoover As Greatest American

Tulsa, Okla., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Conceding defeat for the Republican party, Patrick J. Hurley, Secretary of War, tonight paid tribute to President Hoover as "the greatest living American," and at the same time signified the Democratic victor will have his "unqualified support."

"To me," he said, "President Hoover still is the greatest living American. This is a government by majority, and a majority has elected Franklin D. Roosevelt. He will be my President also and will have my unqualified support."

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

NOW IT CAN BE TOLD.

THE election is over, but the melody lingers on. Franklin Roosevelt took Herbert Hoover like the Yanks took Chicago and like Swivel took Kerry Patch.

* * * *

Mr. Hoover lost the pivotal States but carried Ogden Mills and Dudley Field Malone.

* * * *

It was the Battle of the Forgotten Issues. The voters didn't care about what was at stake. They just wanted a new face at the White House window.

* * * *

That's the traditional American custom. We always blame the engineer for the railroad wreck, no matter who tore up the rails.

* * * *

It is human nature not want to go over Niagara Falls twice in the same barrel.

* * * *

President Hoover was no more to blame for the depression than Cleveland was to blame for the blizzard of 1888, but he was let out on the theory that when people find themselves caught in a snowdrift in their bathing suits an example must be made of somebody.

* * * *

At that the election result is the first good break Mr. Hoover had had in four years. Being released from the cares of the White House at a time like this must be like being yanked from a stalled car on a burning roller coaster.

Mr. Hoover thus becomes the outstanding victim of the depression. Others may have suffered some, but the President's headache has been permanent.

* * * *

Mr. Hoover can resume his profession of engineering and not be blamed for everything from ants in the picnic lunch to a partner's failure to use the one over one system in bridge.

* * * *

He made a good living before he became President and he can do it again and not have to worry where Mrs. Dolly Gann is to sit at the dinner table, what clothes to wear fishing and when a tornado will blow itself out.

* * * *

President Hoover will have the best wishes of the American people and in the years to come they will look back at the photographs of the battle and realize that he gave us pretty good pitching against terrible odds.

* * * *

Mr. Roosevelt is delighted, but he must feel like a man who has been sent into the cellar to look for a gas leak with a lighted candle.

* * * *

Any way you look at the situation it is an open question whether he is to take over a Nation or a field hospital.

* * * *

He has his work cut out for him and to make good he will have to combine the best features of a magician, a statesman and the boss of a front-line dressing station.

* * * *

NEW YORK SWEPT BY ROOSEVELT TIDE

Wagner, Lehman, O'Brien and Bray Are Also Landslide Victors.

New York, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Riding the crest of a preceding shattering triumph Franklin D. Roosevelt won the 47 electoral votes of his home State in today's presidential election by overwhelming Herbert Hoover in the metropolitan area with a plurality exceeding 862,000.

This figure wiped out a 200,000 advantage for the Republican candidate in the upstate areas and gave the Democratic standard bearer a margin in New York as a whole of more than 660,000.

It was the first time since 1912 that New York has gone Democratic in a presidential election.

As the Tammany-controlled Democratic organization of New York City buried its Republican opponents beneath a virtual 3-to-1 avalanche, a total vote of more than 2,000,000 was polled in the city for the first time in history.

The Democratic sweep in the city also carried to victory the State ticket headed by Senator Robert F. Wagner and Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, candidate to succeed Gov. Roosevelt.

A midnight tabulation of returns from 7,794 of the 8,837 districts in the State gave: Roosevelt 2,408,574 and Hoover 1,748,532.

The complete totals for the 3,794 New York City districts gave: Roosevelt 1,437,231 and Hoover 575,031.

Hoover Vote Deserts.

Although Hoover four years ago piled up a lead of 500,000 upstate, which wiped out Alfred E. Smith's New York City plurality and gave him the State, his plurality north of the city line was far too slim this year to bring him victory.

Totals from 4,180 of the 5,043 districts outside the metropolis were: Roosevelt 971,343 and Hoover 1,173,601.

Norman Thomas, who polled a State vote of 107,332 when he ran as the Socialist candidate for President in 1928, had 120,486 in the completed New York City tabulation and 26,278 from 1,800 of the 5,043 up-State districts, a total of 146,764.

Lehman was running more than 875,000 ahead of his Republican rival, William J. Donovan, in seven-eighths of his State's districts. Donovan conceded his victory.

Lehman Elected.

Returns from 7,316 of the 8,837 districts gave Lehman, 2,380,022 and Donovan 1,503,053.

In the senatorial fight Wagner was pulling far away from George Z. Medalie, Republican. The count from 6,214 of the 8,837 districts stood: Wagner 2,026,074 and Medalie 1,170,129.

Only a scattering of votes was recorded for D. Leigh Colvin, senatorial candidate of the Law Preservation party.

William Bray, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor, was running somewhat behind the heads of his ticket, with his Republican opponent, F Truee Davison, Assistant Secretary of War, leading him by more than 100,000 up-State. However, totals from 6,410 of the 8,837 State districts gave: Bray, 2,029,627 and Davison 1,277,128.

PRESIDENT BEATEN IN HIS HOME STATE

Roosevelt Leading, 2 to 1, and McAdoo Appears Victor in California.

San Francisco, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Franklin D. Roosevelt led President Hoover almost 2 to 1 in early returns tonight from California, the Chief Executive's home State.

The Democratic candidate rolled up 215,975 as against 131,795 for the President in totals from 1,773 complete and incomplete precincts out of 10,547.

The triangular senatorial race, with William G. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury under President Wilson, taking a sharp lead in early returns, threatened to be a sectional as well as a party race.

In 430 precincts, complete and incomplete, McAdoo had 28,169 on the Democratic ticket as against 13,981 for Tallant Tubbs, militantly wet Republican, and 16,968 for the Rev. Robert P. Shuler, prohibitionist candidate. For the latter candidate, 16,303 of his votes were in populous Los Angeles County, his home. It was there also that McAdoo was polling his strongest vote. Tubbs' principal strength came from San Francisco, his home city, and from scattered precincts in northern California.

Pinchot Declares G.O.P. Got What It Deserved

Milford, Pa., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Gifford Pinchot, Pennsylvania's Independent Republican governor, tonight broke his silence of months to assert that "Republican national leaders asked for defeat, and they got it." The governor had declined to give any indication of where he stood during the campaign.

The governor interpreted the election returns as a "mandate to the Republican party to discard its false gods, reorganize its lines and return to the principles of Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt."

Unrest Is Blamed By Edge for Vote

Hoover Seen as Victim as Envoy Discounts Mere Party Victory.

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Ambassador Walter E. Edge tonight blamed the defeat of the Republican candidate on "the unprecedented unrest" rather than conceding the Democratic sweep as a party victory. In a statement he said:

"When an issue is settled, the country is not very much interested in post mortems. Nevertheless, the returns clearly demonstrate that the election was never a contest of parties or candidates.

"It was rather a battle between the 'ins' and the unprecedented unrest which naturally followed the cataclysm of the past three years. President Hoover and the Republican party were the victims of this situation, which neither the United States or any other country has or could dispose of in that period.

"The main responsibility right now for all Americans, irrespective of party, is to pull together and, certainly for the present, postpone partisan politics as the result clearly proves that this was not a party victory."

Borah Hints Vote Cast for Hoover

Senator Admits He Confined Balloting Activities to Republican Party.

Chicago, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, gave out a broad hint as he passed through Chicago today that he had voted for Herbert Hoover.

The Idaho Republican would not predict the outcome of the election, but said he believed it would be close. He said he cast his vote by absentee ballot before leaving Boise for Washington.

"Are we to assume," Borah was asked, "that because you said any candidate who charged the depression to the Hoover administration was not fit to govern the country, you voted for Hoover?" Borah replied, "You may assume that I confine myself to the Republican party."

Louisiana Backs Repeal Of Two Dry Statutes

New Orleans, La., Nov. 9 (U.P.).—Indications today were that the proposal to repeal the State prohibition law of Louisiana and the eighteenth amendment carried in Tuesday's election.

Reports from 165 of 1,370 precincts, most of them in New Orleans, gave: For repeal, 53,178; against, 2,463. For the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, 51,751; against, 1,990.

Son of Gov. Rooseevlt Votes in Cambridge

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Mr. and Mrs. James A. Roosevelt, son and daughter-in-law of the Democratic nominee for the Presidency, slopped through the mud and mist to their polling booth in a school house here at 9:30 o'clock this morning.

After the couple had cast their ballots, James said, they planned to take the 1 p. m. train for New York, there to join his father and await the returns of the eltction.

ROOSEVELT GAINING 4 WESTERN STATES

New Mexico Vote Feature; Colorado, Wyoming and Montana in Column.

Denver, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt was leading in the four States of the Rocky Mountain region, on early returns tonight, the preference for the New York governor being most emphatically registered in New Mexico, where a Republican bolt to the Democratic banner was the outstanding feature of the campaign.

New Mexico's early returns indicated a two-to-one victory for the Democratic ticket, national and State.

Closer contests were shown in the other States of this section. Roosevelt was slightly ahead in Coloraro, he had a lead in Wyoming, and scattering returns in Montana also gave him a lead.

Summarized, the returns for President were:

Colorado: 87 precincts out of 1,549, Roosevelt, 10,188; Hoover, 8,881.

New Mexico: 41 incomplete precincts out of 798, Roosevelt, 6,214; Hoover, 2,927.

Voting In Wyoming

Wyoming: 63 precincts out of 667: Roosevelt, 1,630; Hoover, 1,060.

Montana—Sixty precincts out of 1,443: Roosevelt, 9,165; Hoover, 5,751.

Sharper cleavage was shown in the fight over the United States senatorship in Colorado—the only contest in this region. Karl C. Schuyler, Republican, who made his campaign in a vigorous support of President Hoover and Republican policies, was running behind Alva B. Adams, Democrat, a former senator, who in the campaign was designated as a Progressive. Adams was supported by Senator Edward B. Costigan, Democrat, who has been aligned with the Progressive element in the Senate.

Eighty-five precincts in Colorado gave Adams 9,269; Schuyler 8,489.

For the unexpired term of the late Senator Charles W. Waterman, Schuyler was leading Walter Walker, Grand Junction newspaper publisher, in 85 precincts. The vote was: Schuyler, 8,856; Walker, 5,962. This contest figures in the complexion of the term of Congress starting in December.

Johnson Leads Republican.

Edwin C. Johnson, Lieutenant Governor of Colorado, Democratic candidate for governor, was out in front of James D. Parriott, Denver City attorney, Republican candidate. In 85 precincts the count was Johnson, 10,224; Parriott, 8,416.

Returns from 20 precincts scattered throughout the State, outside of Denver, showed a small majority against a constitutional amendment which would repeal all the Colorado dry laws. The figures were: For repeal, 2,324; against, 2,492.

The Wyoming electorate registered approval of a proposal to repeal the eighteenth amendment on the face of early returns. From 26 precincts the vote stood: For repeal, 632; against, 183.

Gov. John E. Errickson, Democrat, had a slight lead over Lieut. Gov. Frank A. Hazelbaker, Republican lieutenant governor, for the governorship of Montana.

Lame Duck Amendment Is Before States for Ratification.

By J. BERNARD McDONNELL.

When the triumphant hosts of Democracy march down Pennsylvania avenue next March 4 in celebration of the inauguration of President Franklin D. Roosevelt they not only shall mark the advent of a new administration but the probable passing of a historic date as well.

Franklin D. Roosevelt probably shall be the last President to begin his term of office on March 4. Before another presidential election shall roll around it is likely the so-called lame-duck amendment to the Constitution will be approved by a sufficient number of States to make the future presidential term begin at noon on January 20 following the quadrennial election.

That would shorten Mr. Roosevelt's term, slashing off the period from January 20 to March 3, giving him the shortest legal term in the history of the country, but already Democrats, heady with the wine of victory, are counting on Roosevelt succeeding himself four years hence.

His inaugural parade down Pennsylvania avenue is going to be made something to remember if his admirers have their way. John F. Costello, District Democratic national committeeman, and John B. Colpoys, Democratic State chairman of the District, have planned an elaborate inaugural for their idol.

Started Roosevelt Club Here.

Why not? they ask. Isn't the inauguration of a Democratic President occasion to celebrate? They would think so, even if it weren't, and they'd join in the enthusiasm for any Democratic victor. But now it is more than that. They know and admire and love President-elect Roosevelt. Costello inaugurated the first Roosevelt-for-President Club in the District and thereby brought down on his head all kinds of trouble from amateur local politicians as well as from persons who are nationally known but who use the District Democratic organization to give them official status at the party conventions.

Just what kind of inauguration Mr. Roosevelt shall have will depend, of course, on himself. Detailed plans for it will be worked out by a District committee after consultation with the President-elect.

It is John and Frank when Costello and Roosevelt meet. Their friendship is of long standing. That was demonstrated recently when Roosevelt passed through Union Station. Roosevelt was tired and worn from the strain of the campaign, but of more importance at the moment, perhaps, was the fact that he was surrounded by a few hundred newspaper reporters, photographers, State governors, senators, members of the House, and others, from four years old up to toothless old age. It was hoped he would leave his train and appear before the crowds gathered before Union Station.

"I can't, John," Roosevelt pleaded with Costello. "My throat is so raw my voice is hoarse, and I have to make a speech in Baltimore tonight over a national radio hook-up. Won't you tell them I thank them for coming to see me and that I'll come back again to see them?"

When he got to Baltimore, Roosevelt began his national address with a greeting to the people of the District.

Unprecedented Fete Foreseen

Messrs. Costello and Colpoys will be joined by Democrats from all sections of the country in their demands that Mr. Roosevelt let his followers celebrate his inauguration as President with a fitting fanfare.

"The Nation has turned a new page by electing Mr. Roosevelt. It is only fitting that the Nation shall write on that page a pean of celebration at his inauguration on March 4," Mr. Costello said.

"From communications I have received I am convinced there will be hundreds of thousands of persons who will come to Washington to see the inauguration of President Roosevelt as the harbinger of a better day for the rank and file of the country.

"Just what President Roosevelt will want, I can't say. I haven't discussed the matter with him. We must, of couse, be guided by whatever he says.

"But we are going to go see him with one thought dominant in our minds. It is the same thought that was dominant in the minds of our millions of voters when they elected him. His inauguration is an occasion for joyousness. The Nation is going to wipe out the disaster of the current depression. It is anxious to celebrate that in an appropriate manner on the occasion of the inauguration of President Roosevelt.

"The cost? Why, every one bears his own cost. None of the cost, except the small cost incident to the official ceremonies at the Capitol, comes out of the Government Treasury."

Inaugural Ball Planned.

An inaugural celebration of outstanding character, with much fuss and feathers, perhaps a gala inaugural ball, as in days of yore, is desired by Democratic leaders not only because it might give victory-happy Democrats a chance to strut in the National Capital, but also because of the psychological effect such a celebration would have on the country. They argue that it would symbolize the turning of the bend in the long lane of sad need incident to the Republican depression.

President-elect Roosevelt, unless something unforeseen happens, will take the oath of office on the steps of the Capitol at noon next March 4. Actually, according to the best legal judgment, his term begins immediately after midnight March 3.

Despite this fact, President Hoover probably will be at the Capitol signing bills given last-minute legislative approval up till the hour of noon on March 4. The apparent discrepancy has the authority of practice and the usage of the House of Representatives and the Senate. If the House is to meet on official business on the morning of March 4, it recesses the night before so that when it meets in the morning it shall still be doing business on the legislative day of March 3. The Senate does the same thing. It is not infrequent through a sesison of the Senate to be engaged, officially, in the business of a legislative day which is several days past on the calendar. There have been historic occasions when the hands of official clocks in both House and Senate have been turned back with a long pointer so that one or the other could conclude its business within a prescribed time limit. Officially the bodies assume the power of Joshua, within reason, of course.

This subterfuge has grown to such acceptance that it is doubtful it could be challenged successfully. The reason it hasn't been challenged is because the last minute measures, which have been passed under this possibly dubious authority, have, in general, been of a character that none wished to challenge. But there have been occasions when some senator stood at his desk and talked and talked, despite turning back of the clock, until it was agreed no further effort should be made to give final passage to a particular measure. The power to destroy measures in the final moments of a session of Congress is so great that it is assumed that any measure given death-bed approval is not objected to.

Ceremony at Capitol Plaza.

When the sessions of the House and Senate have been concluded, its members and the justices of the United States Supreme Court make their way to the east steps of the Capitol where the Chief Justice administers the oath of office to the new President in the presence of distinguished persons who are given seats on the temporary platforms which have been erected for the occasion, and thousands of others standing in the Capitol Plaza to witness the ceremony and to hear first hand the inaugural address of the man who has just taken in his hands the reins of government of a great Nation.

Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, a Republican and once his party's candidate for the Presidency, will administer the oath of office to President Roosevelt. The Presidents's oath is prescribed in the Constitution. It is as follows:

"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States, and will, to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States."

A slip of a school girl caught Chief Justice Taft in a mistake when he administered the oath of office to President Hoover on March 4, 1929. The kind-hearted Chief Justice himself made public a letter of inquiry the child had written him and said that she was right and he had been wrong, but explained that the wording he used was valid and adequate. Listening in on the radio in her home many miles away she heard the Chief Justice say "preserve, maintain and defend." She knew that was wrong and probably had lots of arguments with her girl friends about it. She finally sat down and wrote Mr. Taft asking him if she was right. A day or two later she probably was embarrassed but almost as proud and self-satisfied as one of Lucifer's lieutenants, at least, when she saw her name in every newspaper she cared to look at.

But to get back to the inaugural celebration. For years there had been agitation in Washington, especially, for a change of the date of inauguration, chiefly because of the likelihood of inclement and severe weather on March 4. The inauguration of President Taft served as an example. Snow fell early in the morning of Inauguration Day and lay several inches deep on Pennsylvania avenue and other streets of the city. It became slush, soaking through the footwear of spectators and marchers. Many fell ill and some died.

A nasty cold rain fell on the day McKinley was inaugurated. Those who had them, in them there days, could have worn modern-day light summer clothes when Cleveland took his first oath of office on March 4, 1885.

The celebration incident to the inauguration of Wilson brought about a shameful spectacle. Strange as it may seem today, the question of woman suffrage was being sharply agitated at the time. Advocates of woman suffrage arranged a parade up Pennsylvania avenue on March 3. They afforded a Roman holiday for the big, brave men who shouted that woman's place was in the home and pushed and pulled and shoved them, tore their clothes and struck them in mounting glee until the Cavalry arrived from Fort Myer and cleared a path for the grimly marching women. That shameful spectacle probably did more than anything else to give women the right to vote. Incidentally it cost the job of Maj. Richard Sylvester, superintendent of District police, who had become a fixture of the National Capital. Since his departure the tenure of District police chiefs have been short and stormy.

But the "lame-duck" amendment to the Constitution advances farther into the winter the inauguration date. The amendment was not proposed to avoid physical discomforts incident to celebrating the advent of a new administration. It provides that the terms of the President and Vice President shall end and begin at noon on January 20.

Approval of three-fourths of the States is required for an amendment to the Constitution to become effective. Seventeen States already have approved the Norris amendment. Those which have approved it are New York, Mississippi, Arkansas, Virginia, New Jersey, Illinois, Indiana, Alabama, Kentucky, Michigan, South Carolina, Maine, Rhode Island, Louisiana, Pennsylvania, Texas and West Virginia. Approval of nineteen others is required and this is expected to be given by the Legislatures of the various States when they meet early next year.

Electoral College Once Free as to Its Choice

The forefathers of the Nation, who foresaw every contingency, if one would believe haphazard spouters of history, didn't trust the people as a whole to make a wise or adequate selection for President.

The Electoral College in the beginning was charged with choosing a President. The people voted for the electors. The electors were free to vote as they deemed wise. It was only after several years that it became the practice for parties to nominate electors who would vote for their candidate. Out of that grew the present popular election of President through the Electoral College.

Airways Division
November 8, 1932

The Washington Post,
Washington, D. C.

Gentlemen:

Confirming verbal discussion with your representative, which was followed by your letter of November 2, outlining plans for the utilization of the Airways Beacon on top of the Wardman Park Hotel to indicate the trend of the election on Tuesday night, November 8, your plan has received the approval of this department and airplane pilots have been informed of the fact that this beacon may show either a red or green beam between 8 p.m. and midnight on Tuesday night.

Very truly yours,

For the Chief Engineer:

C. I. Stenton
Airways Engineer.

CIS:MLC

After making proper arrangements with the management of the Wardman Park Hotel, The Washington Post, on November 2, received permission from the Lighthouse Service, Airways Division, of the Department of Commerce, to vary the color of beams from the Airways Beacon situated on top of the Wardman Park Hotel, to indicate the trend of the election. The Post also widely publicized its arrangement for the convenience of those interested in the election. It therefore came as a surprise to see another newspaper's insinuation that it had arranged this plan for the benefit of its readers. . . . The reproductions above tell the story. The matter in itself is inconsequential but the principle is of far-reaching importance. When such practices are openly indulged in, fair-minded people can make their own inferences . . . The Washington Post values its reputation and integrity far more than any temporary commercial advantage, for that reason you may always rely upon the statements of—

ALEXANDRIA CASTS BIG ROOSEVELT VOTE

Democratic Candidates for Congress Are Victors by 3-to-1 Majority.

The City of Alexandria, Va., in its completed tabulation last night gave Gov. Roosevelt a total of 2,941 votes, a lead of 1,742 votes over President Hoover, who totaled 1,199, while the Democratic candidates for Congress glided over the top with an almost overwhelming majority over their opponents, at a ratio of almost 3 to 1.

Sprinkled in the major balloting figures were 7 votes for Upshaw, Prohibition candidate; 1 for Foster, Communist candidate, and 26 for Thomas, Socialistic candidate.

The tabulation of the votes brought Alexandria back to the standard of the Democratic party which it deserted in 1928 and went for Hoover.

	Roosevelt	Hoover	Others
First Ward	484	168	1
Second Ward ..	422	84	4
Third Ward ..	519	214	0
Fourth Ward ..	532	195	5
Fifth Ward ...	531	296	5
Sixth Ward ...	453	249	19
Total	2,941	1,199	34

Total figures for the congressional nominees from the six voting wards were: Democratic—Bland, 3,073; Darden, 3,043; Montague, 3,115; Drewry, 3,076; Burch, 3,065; Woodrum, 3,112; Robertson, 3,096; Smith, 3,183; Flannagan, 2,990. Republican—Wise, 844; Lankford, 953; Scott, 816; McWane, 930; Garber, 1,025; Chase, 917. Independent—Berkeley, 517; Brown, 636; Gordon, 208; Royal, 83; Dawson, 75; Ansell, 71; Dunning, 269; George, 74; Norris, 74; Spaulding, 465.

The total figures tabulated above show a radical shift from the Republican to the Democratic party as shown by the total figures recorded from the 1928 election. A total of 3,172 votes were cast, of which 1,621 went to the Republican candidate, Hoover, while 1,311 went to the Democratic nominee, Smith, Hoover winning with a majority of 310 votes.

France Is Intensely Interested in Election

Paris, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—France's interest in the American election is unprecedentedly intense, with the famous Paris night life providing the setting for late reception of returns by the American Colony and Frenchmen alike. Clubs, restaurants, bars and night clubs, from Montparnasse to Montmartre, made special arrangements to display the returns.

The largest number of impatient Americans gathered at Pershing Hall, the headquarters of the American Legion. Because of the difference in time Americans prepared to stay up until dawn at election parties.

Seattle, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—James McDonald may not live much longer, physicians say, but he's had his wish. The 83-year-old Democrat, who pleaded with physicians last week: "Don't let me die. I want to vote for Roosevelt," cast his vote for President today.

A short time after relatives took him from the hospital to the polls, he was returned to the hospital, however, and a serious operation performed. He had voted the straight Democratic ticket ever since Samuel J. Tilden was defeated by Rutherford B. Hayes, he said.

Franklin D. Roosevelt swept Montgomery County with a majority of 3,547 votes in yesterday's elections, reaping a total of 11,804 votes against 8,257 for Herbert Hoover.

Senator Millard E. Tydings (Democrat) defeated his opponent, Wallace Williams (Republican) by 4,906 votes. Senator Tydings polled a total of 11,607 votes against 6,701 for Williams.

David J. Lewis (Democrat), of Allegany County, was an easy victor in the race for the House of Representatives over Harold C. Smith (Republican), of Montgomery County, with 11,073 votes against his opponent's total of 7,896.

Takoma Park and Chevy Chase proved to be the sole supporters of President Hoover. Takoma Park gave the outgoing President a total of 1,149 votes and Gov. Roosevelt 835. Chevy Chase residents cast 1,201 votes for President Hoover and 804 for Roosevelt.

Approximately 20,000 Montgomery County voters journeyed on foot, horseback, muleback, by automobile and even in ambulances to cast their ballot in the county's bitterest national campaign.

The polls were opened yesterday morning at 6 o'clock to a waiting group who had arranged to do their voting early. From then on until 7 o'clock last night there was a steady stream of voters to register their choice for President and Vice President, United States senator and representative from the Sixth Maryland District.

The two oldest voters of the county, Mrs. Margaret Thompson, 91 years old, of Thompsons Corner, and Mrs. Sarah E. Webb, 90 years old, of Silver Spring, cast their ballots early. Mrs. Thompson voted the Democratic ticket and Mrs. Webb the Republican.

Hoover Receives Vote Of Florida Man, 101

St. Petersburg, Fla., Nov. 8 (A.P.)—Charles W. Eldredge, 101, believed to be Florida's oldest male voter, cast his ballot here today for Herbert Hoover with the explanation the President "knows the value of a dollar."

Eldredge cast his first vote for Gen. John C. Fremont in 1856 and has voted for President every four years since, except on one occasion when he was at sea. He was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, in 1831, coming to this country at the age of 10.

Roosevelt Home County Gives Hoover Plurality

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Poughkeepsie, the county seat of Dutchess County, in which Gov. Roosevelt lives, gave a substantial plurality for President Hoover.

The vote of the city complete was: Roosevelt, 7,614; Hoover, 8,849. The vote for governor was: Lehman, 7,799; Donovan, 8,555.

Harrisburg Man Votes From Hospital Stretcher

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Clayton J. Dougherty, of this city, cast his vote today from a hospital stretcher. His back in a plaster cast, he was taken from the hospital in an ambulance and stopped at a polling place in the Tenth Ward.

He was carried into the polling place on a stretcher and cast his ballot and then was taken home. His back was broken when he fell from a house.

Republican, 101, Casts 21st Presidential Vote

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 8 (A.P.)—Otis B. Cowles, 101 just two days ago, walked the 250 feet from his home at South Onondaga to a village polling place and cast his twenty-first vote for President today. "Boys," he said, "I think you ought to set 'em up."

Mr. Cowles said he had voted the Republican ticket "ever since that party was organized in 1856, and I'm not going to vote for any other party at my age." His first ballot was cast, he said, for Gen. Scott, Whig presidential candidate in 1852, just 80 years ago. Franklin Pierce, Democrat, was elected that year.

2 Races Will Feature Plains Meet Tomorrow

Special to The Washington Post.

Plains, Va., Nov. 8.—Virginia society and sporting enthusiasts are expected to turn out in large numbers to the annual races of the Orange County Hunt, which will be held at Plains, Va., tomorrow, under sanction of the hunts committee of the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association. There will be two races as formerly, both at about 3½ miles over a national hunting country. The course has been much improved.

The Raymond Belmont Challenge Cup will be presented for teams of two horses from any recognized hunt, not necessarily the property of the same owner, and the R. Penn Smith, jr., Challenge Plate is for horses owned by members of a recognized hunt. In addition to the challenge cups plate is offered for each year's winners.

South America Watches Election With Interest

Buenos Aires, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—South America is following the voting in the United States with unprecedented interest, regarding this election as the most important in world effect since 1916.

Both candidates have well-wishers among the press. Some newspapers believe the election of Mr. Roosevelt would influence tariff adjustments, which would stimulate Argentina's trade and world commerce. Others are convinced that Mr. Hoover's re-election and the continuance of his reconstruction program offers greater promise.

Near Riot Broken Up In Brooklyn by Police

New York, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Police emergency and gun squads were called to the twenty-third assembly district in Brooklyn today to break up a near-riot in front of the polling place. The disturbance started with a fist fight between two men who had engaged in a prolonged argument and spread rapidly among prospective voters as they gathered to cast their ballots.

Police used their clubs on about a half dozen of the leaders in the fight, restoring order in only a few minutes. Election officials said the voters in the district were largely communistic. Police also reported they had broken up minor disturbances in several other districts.

Victors Stage Parade

Jubilant over their first victory since 1916, Democrats staged a midnight parade through Clarendon and Arlington after results became known.

The county's vote for Representatives to Congress was not known early this morning. In four precincts where complete returns were available, the nine Democratic nominees had substantial leads over their Republican, Independent and Socialist rivals.

Delay in the returns on the congressional contests was due to difficulty in counting of ballots. Democratic leaders, from those meager results which were known, predicted that all nine of their candidates would receive pluralities.

ROOSEVELT VICTOR IN FAIRFAX COUNTY

Entire Democratic Ticket for Congress Apparently Is Triumphant.

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt yesterday swept to an approximate two to one victory in Fairfax County, Va., which in 1928 was in the Republican column by a slight margin. Practically complete figures last night showed a popular vote of 2,356 for Roosevelt and 1,196 for Hoover.

The entire Democratic congressional ticket also appeared to have been swept in with the Roosevelt landslide.

By districts and divided into precincts, the ballot in Fairfax County was:

Congressional elections were somewhat confused because all candidates for the House of Representatives were grouped as at large candidates because of the decision of the State Supreme Court declaring the redistricting act of the General Assembly as unconstitutional.

Because of this factor many ballots were believed to have been voided because voters marked them improperly.

Fairfax County ballot counts for the nine Democratic and other congressional candidates were early this morning (Democrats are the first nine and these are the victorious candidates): Bland, 2,431; Darden, 2,397; Montague, 2,354; Drewry, 2,408; Burch, 2,419; Woodrum, 2,469; Robertson, 2,431; Smith, 2,558; Flanagan, 2,366; Wise, 895; Lankford, 964; Scott, 899; McWane, 909; Garber, 1,017; Chase, 920; Berkeley, 651; Brown, 627; Gordon, 286; Royal, 75; Dawson, 86; Ansell, 69; Dunning, 172; George, 63, and Norris, 56.

A total of 339 votes were cast for Spaulding, whose name was not on the ballot; Lyon, 37, and Brown, 35.

Socialist Candidate Worn Out by Campaign

Reading, Pa., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—James H. Maurer, Socialist candidate for Vice President of the United States, was not waiting on customers of his cigar and candy store today because, he said, his recent strenuous campaigning left him too tired.

When he has the time to spare, Maurer said he likes nothing better than to stand behind the counter of his small shop near the center of the city and exchange commonplaces with friends as he waits on them. But today he went back to his home after voting early.

Farley in Radio Address Gives Thanks for Victory

Democratic Chairman Expresses No Surprise at Landslide Result and Predicts Franklin D. Roosevelt Will Make a Great President.

New York, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, predicted in a radio speech tonight that Gov. Roosevelt "will go down in history as a great President." He spoke over two national networks.

The text of his address follows:

"Ladies and gentlemen of the radio audience: We are here at headquarters of the Democratic national committee at the Biltmore Hotel in New York City. We have been here for a number of hours waiting for returns that came to us from every State in this Union.

"We are very happy at the result and with all due modesty I would say that we are not surprised. For many long months Democratic headquarters predicted the election of Franklin D. Roosevelt. They felt that he would be elected, because their thought was the American people would accept the Democratic platform as adopted at the great Democratic convention in Chicago, and we felt that the policies outlined by our candidate during the campaign would meet with the approval of the American electorate.

Calls Victory Sweet.

"Victory is, of course, a sweet thing, and while we are all happy here tonight, we are not unmindful of the great obligation that goes with a great victory. The voters in America have shown great confidence in our candidates and in our party, and, of course, it is the desire and the wish of every one who supported Gov. Roosevelt that he give to this country a great administration.

"I am satisfied that he will and that he will go down in history as a great President. He is a great American, with great ability. He will be successful because I am firmly of the belief that he will be able to attract to his support thousands of Americans, who will be willing to aid him in every way they possibly can to bring this country back to the position it held several years ago.

"Now that the campaign is over and the victory is ours, I am sure that the opposition and every one who supported candidates other than Gov. Roosevelt will be quite willing, as Americans, to assist him in every way they possibly can. I, of course, have no authority to speak for him, but we will welcome the suggestions and support of every good American. And knowing America as I do, I am satisfied that they will respond in a generous mood from the day he takes office as President of these United States.

Thanks Party Workers.

"I can not close without taking this opportunity of expressing to the Democratic workers of America my most sincere and heartfelt thanks for the efforts they put forth at the polls today in every election district and in every precinct in America.

"My thanks go to the election officials, Democrats and Republicans, who saw to it that the votes were properly polled and that an honest count was made. I am grateful to every one who in any way played a part in this campaign.

"Of course, I am deeply grateful to those who brought about the governor's nomination and who worked for many months sincerely from the day that his candidacy was announced many months ago. I am deeply grateful to the men and women who opposed him most sincerely in Chicago, but when the convention ended, responded generously to his cause. I am very happy to say tonight that every outstanding Democrat in America loyally supported Gov. Roosevelt in this great campaign. I am not going to attempt to mention names because if I did, I might omit the name of some thoughtful American who rendered very valuable support.

"To all of them I express my most sincere and grateful thanks, and I am sure that every effort will be put forth to justify the confidence reposed in Gov. Roosevelt by the Democrats and Republicans, men and women of all parties, in this great country of ours today. Thank you all and good night."

HARRY F. BYRD SAYS RESULT REASSURING

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Nov. 8.—Commenting on the outcome of the election, former Gov. Harry F. Byrd, Democratic national committeeman from Virginia and chairman of the national executive finance committee, said:

"In the glory of Democratic victory, there are several things to reassure us. The American people justified their right to self-government by an orderliness under provocation and a courage in the face of disaster and a restraint against hard conditions that proved their poise and patriotism.

"Franklin Roosevelt confounded those who painted him as a radical by refusing to light the dangerous fires of popular passion when the kindling wood of discouragement and discontent was ready to the touch of his eloquence. On the contrary, Gov. Roosevelt spoke with a dignity and restraint that refused to be shaken by the personal attacks even of the President of the United States.

"Mr. Roosevelt conducted his campaign in a way to win the support of the new Senate and House, he appeared as a man patient in common counsel, reasonable in understanding of different points of view and ready to persuade a legislative support that Mr. Hoover could not coerce. The Democratic party will restore responsible government by accomplishing that cooperation between the White House and the Capitol that existed in the first administration of Woodrow Wilson.

"But we must neither envision a millennium or expect a miracle. The forces of the depression can not be vanquished in a day. Roosevelt has placed his standard far in the advance on human suffering and unhappiness and we will follow him in the faith that gradually ground will be gained until the goal of prosperity will be reached."

Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, made a far better showing than he did four years ago.

Although reports were available for only about one-tenth of the election districts in the United States early today, he had votes in these totaling 192,073.

Thomas' entire vote in 1928 was 267,420, and of that number 107,332 were cast in New York State. Reports from 5,594 of the 8,837 election districts in New York give him 146,764 votes this year.

Tennessee Ballots Give Roosevelt Big Plurality

With returns from 1,349 out of 2,251 precincts, the count stood: Roosevelt, 94,831; Hoover, 43,399. Republican headquarters conceded Roosevelt's victory in the State. In the governorship race, Hill McAllister, the recognized Democratic nominee, pulled into a commanding lead.

Voting Booth Stolen, Balloting Is Delayed

Oklahoma City, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—The county election board's telephone jangled again.

"This is Mrs. John K. Spears, the precinct official at Nicoma Park," gasped an agitated voice at the other end. "We had the voting booth stored in the barn and someone has stolen it. What shall we do?"

An hour later Mrs. Spears reported the booth had been found and that voting was in progress.

LOANS TO STATES.

Demands upon the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for direct relief funds have been much lighter than were expected. When Congress set aside $300,000,000 for loans of this type to the States it was regarded in some quarters as merely an initial appropriation that would have to be enlarged during the coming session of Congress. But the R. F. C. has advanced only $65,853,000 of that sum. It still has on hand ample funds to meet all legitimate demands for a considerable period.

There are several reasons why these loans have been held to a relatively small sum. Since this provision in the relief act became law there has been a considerable improvement in business, and men are going back to work at the rate of 500,000 per month. Relief needs have not been as heavy as was expected. Some States which have petitioned the R. F. C. for aid have withdrawn their requests because the needs of the unemployed have been taken care of through jobs.

A number of States are unable to take advantage of the aid offered by the R. F. C. because they can not meet the requirements laid down in the law. Many of these restrictions will probably be removed at legislative sessions in the State capitals this winter. The relief agency can not be a complete guarantee against hunger and suffering until all the States make arrangements to take advantage of its service.

Another reason why advances of this kind by the R. F. C. have been kept at a rather small figure is the conservative policy of the management. Congress did not create this agency to replace the relief work of the States, but to supplement their resources when local effort is not sufficient to cope with actual needs. The R. F. C. has no intention of transferring the responsibilities of local government to Uncle Sam, as Pennsylvania has learned. That State has been informed that it can expect no further aid from Washington until its local resources have been more fully utilized.

When human want becomes acute and local resources have been exhausted the R. F. C. does not hesitate to make loans. That is illustrated by the outlay of more than $20,000,000 in Illinois. Congress intended that this relief agency should always act in case of actual necessity. But there is no occasion for extravagant spending merely to dispose of the funds allotted to it for the benefit of the States. It is a kindness to taxpayers to refuse aid unless it is urgently needed. All of these advances must be repaid. They should be held to a minimum consistent with actual need beyond the powers of the States to alleviate.

TOM BLANTON, BENEFACTOR.

A precedent of primary importance to the American people has been set in this campaign, and the honor of the path-breaking achievement goes to our old friend Tom Blanton of Texas. The historic event occurred at San Angelo, Tex.

Tom Blanton was to deliver the heavy speech at a political rally. He awaited introduction to the audience. His introducer was one Clyde Vinson, who personifies one of the blights and drawbacks that intensify the present worldwide depression. Instead of introducing Mr. Blanton in a snappy ten-word address Mr. Vinson droned for thirty minutes, greatly to the weariness of his audience and the disgust of the waiting statesman. Then it was that Tom Blanton rose to the occasion and established a glorious precedent. He left the platform. When Mr. Vinson reached the end of his oration—everything, it seems, must have an end—Tom Blanton was absent, missing without leave, and without depositing a forwarding address. His only message was that the introductory address was too long.

Hurrah for Tom Blanton! He has conferred a favor upon the country by serving a stern warning upon introducers that they daily with danger when they monopolize the stage. The public has suffered cruel injustice at the tongues of these interminable introducers. It was high time that one of them should be shown up. Public sympathy will go out to Tom Blanton for his sufferings in remaining bottled up for a whole half hour, but this sympathy is mingled with admiration for Tom's heroism and self-denial in refusing to speak at all.

The precedent has been made. Let it not be surrendered or neglected, but rather let it be cited for all time as a milepost in the march of civilization.

THE NEW DEAL.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT receives the mandate of the American people to assume the burden that has been carried by Herbert Hoover. The people's decision is countrywide. East, North, Midwest and West have joined in placing the Government in control of the Democratic party. The Senate and House will have Democratic majorities capable of acting without regard to Progressives or the Republican opposition.

The cause of the landslide is obviously the reaction of the people against the depression. Perhaps the doom of the Hoover administration was sealed three years ago last month, when the fortunes of millions of citizens were swept away. President Hoover manfully met the appalling situation, and for three years has breasted one tidal wave of adversity after another. The measures he sponsored, in co-operation with Congress and leaders of industry, finance, labor and agriculture, have begun to operate successfully, and the spirit of courage and confidence is widespread. Nevertheless, the people have concluded that the Government must be administered by new hands. The Democratic party has received the support of many millions of Republicans in effecting this change. In a broad sense Gov. Roosevelt's victory is nonpartisan. Republicans as well as Democrats hail him as national leader and are eager to give him their aid in the discharge of the task that has exacted such heavy toll from Mr. Hoover.

The exultation of the victorious hosts and the gloom of the defeated relate to persons. Millions in their enthusiasm are apt to expect too much of President-elect Roosevelt, and other millions feel perhaps too keenly what they regard as unmerited humiliation of President Hoover. Doubtless in the hearts of the two chief figures of this mighty drama are neither undue elation nor unmitigated disappointment. The one suddenly faces fateful responsibilities and the other can not but experience a sense of relief.

In the four months before the new President takes the helm much history is to be made. The session of Congress beginning next month is to wrestle with taxation, economy, the bonus question, the beer question, relief of distress, and problems of the depression. Foreign matters of great consequence may thrust themselves into the domestic situation. President Hoover still has Congress on his hands, and Congress, even if the Democrats should capture the Senate, will be faced by a President fixedly determined to veto the bonus and press for his own economy and taxation plans, and perhaps to veto a beer bill.

The President-elect immediately acquires potent influence over his party in Congress. He has not made public his attitude toward legislation which his party pressed through the House. The conflict between Gov. Roosevelt's views and the action of the Democratic House has been pointed out many times. It may be assumed that the House Democrats will modify their program to meet the views of their national leader, who has a right to make such a demand.

What will develop when President-elect Roosevelt takes office? This question can not be answered now. An extra session of the Seventy-third Congress next spring for tariff revision is possible, and pressure for this extra session might become very strong if the forthcoming session should fail to enact a bill legalizing beer.

If the Democrats of the Senate reorganize that body next month the question will arise as to the displacement of Progressives from chairmanships. Senators Norris and Johnson hold important chairmanships, and espoused the cause of Gov. Roosevelt in the campaign. Are they to suffer from the victory they fought for?

Three notable figures will be absent in the Senate in the Seventy-third Congress—Messrs. Watson, of Indiana; Smoot, of Utah, and Bingham, of Connecticut. They have had long and distinguished service and will be greatly missed. The changes in the House are numerous, but that body will remain under the guidance of Speaker Garner until he succeeds Charles Curtis as Vice President.

Now that the hard-fought campaign is over, men and women of all parties have a patriotic duty to perform in supporting the new administration in its efforts to put a speedy end to national adversity. No political maneuvers should be undertaken for the purpose of hampering the new President in his work for all the people. Perhaps a glance backward over the last three years, during which President Hoover has worked faithfully for the nation, will convince partisans that excessive zeal in opposition to the nation's head is prejudicial to the process of recovery from the depression.

WORK FOR MEN AND MONEY.

Two schools of thought as to how recovery from the depression can be accelerated are taking definite shape. The one is well exemplified in the report of the American Federation of Labor on wages and employment, and the other in the program outlined by John J. Raskob, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, in his address in behalf of Gov. Roosevelt.

"Make radical reductions in the high surtaxes on incomes and impose a general sales tax of 1½ per cent if this is necessary temporarily to balance the budget," says Mr. Raskob. "Every effort should be made to * * * loosen capital and encourage it to go to work."

Here is represented the fundamental difference in the philosophy of capital and labor as to what is the best method of getting the economic machine into normal operation once more. Organized labor says that the upward trend has not been maintained as it should have been because workingmen are not earning enough to create an active demand for goods. Hours of work must be shortened, labor leaders say, and wages must be increased, so that all men may work and purchasing power may be restored.

The Federation of Labor does not tackle the problem of how to create jobs and raise wages when great corporations are sustaining large losses. To suddenly increase expenditures for labor when accounts are already in the red is to invite disaster. Labor would do well to take cognizance of this point of view.

On the other hand, to relieve large incomes of surtaxes and place that burden upon the average citizen who is already in financial straits might hamper business while increasing the store of idle capital. Mr. Raskob ought to remember that there is already a considerable volume of cheap money that is waiting an opportunity for investment in sound and profitable business enterprises. Certainly if a large amount of capital should be invested to start the wheels of industry going again, without taking effective steps to increase purchasing power, another wave of overproduction and further depression would be the result.

Either view standing alone is impractical. Business can not increase payrolls from empty budgets with any reasonable assurance that the new buying power thus created will prevent a collapse. Nor can business go forward with a normal output without giving careful attention to the restoration of a market for it. It is obvious that the two programs must be fused—that increased buying power, increased employment and increased industrial activity must be developed simultaneously.

Labor ought to be cautious about demanding higher wages too soon. On the other hand, industry can serve its own interests by giving workingmen and those who are now jobless the benefits of increased business.

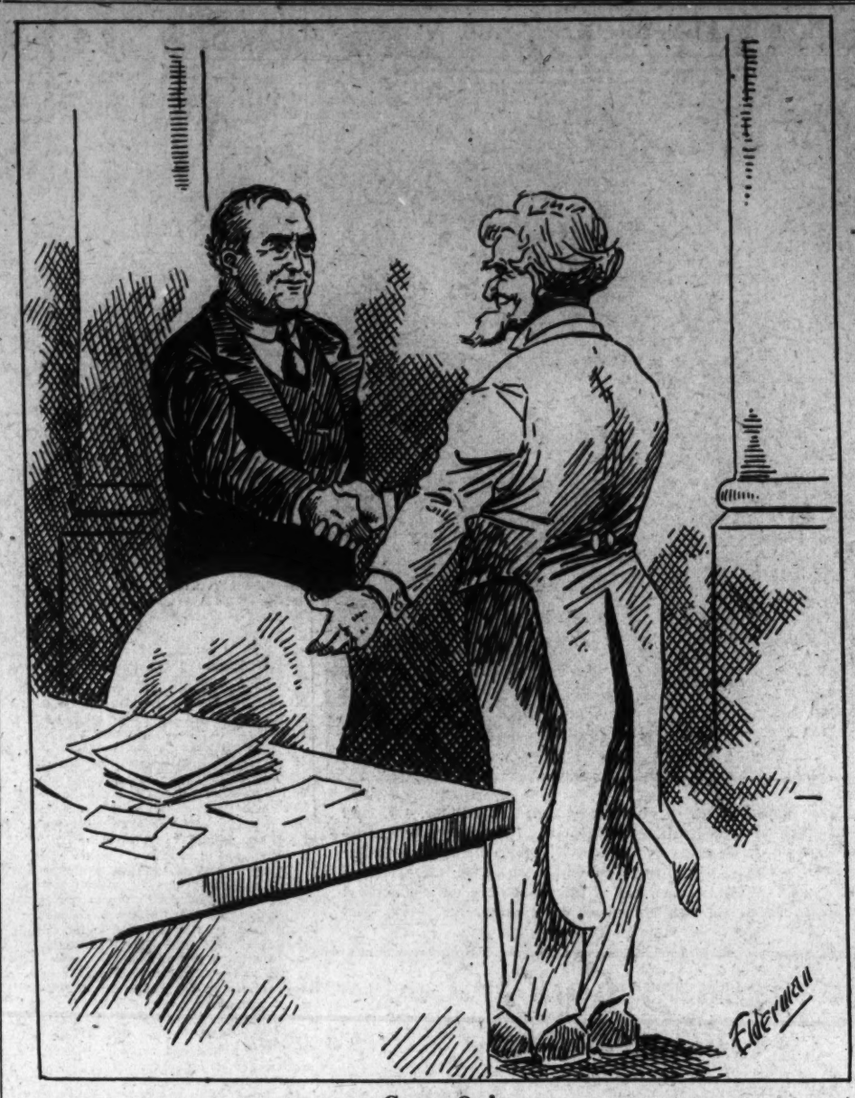
THE RUBAIYAT.

The slow recognition accorded some masterpieces should encourage young authors. In 1851, while poking about in the Bodleian Library at Oxford, Prof. E. B. Cowell happened upon a manuscript of the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam. The beautiful little book, written on parchment, sprinkled with gold dust, was in black ink with delicate illuminations in blue, gold and green. The miniature volume so impressed Cowell that he copied the poem from this earliest known manuscript, dating from 1450, and gave the verses to his friend, Edward FitzGerald, whom he had interested in the study of Persian.

Little by little FitzGerald made a translation, or rather a paraphrase, of the poem, and after several years he submitted it to Frazer's Magazine. Hearing nothing of it for a year he sent for the poem and had 250 copies printed. "I hardly know," he remarked at the time, "why I print any of these things which nobody buys." He gave away a few copies and sent the rest to be sold. When none was bought he reduced the price from five shillings to one, and then at last to a penny.

Rosetti heard of it and showed a copy to Swinburne, which resulted in the sale of six pennies' worth. The price was then doubled, and finally the last copies of the printing were bought up at a guinea or more apiece. Yet the verses were known to but a small group for many years. The popularity of the poem, however, grew steadily. Edition after edition appeared, until it was widely read and admired.

Today the Rubaiyat may be obtained in dozens of editions both in England and America. Special editions for gifts, illustrated, illuminated and annotated, are advertised and displayed at this time of year by shops all over the world. Probably no other poem has ever enjoyed the ubiquitous and perennial popularity of this one.



Carry On!

POST HASTE

Nov. 9—Emergency decree: Open season on all "I told you so's."

Jim Farley copped the election eve record. He put the Nation to sleep with an hour's speech at midnight.

A dish of cold facts is very palatable after that diet of guesses, claims and scrambled estimates.

Of course, you knew who would win all along, but beware the fellow who may think you are just another hindsighter.

Perusal of European comments indicates that they don't know any more about American politics than we do over here.

The Litrygest should investigate why 17,000,000 declined its hayride.

In good time we would remind that paired couple, Tunney and Ford, to register next time.

Today the original Roosevelt man's name is Legion and he is more numerous than.

The promises which will be staked up against the White House entrance will probably necessitate the new tenant entering by the back door.

Don't hold your stop-watch, but how long do you think the farmers will be patient waiting for a miracle?

Waste no tears on New York. She bites herself with a Tammany victory and likes it.

JUST FOLKS
By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE BISHOP'S CHAIR.

In earlier days when skies were fair
The mother bought a bishop's chair.
A piece of furniture upright
With golden leaves of oak bedight
And carpeted with cushions deep,
On which a bishop well might sleep;
A most pretentious chair which frowns
On happy-hearted fools and clowns
And merry-making youths and waits
For eminence to pass our gates.

It never comes! All entering here
Admire our bishop's chair severe
And praise its leaves and acorns bold.
Hand-carved and touched with glistening gold,
Then promptly turn their backs on it
In happier, humbler chairs to sit.
Even the bishop shakes his head,
And says: "The leather one instead."
None comes with dignity so fat
As to require a chair like that.

Oh, stiff-backed chair with cushions deep
Which for appearances we keep,
The dog which romps at Jane's heels
A most exquisite taste reveals.
Behold her daily sleeping there,
Proud mistress of the bishop's chair!
Sole occupant of pride and pomp!
When finished is her daily romp,
The bishop's chair, I'd tell Your Grace,
Becomes a terrier's sleeping place.

If One Runner Is Lame, Is It Better to Give Him a Start or Cripple the Others?
By ROBERT QUILLEN

JOHN SMITH was a farmer who raised wheat. Every year his fat acres yielded 1,000 bushels and he always had money in his pocket.

But one year when wheat sold at $2 a bushel, John felt rich and borrowed $2,000 to buy an automobile. He wasn't afraid of a little debt like that, for one year's crop of wheat would pay it.

But next year there was a depression. All prices dropped, which means that the price of the dollar went up. Wheat fell to 50 cents a bushel.

And then the bank demanded its money.

"I am ruined," John wailed. "I'll have to pay back four times as much as I borrowed. When I borrowed that $2,000, one year's crop of 1,000 bushels would pay it back. Now it will take 4,000 bushels—all I'll make in four years. The dollar has gone too high. If something isn't done to make money cheaper, I'll never get out of debt."

Other farmers who were in debt felt as John did, and they sent wires to their congressmen demanding cheaper money.

The congressmen were willing to oblige in order to keep their jobs, and they passed the necessary laws to get results.

Now, as everybody knows, the way to cheapen anything is to make it abundant, whether it is wheat or advice or money. So the Government cheapened money by printing billions of paper dollars and using them to pay bonuses and current expenses.

Almost immediately the price of wheat went up. All prices went up. And everybody seemed to have money.

John took his 1,000 bushels of wheat to the miller and chuckled with glee when he heard the price.

"Yes," said the miller, "we're paying $2.50 a bushel—paper. Or 50 cents gold."

"I'll take the paper," said John, "I've got a debt to pay."

So he collected his $2,500, paid his debt at the bank, and walked out happily with $500 in his pocket. He felt rich again.

At the store where he always traded he stopped to buy a pair of shoes.

"The same old $5 kind," he told the clerk.

"They're $25 now," said the clerk, "in paper. Or $5 in gold. Paper money isn't worth anything. I'm getting $25 a week and it takes me all week to earn a pair of shoes. I wish you farmers had used your head instead of ruining good money."

"We had to cheapen money," said John, "to get out of debt."

"Rats!" said the clerk. "You didn't want cheap money. You wanted an easy way to pay your debts. Why didn't you demand a law allowing you to settle at 25 cents on the dollar?"

"I reckon," said John, "we didn't have sense enough."

PRO AND CON

The Scottsboro Case.
New York Times.

The decision by the Supreme Court ordering a new trial for the seven Negroes under sentence of death in Alabama turned wholly upon "due process of law." The right to it in all matters affecting life and property is guaranteed by the Constitution to the humblest citizen of the United States. Other alleged grounds of appeal were urged upon the Supreme Court, but all of them were brushed aside. Did the convicted youths have a fair trial? That was the question into which the Supreme Court looked painstakingly, assembling all the relevant facts, before it decided in the negative. The opinion was written by Mr. Justice Sutherland, who has often been called the most "reactionary" member of the Supreme Court, so that it cannot be set down to a weak sentimentalism.

Neither can it have been due to the outcry in Washington and in other cities, as well as in Moscow and by European Communists, asserting that a spirit of wicked class prejudice pervades the United States, and that here no justice can be had for the poor and ignorant.

Wake Up!
Chicago Tribune.

"Old Letters Discovered in Philadelphia Prove Ben Franklin First of the Nudists."—Headline. It's taken over a hundred years for Philadelphia to find that out. Next thing down there they'll discover he's dead.

Federal Road Aid.
Houston Post.

The extent to which the Federal Government is giving financial aid to the States in highway building is disclosed in the announcement from Washington that thus far this year $72,000,000 has been allotted.

Under the emergency appropriation bill a total of $120,000,000 is to be distributed, but it is stipulated in the law that one-fourth of the amount each State may claim must be held back until after November 1, in order to promote employment during the winter months. This is a wise provision. Highway building can be carried on in winter months, especially in States with mild climates, as well as in the summer period, and there is greater need for employment in winter than in summer.

Justice Strengthened.
New York Herald Tribune.

The action of the Supreme Court in ordering a new trial for the seven Negroes convicted in the Scottsboro case will be generally received, we think, with satisfaction and relief. No one cares to see the death penalty carried out where any doubt remains, and it was impossible to feel that the original trial, hastily and apparently carelessly conducted in a natural atmosphere of prejudice, had really established the defendants' guilt beyond reasonable doubt. In the broad view, a new trial can only strengthen confidence in our justice.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Failure to Punish Criminals Is Making Community Unsafe—Automobile a Crime Problem.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Judging from the manner in which lawbreakers are dealt with in places in this country, we may have little hope of improvement for a time.

The Post of October 31 reported a case of a gangster in Detroit who was shot to death while registering in a hotel there. He was shot four times by a fellow gangster who said he had been "double-crossed" by the victim. Police said the killed man had been arrested fifteen times, twice for kidnaping and five times for robbery, but was known to have served time only once!

The first kidnaping should have put him in jail for 25 years at least. If the authorities would arrest and jail fifteen criminals, instead of arresting one fifteen times, the victims of their lawbreaking might fare better.

Maryland authorities seem to have sent one or more members of the "Black Shirt" gang to jail for three months for highway robbery in southern Maryland! A woman who passed a bad check for $3.64 in a local department store gets 180 days for the act!

So many crimes are committed today by the aid of the automobile that it would seem well to adopt French methods regarding driver's licenses.

In France it is very difficult for one to use a license issued to somebody else, as the license must bear the signature and photograph of the driver to whom it is issued. To obtain a license one must produce identity papers and must show that he has never been convicted of an offense.

The crime in and about this city today is a shame and disgrace to the country and every reasonable method should be put into action to put a stop to it. In "making the world safe for democracy" let us give some attention to making our city a safe place for merchants to do business in, and for its citizens to live in.

H. BRADFORD.

R. F. Golden Thinks Americans Have Learned More From Depression Than Have English.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The following article by Prof. T. E. Gregory, in the London Spectator, is interesting as it gives an Englishman's view that Americans have learned nothing from the depression:

"It has been my privilege to visit the United States in the summer of every year since 1928, and to have had the opportunity, therefore, of studying on the spot both the changes in public opinion and in the economic situation. . . . I left the United States on this occasion with a very definite impression that Americans as a whole have learned nothing from the depression; that the next heavy outbreak of speculative fever will be as bad as the last, and that America as a whole does not want a stabilized world. What people do want is a rising stock market in which they can recover some of the losses of the past. Nothing is more striking to an Englishman, in the present phase of the world depression, than the almost complete absence of any rational discussion in the press of the problem and the magnitude of unemployment."

I would like to say that the American people have learned a great deal from the depression, and what is more, the steps taken to overcome the depression here far exceed those that England has taken. America today is far better off financially than is England. The English may be smart, but I still think the American is always just a little ahead of the Englishman. R. F. GOLDEN.

Writers Commended for Organizing to Combat Obscene Fiction.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The organization of American popular story writers, which has undertaken an ambitious program for the improvement of American fiction, is to be commended for its work. The desired end is to free the American home from the pernicious influences of sordid sex stories and gangster hero stories which stimulate in adolescent minds an unhealthy and dangerous desire for emulation.

The works approved by the organization are those which are wholesome, clean, heroic and those which appeal to the highest ideals of American youth of both sexes. It has set out to prove that good clean stories appeal to readers of all ages in a way that is normal and wholesome.

If writers, publishers and the public in general will give full cooperation to this movement the newsstands will soon be rid of many of the obscene publications they now carry. C. C. PARSONS.

Congress Is Asked to Prohibit Red Agitations in Capital.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It seems to me that it is about time to warn professional agitators from other cities, who come here to encourage and lead public demonstrations of the discontented, to keep away from the National Capital. Those who carry banners under the lead of such persons are simply dupes. They are not so much interested in any particular reform as they are in trying to make a farce of ordered government.

Any habitual local agitators should be kept under special oversight of the police. The fathers of the Nation wanted to make the District of Columbia a place where the lawmakers could do their work in peace and quiet. But there seems to be a regular movement to make it more and more a place of red agitation. I think it is about time for Congress to preserve the lawmaking peace and quiet of the District by passing special police regulations in restraint of red agitation. A. R. THOMAS.

REPUBLICAN TICKET CAPTURES VERMONT

President 10,000 Ahead, With State Candidates Also in Lead.

Montpelier, Vt., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—President Hoover had a lead of approximately 10,000 votes over Franklin D. Roosevelt, as nearly one-half of the States' 248 cities and towns reported the vote in today's election.

A traditionally Republican State, Vermont gave Hoover 25,154 votes in the districts reported as against 15,275 for his Democratic opponent.

The contests for United States senator, governor and Congress also showed a lead for the Republicans, although that of Porter H. Dale, Republican incumbent seeking reelection to the Senate, and Fred C. Martin, his Democratic opponent, was far closer than the others.

Dale's margin was about 6,000 votes, while that of Gov. Stanley C. Wilson, Republican incumbent, was more than two to one over James P. Leamy, Democrat.

Representative Ernest W. Gibson, Republican, who sought to occupy Vermont's only congressional seat after March 4, had a lead of more than two to one over Joseph A. McNamara, Democrat, with approximately one-third of the State vote recorded.

Ballot Is Refused To Senator Lewis

His and Wife's Names Are Absent From Books; Protest Promised.

Chicago, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Senator James Hamilton Lewis and his wife were unable to cast their votes for the Democratic ticket today. They appeared at the voting place and asked for their ballots.

"I'm sorry, senator," said Miss Catherline Nolan, election judge, "we don't find your names in the poll books and can't permit you to have ballots."

The senator was obviously surprised.

"That's very strange," he said, "I filled out my application in Washington and mailed it here."

Mrs. Lewis said she had asked an attorney to register her name while she was in Europe. The senator said he would protest to the election commission.

Hoover Trails and Nye Leads in North Dakota

Fargo, N. Dak., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Early returns gave Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt a slight lead over Herbert Hoover for the Presidency tonight. The Democratic candidate for governor, N. C. De Puy, led his Republican opponent, William Langer, 2,191 to 1,749 on returns from nineteen precincts.

President Hoover carried the State in 1928 with 131,441 votes to 106,648 for Alfred E. Smith. U. S. Senator Gerald P. Nye, Republican, seeking reelection, took an early lead in twelve scattered precincts. Nye received 652 votes to 487 for P. W. Lanier, Democrat.

BishopCannon Reported Failing to Cast Ballot

Richmond, Va., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—The Times-Dispatch says Bishop James Cannon, jr., who led victorious fights for President Hoover in Virginia and other Southern States in 1928, did not vote in today's election.

He did not appear in person at the precinct in Blackstone, Va., the paper says and did not cast an absentee ballot. The Methodist churchman announced last week he would support President Hoover.

Woman Chosen Mayor Of Mason City, W. Va.

Mason City, W. Va., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Mason City now has a woman for mayor. Mrs. Joanne F. Strode was named by city council last night to serve the unexpired term of her husband, A. E. Strode, killed in an automobile accident two weeks ago. The term ends next July.

Mrs. Strode, a Democrat, said after her selection that her "main ambition is to put Mason City on the map."

Election Wager Loser Must Peddle Papers

Greensboro, N. C., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—O. W. Duke, attorney, and B. F. Blakeman, shorthand instructor, both want to see the presidential inauguration March 4. So one of them will sell papers on a street corner Wednesday instead of on Inaugural Day.

They made a bet about the election and the one that loses must sell newspapers. The date for the selling first was set for March 4, but by agreement it was moved up to Wednesday.

Election Loser to Make Jump From Parachute

Council Bluffs, Iowa, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—No matter which presidential candidate wins, some one is going to make a parachute jump here.

Under terms of a bet between Dr. Al Brown, dentist, and Harold Nyman, transport pilot, Nyman will "bail out" if Hoover wins. If Roosevelt wins, Dr. Brown has agreed to make the jump. Neither has ever jumped before.

Veteran, 98 Years, Casts 20th Presidential Ballot

Salem, Ohio, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Levim Stamp, 98-year-old Civil War veteran, today cast his twentieth presidential ballot. His first presidential vote was for Gen. John C. Fremont, who was defeated in 1856 by James Buchanan.

That was the only time, Mr. Stamp said today, that he voted for a loser. Today he chose Hoover.

DEMOCRATS LEAD IN KANSAS CITIES

Roosevelt-Garner Ticket Has Scant Margin in Home State of Curtis.

Topeka, Kans., Nov. 8.—Scattered returns before the polls closed in Kansas tonight gave Roosevelt and Garner a narrow lead over the Republican national ticket in the normally Republican home State of Vice President Charles Curtis.

The reports were virtually all from the larger cities, where double election boards hastened the count. Precincts in agricultural communities still were to be heard from.

Returns from 30 cities and counties gave the Democratic presidential ticket a margin of 1,649 votes. In Kansas City, Kans., the largest city in the State, Roosevelt led President Hoover by 2,000 votes. Topeka, the home city of Vice President Curtis, gave 1,562 votes to Hoover and Curtis to 1,056 for the Democrats. In a little more than half of the places reporting, the Republicans were in the lead.

In the stirring three-cornered race for governor, Dr. John R. Brinkley, Milford hospital owner and "goat gland" specialist, was trailing in third place as an independent candidate, but the rural sections regarded as his stronghold had not reported.

Alfred M. Landon, the Republican nominee, was in the van by a close margin over Gov. Harry H. Woodring, Democrat, who seeks to disprove the old adage that a Democratic governor is never reelected in Kansas.

Heavy scratching of ballots was evident. The vote was large in all parts of the State, despite raw weather and rain and snow.

Kansas has been in the Democratic column for President on only three occasions, ving given its electoral votes twice to President Wilson and to Bryan in 1896.

Georgia Majority Sets Vote Record

Roosevelt Rolls Up Largest Lead Ever Given to White House Entry.

Atlanta, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Georgia in the election today gave Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt the greatest majority for President it has ever given any candidate for that office. From the mountains to the sea counties vied with one another in polling majorities for the New York governor.

Gov. Roosevelt had received 124,158 votes to 8,092 for President Herbert Hoover when returns were reported from 924 precincts.

John D. Rockefeller, Busy, Foregoes Vote

Tarrytown, N. Y., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Because of the press of activities in connection with his preparations to leave for his annual trip to Florida, John D. Rockefeller, sr., decided today not to go to New York City to vote.

The elderly oil man was registered for voting purposes from his city address. The threat of cold weather was said to be responsible for Mr. Rockefeller's decision to leave early this year for his winter home. He expects to depart by train either tomorrow or Friday.

ROOSEVELT'S LEAD MOUNTS IN ILLINOIS

Dieterich Leads Glenn for Senate; Horner Ahead for Governorship.

Chicago, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—A devastating onslaught of Democratic voters in numbers probably unprecedented in this State seemed tonight to have taken Illinois by storm for Franklin D. Roosevelt and to have downed every Republican aspirant for State office.

The Democratic presidential candidate had outstripped President Hoover by 414,783 votes when 40 per cent of the State had counted its ballots—185,000 of the plurality from Chicago. The vote in 3,003 precincts out of 7,211: Roosevelt, 1,252,708; Hoover, 847,923.

2 Nonagenarians Vote 18th Time for President

Winfield, Kans., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—W. H. Weber, 94, and John E. Pickard, 91, Winfield's two oldest men, today cast their eighteenth ballot for a Republican presidential candidate. Both voted for Lincoln and have never missed an election since. They are Civil War veterans.

Arkansas Spurns Tax Amendments

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Heavy majorities against eight proposed constitutional amendments, which included a 1 per cent general sales tax and exemption of homesteads from all taxation, were shown in early returns tonight from the general election in Arkansas, while the usual large Democratic majorities were recorded for the national and State tickets.

Returns from 317 precincts out of 2,100 gave Gov. Roosevelt 29,239; President Hoover, 2,840, and Norman Thomas, 117.

Senator Hattie W. Caraway, the only woman United States senator, was elected to a full six-year term along with other Democratic nominees, who included J. M. Futrell, 60-year-old chancellor of Paragould, for governor.

New Ashford, Mass., Again Leads U. S. in Early Voting

(Associated Press.)

Coffee and doughnuts and the hope of beating the rest of the country again led the voters in New Ashford, Mass., yesterday to finish their balloting before anybody else.

So for the fifth successive presidential year, the New Ashford announcement at 6:28 a. m. (E. S. T.) was far earlier than any other.

The runner-up was Peru, Mass., at 8:15, while the Forty-ninth precinct at Houston, Tex., where the time is an hour behind Massachusetts, came in third at 9 a. m.

New Ashford voted 24 for Hoover and 8 for Roosevelt, with one presidential ballot blank. In 1928 the total was Hoover, 28; Smith, 3.

Peru gave 37 to Hoover and 23 to Roosevelt, while the Houston precinct reported Roosevelt, 20; Hoover, 1. The blank presidential ballot was one thing that made the New Ashford announcement two minutes later than last year. It made judges recheck.

Another hitch there was that Gregory Makaroff, 50, who lived 2 miles from the schoolhouse where the votes were cast, refused to ride to the free coffee and doughnuts which were offered so no time would be lost fixing breakfast at home.

Makaroff walked and carried a Roosevelt banner.

The New Ashford polls opened at 5:45, a dozen alarm clocks having routed the voters from their beds. A woman, Mrs. Lillian Sanford Proctor, was the first to vote.

Thirty-three of the 34 qualified voters used their privilege. One, a woman, was in a North Adams hospital and her ballot was not included in the vote reported.

G.O.P. TAKES MAINE, BUT MARGIN IS CUT

Democrats Win Home County of Governor-Elect and Several Cities.

Portland, Me., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Maine swept back into the Republican column tonight after the Democratic victory in the State election two months ago, but with a majority greatly reduced from that of four years ago.

With only 31 scattered precincts out of 632 missing, and most of those of small voting strength, the count was: Hoover, 160,102; Roosevelt, 121,894.

The Democrats broke through to carry Androscoggin County, home of Democratic Gov.-elect Louis J. Brann, 14,464 to 9,810, while the best they could do in that comparatively strong Democratic section in 1928 was to come within 800 votes of the Republicans.

Roosevelt made inroads in every county and carried the cities of Biddeford, Lewiston, Old Town and Waterville. Old Town returned a majority of less than 200 for Hoover four years ago, while the others went Democratic at that time also.

Girl Born to Mrs. Gorguloff.

Paris, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Mrs. Paul Gorguloff, whose husband was executed in September for the assassination of President Doumer, gave birth to a daughter in Switzerland yesterday.

G. O. P. Straight Ticket Victorious in Vermont

Montpelier, Vt., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Complete returns from Vermont in today's election showed the usual Republican majority for President, governor, United States senator and Congress.

Peru Reported Taking 10 Planes to Iquitos

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Nov. 8 (A.P.)—Reports from the Colombian-Peruvian border today said ten Peruvian airplanes had been taken to Iquitos followed by a river steamer with eight pilots and a quantity of guns and ammunition.

HOOVER'S LEAD FAIR IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

Moses Ahead, but Is Behind 1926 Margin; G. O. P.'s Success Likely.

Manchester, N. H., Nov. 8 (A.P.). United States Senator George H. Moses was trailing his Democratic opponent, Fred H. Brown, by 300 votes tonight with only 23 of the 291 election precincts to be reported. Brown backers contended that the Moses strength had been exhausted and that further returns would augment the lead of Brown who is a former governor and present public service commissioner.

Manchester, N. H., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—President Hoover was building a lead in New Hampshire and other Republican candidates for major offices in the State were following in his wake, tabulated returns from more than half the election precincts showed tonight.

One hundred and seventy out of 294 towns and city wards gave: Hoover, 40,739; Roosevelt, 30,412.

George H. Moses, senior U. S. senator from New Hampshire, was leading in his contest to retain his seat, but his lead over Fred H. Brown (D.), was far less than his margins in the same districts six years ago when he defeated Robert C. Murchie. With 160 of the 294 election precincts tabulated, Moses had 34,964 against 26,822 for Brown.

Gov. John G. Winant, Republican, with the same districts reported, had 38,177 votes as contracted to 23,380 for his opponent, Henri T. Ledoux, Democrat, Nashua postmaster and the first of French extraction ever to receive the gubernatorial nomination from either party in the State.

William N. Rogers, Democrat, was falling behind in his contest to retain his chair in the national House of Representatives. With 60 of the 129 election precincts reported, Rogers had 12,757 votes against 16,233 for his Republican opponent, William Parker Straw, Manchester business man and former mill agent.

In the Second Congressional District former Gov. Charles W. Tobey, Republican, with 100 of the 165 districts in, had 19,858 votes and his opponent, Jeremiah J. Doyle, Democrat, had 12,995. This district normally is Republican.

West Virginia Adds To Roosevelt Lead

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—A tradition shattering vote from one-fifth of West Virginia's precincts tonight carried a lead for Gov. Roosevelt over President Hoover beyond the 10,000 mark.

H. G. Kump, the Democratic nominee for governor, was more than 8,000 ahead of T. C. Townsend, Republican, as returns only served to increase the majorities, which four years ago were handed to Republican candidates.

West Virginia has failed to go completely Democratic in 40 years. With 472 of the State's 2,340 precincts reported Roosevelt had 80,905 votes while Hoover had 70,098. In 471 precincts Kump led Townsend 80,421 to 72,385. Democrats were leading in five of the six congressional races. Returns were slow coming in, particularly in rural districts.

Blank Ballot Deposited By Angry Man in Utah

Salt Lake City, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—E. L. Sloan appeared at his polling place at 7 o'clock this morning and found it not yet open. When the election officials arrived two minutes later, he was so exasperated, they reported, that he dropped his ballot into the box unmarked and left in high dudgeon.

They retrieved the ballot, however, and persuaded Mr. Sloan over the telephone to come back and exercise his franchise.

GARNER AND FAMILY LEARN OF TRIUMPH

Uvalde, Tex., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—John N. Garner, Democratic candidate for the Vice Presidency, listened to election returns tonight in the home of his son, Tully Garner, Uvalde banker.

"What's that, New York almost two to one for Roosevelt-Garner?" asked the Texan. "Well, that settles it."

The candidate was surrounded by Mrs. Garner, his lifetime congressional secretary; his son and daughter-in-law and their child, Genevieve.

"I'm going to bed at 9 o'clock in spite of everything," Garner said. "I am sure this thing will make me the next Vice President of the United States."

Message to Roosevelt.

One of the first telephone calls received by Speaker Garner came from James E. Ferguson, husband of the Democratic nominee for Governor of Texas.

"Let Jim say what he told me," Speaker Garner said afterward. "He did the talking."

Speaker Garner also sent Gov. Roosevelt a telegram, but he refused to divulge its contents.

"Let Mr. Roosevelt give it out," he said.

Speaker Garner returned early in the evening from an all-day trip to the country.

He was one of the first to present himself at the Uvalde County courthouse to vote, soon after the polls opened at 8 a. m.

His partner for the day, Bee Morrison, was with him and soon after "Cactus Jack" had disposed of the cumbersome ballot, voting it straight right out in the open, where a small group of onlookers could see and news cameras could record, the two drove away.

Fishes and Hunts.

Mrs. Garner and the Garners' son, Tully, and the latter's wife, did not appear at the polls until later.

The vice presidential candidate was up early as usual. He went for a walk around his pecan orchard just as the sun came peeping over the eastern horizon. During the night a "fresh norther" had blown up and he went about scanning the ground to see how many nuts the wind had knocked off the trees.

Since his arrival here Saturday, Mr. Garner had spent most of his time in the weeds fishing and hunting. He has been to town once or twice to exchange greetings with the cattle, sheep and goat men but he did not tarry long.

Poses for Camera Men.

The candidate returned to his home shortly after 3 o'clock with a string of bass, the largest of which weighed 5½ pounds. He was in fine humor and posed for as many photographs as the news men wanted.

"I want you boys to know I love you," he said, "especially may I say that of the Associated Press.

"That, fellows, is a great news-gathering organization and any representative it sends to me certainly shall be given every consideration by me."

President and Oddie Are Trailing in Nevada

Reno, Nev., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—With Franklin D. Roosevelt steadily increasing his lead over President Hoover in Nevada, interest in the election in this State turned tonight to the unexpected upheaval which found the veteran Republican Senator Tasker L. Oddie trailing P. A. McCarran, the Democratic candidate, on the basis of early returns.

Seeking a third term in the United States Senate, Oddie was behind, 2,120 to 2,275, on the basis of complete and incomplete returns from 79 out of 225 precincts. Roosevelt, meanwhile, had piled up 2,995 votes to Hoover's 1,574.

Early Idaho Vote Favors Roosevelt

Borah's Home State Gives Lead to Democratic Candidates.

Boise, Idaho, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Early returns appeared to carry Idaho into the Democratic columns tonight. In 46 of the 819 precincts in the State, Gov. Roosevelt received 7,398 votes to 5,841 for President Hoover.

The same reports, which came from a widely scattered territory, both urban and rural, gave sharp leads to the rest of the major Democratic candidates on the State and Congressional tickets. Senator John Thomas, Republican, campaigning for reelection, received 6,037 votes, while his Democratic opponent, James P. Pope, received 7,642.

Representative Burton L. French, Republican in the First District, fell behind his Democratic opponent, Compton I. White, 2,880 to 3,758. Representative Addison T. Smith, Republican, seeking reelection, also was behind his Democratic opponent, T. C. Coffin, 3,009 to 4,338.

Too Late to Change, Says Republican, 101

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Otis B. Cowles, 101 just two days ago, walked the 250 feet from his home at South Onandaga to a village polling place and cast his 21st vote for President today.

"Boys," he said, "I think you ought to set 'em up."

Mr. Cowles said he had voted the Republican ticket "ever since that party was organized in 1856, and I'm not going to vote for any other party at my age." His first ballot was cast, he said, for Gen. Scott, Whig presidential candidate in 1852, just 80 years ago. Franklin Pierce, Democrat, was elected that year.

Sackett Crosses Ocean To Cast Vote, but Can't

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Ambassador and Mrs. Frederic M. Sackett, of Louisville, came all the way from Germany to vote and then discovered they were not entitled to cast their ballots because neither had registered under the new law.

When the case of Sackett, who is United States Ambassador at Berlin, was explained at registration headquarters, Democratic attorneys agreed to waive objections, but there was no legal way for the circuit judge to sign an authorization allowing him and his wife to vote.

CURTIS GETS EARLY RETURNS AT TOPEKA

Vice President Declines to Comment on Bulletins After Voting.

Declining to ride in an automobile placed at his disposal, he walked the three blocks from his home to the Polk schoolhouse, where, as four years ago, he exercised his franchise. His sister, Mrs. Jerome Calvin, accompanied him.

When they appeared at the polls shortly after 10 a. m., all the booths were occupied and the Vice President and his sister waited their turn to vote. Mr. Curtis chatted with reporters, expressing optimism as to the outcome of the election, and posed for a photographer.

Later in the day he went to the downtown office of his friend, Clyde Miller, insurance company president, where some of the Associated Press bulletins were conveyed to him by telephone. He withheld comment.

Mr. Curtis arrived in Topeka early this morning from Eldorado, Kans., where he concluded his stumping campaign. He arranged to depart by train tonight for Washington by way of Kansas City and Chicago.

Democratic 'Slam' Seen in Missouri

Overwhelming Trend for Roosevelt and Entire Party Ticket.

St. Louis, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—The constantly-increasing lead of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt had reached such proportions late tonight as to indicate the probability of a Democratic grand slam in Missouri today. All Democratic State, judicial and congressional candidates were far ahead.

Missouri has gone Republican in the last three presidential elections. With 1,037 of the State's 4,233 precincts reported, Roosevelt had 171,021 votes, while President Hoover had 72,862.

Many counties which went for President Hoover four years ago reversed themselves completely today.

Due to the absence of congressional districts since the last reapportionment, which reduced the number of Missouri's representatives from 16 to 13, congressional candidates are running at large for the first time in the State's history. In most cases, the 13 Democratic nominees were leading by a ratio of approximately 2 to 1, and barring a late and decisive change in the trend, none of the Republicans appeared to have a chance of election.

Connecticut Vote Safe for Hoover

President Wins by Close Margin, but Trumbull and Bingham Lose.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—President Hoover won Connecticut's eight electoral votes by a narrow margin today, virtually complete unofficial returns showed, but a Democratic senator was chosen to replace Hiram Bingham and Gov. Wilbur L. Cross (Democrat) was reelected.

With only 16 small towns missing, President Hoover had a 3,400 lead over the New York Governor in this normally Republican State, which he carried four years ago by 44,000. The vote was: Hoover, 276,944; Roosevelt, 273,500.

Gov. Roosevelt led in all the cities, but the small towns overturned the margin. In the rural sections, however, many voters split their tickets to give Gov. Cross, 70-year-old retired Yale dean, the largest vote of any nominee. He defeated his Republican predecessor, John H. Trumbull, by about 13,000 votes, while Lonergan led Bingham, active antiprohibitionist, by nearly 10,000. Lonergan also is pledged to prohibition repeal.

PENNSYLVANIA VOTE SWINGS TO HOOVER

Allegheny in Upset Goes for Roosevelt; Davis Leads in Senate Race.

Philadelphia (Wednesday), Nov. 9 (A.P.).—The tide of Pennsylvania's presidential vote turned slowly but surely to President Hoover early today, surging out of Eastern counties, ripping uncertainly through central regions and being dammed abruptly in Pittsburgh.

Speeded by the use of voting machines, Philadelphia's "light" downtown wards gave Hoover more than half his first 100,000 plurality, compiled shortly after midnight.

Neighboring counties increased that total.

Allegheny, great industrial area and scene of consistent Republican triumphs, however, upset traditions and predictions and handed Gov. Roosevelt an 8,000 margin in slightly less than 200 districts.

Riding the crest, United States Senator James J. Davis, seeking reelection, shook off his Democratic opposition and forged comfortably ahead of Lawrence H. Rupp, Democratic Allentown lawyer, and like Davis a lodgeman.

The figures:

Smashed Precedents Mark Roosevelt's Political Life

President-Elect Started Career With Attack on "Bossism" and Has Followed It With Fights on Tammany and Other Ruling Organizations.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—The country's choice for the Presidency, Franklin D. Roosevelt, leaped into the political arena 22 years ago with a slashing attack on "bossism" and has been bowling over precedents and time-endeared traditions ever since.

Inspired by the career of his cousin, the late Theodore Roosevelt, the President-elect bolted his party chiefs as a young senator in 1910 and forced Tammany Hall to bow to his wishes.

In his presidential campaign, Mr. Roosevelt set out to champion the cause of the "forgotten man," declaring his belief that the country's chief problems are interwoven with unemployment and industrial and agricultural insecurity.

Mr. Roosevelt, now 50, entered politics soon after his graduation from Harvard and Columbia.

Dutchess County was Republican. The leaders of the controlling party laughed openly when the tall, robust young son of James Roosevelt announced he was a candidate for the Senate.

In a none too reliable automobile, a new contrivance of that day, Roosevelt and Louis McHenry Howe, a reporter, dashed over the country roads of the Hudson Valley District, meeting farmers in their fields and talking at every cross roads. Roosevelt won.

Howe since then has been Mr. Roosevelt's closest adviser and one of his intimate friends.

Fight on Tammany Hall.

Scarcely had young Roosevelt settled himself in the Senate before he was battling Tammany Hall and leading a revolt against the election of Tammany's choice for the United States Senate. The deadlock continued for months and eventually Tammany shelved its choice and put up a compromise that the balky Democrats accepted.

Mr. Roosevelt was to find Tammany against him two decades later when the prize was the party's nomination for the Presidency. Throughout the Chicago convention John F. Curry, the Tammany leader, held his group away from Roosevelt. Tammany supported former Gov. Alfred E. Smith to the end.

Roosevelt found himself again at odds with Tammany when Mayor "Jimmy" Walker was called before him on ouster charges. Walker's resignation made a Roosevelt decision unnecessary.

After one term in the State Senate the young New Yorker went to Washington as assistant to Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels. Daniels had seen the active and enthusiastic Roosevelt at the Baltimore convention working for Woodrow Wilson and had liked him.

Was "Tough Guy" in War.

Daniels turned over a lot of work to Roosevelt and the World War activities provided an outlet for his energy. One who admired his enthusiasm and action in those days was Joseph P. Kennedy, Boston and New York financier, who was in charge of the Bethlehem Steel Co.'s plant at Providence, R. I.

"He was a tough guy in those days," said Kennedy. "He didn't let anything stand in the way of the output of warcraft and materials."

In 1920 Roosevelt began nominating Alfred E. Smith for the Presidency. He seconded the Smith nomination at San Francisco. When James Madison Cox, of Ohio, won, the factions all centered on Roosevelt as his running mate.

Roosevelt stumped the country from end to end. His press representative that year was Marvin McIntyre, a Kentuckian, who served that role again this year.

Infantile paralysis struck at Mr. Roosevelt in 1921. He immediately began his successful fight to gain control of his lower limbs.

Seldom Complained.

As soon as he was on the road to recovery, Mrs. Roosevelt and Howe began surrounding him with his friends of Washington, New York and Albany. Only once did a member of the Roosevelt household hear him cry out against his ill fortune. He once became impatient because he could not jump up and rush out for some papers that an aid was slow in bringing to him.

Between 1921 and 1924 he devoted most of his time to making a living as an insurance executive and to efforts to restore muscles of his legs incapacitated by paralysis. Some of his time, however, was given to letter writing and to informal visits with political leaders. He is a prodigious letter writer and for years has maintained contacts with hundreds of persons scattered throughout the world.

He emerged from his seclusion to nominate Smith, and to label him with the unforgettable "Happy Warrior." He marshaled the Smith forces in that bitter battle at Madison Square Garden. Roosevelt sought to have both Smith and William Gibbs McAdoo withdraw in the interest of party harmony. McAdoo refused. McAdoo eight years later was to insure Roosevelt's nomination over Smith when he announced that California and Texas had forsaken Speaker John N. Garner for the New Yorker.

Work as Governor.

Again in 1928, Roosevelt, this time much improved in his walking, nominated Smith. He yielded to Smith, John J. Raskob, national chairman; Herbert H. Lehman, New York banking friend, and others and ran for governor.

Smith lost and Roosevelt won by a scant 28,000 votes. Immediately he set to work building a Democratic machine upstate, never before sought by the Democrats. James A. Farley, smiling, friendly chairman of the State Boxing Commission, was the spearhead of Roosevelt's drive into Republican territory. Farley seemed never to tire, or lose his calm exterior. In 1930 Roosevelt won by the unprecedented plurality of 728,000 votes.

Not long afterward, Farley packed his bags and was off to find out what the country thought of "F. D." Where thought was lacking, "Big Jim" supplied it. He "sold" Roosevelt in every State and tied up many State delegations for the next convention.

Roosevelt, never a devotee of precedent, disregarded many in his campaign for the Presidency. He flew to Chicago to deliver his acceptance to the delegates that named him. He went on long campaign trips when advisers said long swings were fatal to presidential hopes. He visited the South.

Backed by Independents.

The New York Governor said his fight was not with the "rank and file of the Republican party but with the leadership," and attracted a group of Republican independents, Senators Norris of Nebraska, La Follette of Wisconsin, Johnson of California and Cutting of New Mexico, to his cause.

He traveled more than 17,000 miles by land, sea and air; visited 37 of the 48 States, and at the end of the strenuous summer said he was "sorry it's over."

The Roosevelts have five children. Anna Eleanor is the wife of Curtis Dall, a New York stock broker. James is married to Betsy Cushing, daughter of the famous surgeon, Dr. Harvey Cushing, of Boston. Elliott is married to Betty Donner, daughter of a Pennsylvania steel magnate. Franklin, jr., and John are students at Groton School in Massachusetts. The Dalls have two children and Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt one.

Besides the ancestral home at Hyde Park, the Governor and Mrs. Roosevelt have homes in New York City, Warm Springs, Ga., and Campobello, New Brunswick.

ROOSEVELT BRINGS TEMPERAMENT OF YOUTH TO WHITE HOUSE

ELECTED CHIEF MAN OF ENGAGING CHARM

White House Old Story to Him, Having Served Eight Years Across Street.

By KIRKE SIMPSON.
(Associated Press.)

Franklin Delano Roosevelt will bring to the White House, as thirty-second President of the United States, something of the atmosphere and outlook of youth.

It is to be discerned in his voice and his buoyant temperament, his smiling approach to most of the problems of life, his eagerness to have a part in the active, stirring current of life and of public service—an eagerness that overrode even the handicap of infantile paralysis when it fell upon him in midcareer.

Mr. Roosevelt will not be the youngest man to be intrusted with the Presidency. That honor goes to his distinguished fifth cousin, Theodore Roosevelt, who was 42 when he was inducted into office at the death of President McKinley.

Franklin Roosevelt will be little more than entered on his fifty-first year when he is inaugurated. Eleven of the 30 men who have preceded him in that high office—Tyler, Polk, Fillmore, Pierce, Grant, Garfield, Arthur, Cleveland, Theodore Roosevelt, Taft and Coolidge—were as young or younger when they took office.

Has Youthful Qualities.

Yet this democratic Roosevelt, despite his physical handicaps, has youthful qualities that will stand him in good stead in the task he faces.

Through his two administrations as Governor of New York, no word has ever come from the executive mansion of the arduous labors he has endured. On the contrary, he reached out eagerly to deal personally with every phase of State activity.

Like his cousin, Franklin Roosevelt will bring to the White House also an atmosphere of family life it has not known since the days of that other Roosevelt.

His own children are grown men and women, rearing families of their own except for the two youngest lads, who are well in their teens.

The White House itself is an old story both to the new President and to Mrs. Roosevelt. They knew it long ago, when she, herself a Roosevelt, was favored among nieces of the late President Roosevelt, and later when they came to Washington to live for nearly eight years during the Wilson administration.

Close to White House.

Franklin Roosevelt's office as Assistant Naval Secretary was then just across the narrow strip of West Executive avenue, in the old War, State and Navy Building, perhaps 200 yards from the room where he is now to sit as President.

It can hardly be doubted that Mr. Roosevelt in those days was observingly conscious that he was himself a humble factor in a careful process of integration of conflicting party interests and personalities with which President Wilson began his term.

For Mr. Wilson built into his Cabinet and "Little Cabinet" slate not only a reflection of the broad outlines of his own political philosophy and economic conceptions, but an interrelationship of factions and groups within the Democratic majorities in House and Senate designed to facilitate a party legislative program.

Success Is Proven.

The success of his effort was attested by the legislative product of those first Wilson years, before the World War intervened to divert the course of peace time developments.

Young Roosevelt saw all that. As State legislator and member of the "Little Cabinet," he was an apt student of practical politics. His own primacy and election campaigns this year won him a reputation for political adroitness and understanding among political observers. And as President-elect and President he will be called upon to exercise those qualities to the highest degree.

The first test will come in selection of his Cabinet. To aid him as he sifts the personal and political qualifications of those to whom he may offer portfolios, Franklin Roosevelt will have intimate memories of his first official years in Washington, just twenty years ago.

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Franklin D. Roosevelt looks forward to his entry into the White House with all of the enthusiasm of a man who had "a wonderful time" battling for the Presidency.

That phrase, the President-elect's own, illuminates his personal reaction to the events and experiences of weeks of arduous campaigning.

It dovetails with the observation by friends and allies in his political joustings that he is "the happy warrior"—fully deserving of the title he applied to Alfred E. Smith in one of the presidential nomination speeches he made in behalf of his predecessor in the New York governorship.

Roosevelt always has given the impression that he enjoys the tasks of public office. Those who traveled with him to the Pacific Coast, to Dixie and into New England believe he found pleasure in the contacts with the public, the almost endless conferences with party leaders, exciting parades and tumultuous public ovations.

Since he entered public life 21 years ago, Roosevelt advanced steadily, with the exception of two setbacks, to the topmost position in party preference—the Democratic candidacy for the White House.

The first obstacle was his defeat as vice presidential candidate in 1920 when the Republican ticket of Warren G. Harding and Calvin Coolidge swept aside the Democratic selections, James M. Cox and Roosevelt.

The next year infantile paralysis attacked Roosevelt, then 39 years old, and left him greatly handicapped in his walking. He had gone from a State senatorship to the Assistant Secretaryship of the Navy during World War days, a vigorous young man of seemingly boundless energy.

Born and reared in an atmosphere of affluence, Roosevelt in his campaign for the Presidency spoke in behalf of the "forgotten man" and urged a "new deal" in Government relationship to society. When some of his opponents in politics classed him as a "radical," he replied that he was "as radical as Jefferson, Jackson, Cleveland, Roosevelt and Wilson."

The Roosevelt he named was his distant cousin, the late President Theodore Roosevelt, like himself a descendant of the first Roosevelt in America, Claes Martensen van Rosevelt, who settled in New Amsterdam in 1644. Both the Roosevelts reached the trail to the White House by way of the governorship and portfolios in the Navy Department.

The present New York executive was induced to emerge from comparative retirement in 1928 when he was devoting all his time to treatment for the after effects of the paralysis. Al Smith, the man he had championed in three national conventions, was the presidential nominee. Smith, desiring to strengthen the ticket in New York State, called on his old friend "Frank" to run for governor.

Roosevelt was at Warm Springs, Ga., a health resort he had discovered four years before. The telephone between New York City and the tiny Georgia hamlet buzzed with politics. Roosevelt demurred, declaring he desired to give a few more years to his fight for health. Eventually he agreed to run.

Smith lost the State and the Presidency. Roosevelt won by a few thousands. Two years later New York returned him to the capitol by the unprecedented plurality of 728,000.

When late in 1931 a rift between Smith and Roosevelt appeared, a State reforestation project was said to have been the dividing issue. Smith opposed a constitutional amendment concerning tree planting on waste lands. Roosevelt championed it and won. By the time the delegates gathered at Chicago last June they were rivals for the nomination and bitterness among their followers had replaced the friendship of two decades.

Smith for weeks after the convention remained silent. Eventually he announced his support of the ticket. The long-awaited meeting between Roosevelt and Smith took place at the State Democratic convention, where both were fighting for the gubernatorial nomination of the lieutenant governor, Herbert H. Lehman.

Despite the physical handicap, confined to his leg muscles, Mr. Roosevelt has been regarded one of the hardest working governors in New York's history.

Ever since he became acquainted with national affairs and the activities of his party, Roosevelt has maintained an extensive correspondence with Democratic leaders and business and industrial captains throughout the country. When James S. Farley, the New York State chairman, began touring the country to line up State delegations for his "chief" he found those letter contacts helpful.

Gov. Roosevelt was 50 years old last January 14. He has five children, Mrs. Curtis Dall, James, Elliott, Franklin and John. His wife, Anna Eleanor, a niece of the late Theodore, is his own distant cousin.

Mr. Roosevelt, on his mother's side, is of Flemish extraction. His maternal ancestors were sea merchants. The ships of the Delanos of Roxbury, Mass., were known to the seven seas. The governor loved the sea. His homes in Hyde Park, New York City, Warm Springs, Ga., and the executive mansion and office in Albany, in library and wall decorations bore evidence of his seafaring bent.

Roosevelt boasted he would break precedent in his campaigning and began the shattering of routine by flying to the Chicago convention and the day after his nomination delivered an acceptance speech to the delegates that had chosen him. He disregarded political warnings of a long campaign trip and went for an 8,900 mile, three weeks' train trip through the Midwest and along the Pacific Coast.

He invaded rock-ribbed Republican Vermont with the bold assertion that he was after every State in the Union. He pointed his attack against the "Republican leadership" and called upon Republicans to join his cause.

Roosevelt carried his campaign into the "Solid South," which Democratic presidential aspirants generally passed over, assuming it was "safely Democratic" anyway.

He called his presidential drive a "look, listen and learn" campaign and frequently reminded his auditors that he was out to ascertain the needs of the country so that "when I go down to Washington I'll know what is needed in every part of the country."

Roosevelt's Election Means D. C. Officialdom's Revision

Rover, Mooney, Possibly Brown, and Many Others Slated to Be Replaced as Democrats Come Into Power; Commissioners Also Affected.

By J. BERNARD McDONNELL.

Election of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt as President will have a direct effect on municipal affairs and officeholders.

The District Commissioners, judges of the courts of the District, the United States marshal, the executive officer of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, the United States district attorney, the recorder of deeds, the city postmaster, the members of the Public Utilities Commission, are among the several officials who serve in the District under appointment of the President.

Some serve indefinitely, some serve for definite periods and it has not been the practice in recent years to apply the spoils system to these offices, although, in truth, it should be said that the Republican Presidents of recent years have given members of their own party preference and have upset the contention that appointments should be on a nonpartisan basis, with, of course, the party in power having dominance.

One thing the election of Franklin D. Roosevelt will do locally, and that is to bring more to the fore the advice and wisdom of local leaders. Samuel J. Prescott, builder, who admitted to White House reporters, that he was the Republican "boss" of the District, will be shunted aside, along with Edward F. Colladay, lawyer, Republican national committeeman and one of the civic leaders of the District.

John F. Costello, Democratic national committeeman, and John B. Colpoys, Democratic State chairman, will assume the task of picking the best men for District posts. Mrs. J. Borden Harriman is the Democratic national committeewoman for the District, but Mrs Harriman has been more concerned with the national aspects of her post than she has been about the weals and woes of the District. In fact, Mrs. Harriman has deserted the District completely in the course of the most hectic national campaign in years. Mrs. Harriman went to Long Island to help the young millionaire Whitney to fight his fight in the blue-blood district against Representative Robert Low Bacon.

There will be, of course, the usual drive by politicians of the various States to have this or that person imposed on the people of the District through appointment to this or that office. There is a legal limitation on the appointing privilege of the President so far as the District Commissioners go, despite the fact that President Hoover set the clear intent of the law at naught through the appointment of Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, retired, as District Commissioner. Gen. Crosby didn't want the job and even said he wasn't eligible under the law, but when pressed he agreed he was a soldier and would go any place and try to do anything his commander in chief commissioned him to do. Probably no other man ever took that particular job so diffidently and was so anxious to convince the people of the District he wasn't a martinet, proud of a heavy military heel to press on their necks. When his present term expires the general will, probably, be glad to get out of a job in which his authority does not begin to encompass his responsibility.

One official head that certainly is due for the chopping block is that of Leo A. Rover, United States district attorney. Mr. Rover has against him not only the fact that he supported Hoover in 1928, when he didn't have to go so far as he did, but that he has been aligned with the Antisaloon League and agreed to the appointment of Capt. Harold Orcutt as assistant district attorney. Capt. Orcutt was named by the Antisaloon League, as the price for abstaining from opposing confirmation of Mr. Rover. It is an open secret that neither Mr. Rover nor his assistants especially approve the prohibition enforcement activities so dear to the heart of the Antisaloon League's man in the District attorney's office. Mr. Rover has made a fine record as a prosecuting attorney, but he has permitted some of his assistants to do so many things desired by the rapacious drys that he can not be tolerated. Mr. Rover is going out, as is Capt. Orcutt and some others.

Incidentally the official head of Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, is not especially safe. Unless Maj. Brown goes back to the policy of Maj. Henry G. Pratt, retired chief of police, he is doomed. It was under Maj. Pratt's dominion that the wild chases after suspected rumrunners and speeders, with shooting and accidents galore, were brought to a halt. Under the administration of the recently ousted Gen. Pelham D. Glassford such episodes became common once more. Maj. Brown is said to be opposed to such circus policing and to be more concerned with protecting business houses and homes against burglary and citizens from assault than he is to achieve newspaper headlines by axing speakeasies.

Edgar C. Snyder, United States marshal, of course, will go. Jefferson S. Coage, recorder of deeds, also will be supplanted, as will William M. Mooney, District postmaster, and some of his assistants.

Man Walks 12 Miles On Snowshoes to Vote

Laramie, Wyo., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Wallace F. Pease, Albany County prosecutor, trudged 12 miles on snowshoes and rode 30 more by train to vote here today.

ROOSEVELT VICTORY IS SEEN SURE IN OHIO

Triumph for Entire State Ticket Indicated by Incomplete Vote.

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Ohio, "Mother of Presidents," and until today stanchly Republican in all but one national election during the 76 years of the Republican party's existence, appeared definitely at midnight tonight to have switched its 1932 allegiance to the Democratic standard from President right on down the line through the State ticket.

As tabulation of a record breaking vote progressed, Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt had a 20,721 majority over President Hoover and was leading almost intact a State party ticket to what Ohio Republican newspapers and party leaders conceded was a Democratic victory.

The presidential vote from 1,354 precincts out of 8,678 gave: Roosevelt, 178,037; Hoover, 157,316.

Republicans were putting up a vigorous fight for the 22 congressional seats and in about half the races were holding a slight advantage over the Democratic foe. Tabulations of the district contests were far in the ruck, however, as principal attention was paid the presidential race by election boards.

Gov. White Far Ahead.

Gov. George White, Democratic incumbent, 60-year-old veteran of the Klondike gold rush, had rolled up a steadily mounting lead over young David S. Ingalls, of Cleveland, the Navy's only war ace and former Assistant Secretary of the Navy in Charge of Aeronautics.

United States Senator Robert J. Bulkley, of Cleveland, Democratic incumbent, was comfortably leading Ohio Attorney General Gilbert Bettman. The vote from 1,083 precincts gave Bulkley 139,546; Bettman, 114,125.

The two Democratic candidates for representative at large, Charles V. Truax and Stephen M. Young, were ahead of their Republican opponents, George H. Bender and L. T. Palmer, by a ratio of approximately 4 to 3.

Chief Justice Carrington T. Marshall, Republican incumbent, was 414 votes ahead of his Democratic opponent in returns from 138 precincts. In the other State contests, Democrats maintained a substantial lead, the ratio varying from 5 to 4 to the extreme of 2 to 1.

Democratic Trend in State.

Norman Thomas, Socialist presidential candidate, on the face of returns from 76 precincts, appeared to have polled less than 1 per cent of the State vote. Election board officials were not immediately tabulating the Socialist votes as they struggled to clear up the votes for major party candidates. Thomas had 132 votes in the 76 precincts, where William D. Upshaw, prohibition candidate, polled 38 votes.

The Democratic trend on the Ohio State ticket was indicated in these late returns on 204 precincts out of 8,678:

For lieutenant governor—Sawyer (D.), 23,808; Palmer (R.), 18,259.

Roosevelt Is Ninth Episcopalian President

Hyde Park, N. Y., Nov. 8. (A.P.). Franklin D. Roosevelt, vestryman of St. James' Church here, will be the ninth Episcopalian President.

Previous adherents of that faith who have been Chief Executives of the Nation were Washington, Madison, Monroe, William Henry Harrison, Tyler, Taylor, Pierce and Arthur.

ONE SLAIN, 5 INJURED AS KENTUCKY VOTES

Old Feud Figures in Fatal Shooting; Balloting Is Heavier Than 1928.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—One man was killed and five wounded in three clashes today as Kentucky voters thronged to the polls in such numbers as to promise to beat the 1928 record of 940,514 ballots in a presidential year.

At Tyrone, in the Bluegrass, Charles Redmond, 40, was shot to death and Sheriff O. Y. Walker, of Anderson County, who lodged Tommy Shyrock, 35, in jail, said he was told the men were enemies of long standing and that Redmond had been drinking and followed Shyrock from the polls to a store, where the shooting occurred. Both men were married.

In the southeastern mountains four were wounded in a disturbance at Four Mile, in Bell County, and at Island Creek, in Pike County, in the extreme western part of the State, Homer Fields, 26, was shot twice in the body and once in the head in an argument said to have started over the election. Roosevelt Elswick, arrested for the shooting, was quoted by the sheriff as saying he fired when Fields and another man "jumped on" him. A physician said Fields had a slight chance to recover.

The Bell County shooting occurred at a schoolhouse being used as a voting place. Officers were told that George Shelton struck James Valentine on the head and then fired a number of shots into the ground, shouting "That's for Roosevelt!" A general fight followed. The four wounded were Paul Miller, 21, an election officer; his brother, Andrew, 18; Huey Rice, 35, and Matt Shelton, 25, brother of George Shelton. The Miller brothers were not expected to recover. Rice was said to have taken no part in the fight, merely being a bystander.

Speculation Is Aroused Over Roosevelt Cabinet

Farley, Smith, Baruch, Glass, Tobin, Traylor and Others Prominent in Party Are Mentioned as Possible Choices of New President.

By J. BERNARD M'DONNELL.

The Cabinets of the various Presidents have played an important part in the making of national history and, with the presidential election over, national attention will focus on the personnel of the Cabinet that is to work with the new President beginning on next March 4.

Allocation of Cabinet posts to various Democratic leaders at this time is purely speculative. President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt has, of course, given no public indication of his prospective selections for the various posts, and James E. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, has sought to answer suggestions that places already have been promised. Mr. Roosevelt, "Big Jim" Farley said, is entirely free and untrammelled by promises given in the heat and anxiety of the campaign.

None the less, speculation on the subject, already begun before election day, will continue to grow in volume and accuracy until that time when the new President discloses the names of the men—and possibly a woman, for the first time—who will work with him in administering the Nation's affairs in the next four years.

Alfred E. Smith, the "Happy Warrior," who apparently is happy again in fighting for the election of his political protege, Roosevelt, has been suggested as a likely choice, but for just what post hasn't been agreed on by the guessers. It has been suggested that Mr. Smith would be given a sort of a supercabinet post, which would comprise a director of the budget and reorganizer of the executive machinery of the Federal Government.

Baruch Is Mentioned.

Bernard H. Baruch, wealthy New York financier, who has served with distinction in the war-time Government under the administration of Woodrow Wilson, has been mentioned as a possible choice for Secretary of the Treasury, to succeed Ogden L. Mills, also a wealthy New Yorker. But Mr. Baruch might be objected to because he is too close to Wall street, and, though Mr. Roosevelt and his campaign manager made many efforts to calm the fears of Eastern conservatives, he also has bespoken and got the strong support of Western and other liberals in both the Democratic and Republican parties. Proof that it is not necessary to go among the big financiers to get a good Secretary of the Treasury exists in the person of Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, who was Secretary under Mr. Wilson. But Senator Glass is getting along in years now and is not in the best of health, although as scrappy as ever, as was shown by his recent caustic denunciation of the Hoover administration.

Selection of a man to head the Labor Department will be watched with especial interest. Filling that post caused President Hoover considerable worry, and it was only after William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, spoke out of turn after a visit to the White House, that Mr. Hoover seized the opportunity to name William Nuckles Doak, of Virginia. The American Federation of Labor always has felt that a representative of organized labor—that is, one of its own organization—should be named to the post. Daniel J. Tobin, union president and A. F. of L. officer, has been head of the labor division of the Roosevelt campaign machine. Whether the Cabinet post will be his reward remains to be seen.

Mr. Farley has been suggested for a Cabinet job and, naturally enough, the post the guessers have picked for "Big Jim" is that of Postmaster General, because of the intimately political aspect of the thousands of postoffice jobs which will be filled by Democrats after long years of waiting on the outside while Republicans enjoyed the sun of party victory. It will be recalled that Gov. John Garland Pollard of Virginia reminded Virginia Democrats of these prospective plums when he stood beside Mr. Roosevelt on the rear platform of the campaign special train at Alexandria recently.

Traylor Enters Talk.

Melvin A. Traylor, big business man and banker, of Chicago, is certain to figure in the speculation to some extent. He might be considered ideal for the post of Secretary of Commerce. Mr. Traylor has the advantage of having a dual "home," that is, he is from the Southwest, but has made Chicago his bailiwick. He was advanced seriously by many admirers for the Democratic nomination for President. He would have the advantage of a rather "liberal" record on the basis of speech and practice, as well as having won national recognition in the business world. He is familiar, too, with international commerce problems.

There is certain to be keen interest shown in the selection of the Attorney General, one of the most important posts in the Government the liberal supporters of Roosevelt will want to see filled by a man who leans to the importance of human rights rather than to the rights of property. Newton D. Baker is a lawyer and a scholarly man, but the liberals do not want him because he has become identified with the so-called "power trust" in some important cases. John W. Davis, former candidate for President, also is a lawyer of wide distinction.

A curbstone opinion is that Mr. Roosevelt will not delve into the past and select men who have been defeated for the office of Presidency but will compose his Cabinet of others; neither will be want to attach to his administration, in important official capacities, those who have been indelibly marked with the history of past administrations.

Secretary of Interior.

One of the things closest to the heart of the President-elect is natural resources and the shaping of a wise governmental policy for their control and development. This will make the task of filling the post of Secretary of Interior one of his major decisions. His selection, in all liklihood, will disclose just how the scales shall be balanced between the ideas of the liberal wing, with whom his public declarations have found approval, and the conservative wing who believe that the Government should keep its hands off and let the Insulls, Pearces, Morgans and others handle the situation as they see best.

Politics—in the highest sense of the word, as well as practical politics—must enter into selection of the new Cabinet. Geography also must be taken into consideration. Strange as it may seem there are very capable men in every section of the country, if one has knowledge and wisdom sufficient to choose happily.

A glance at the present Hoover Cabiet shows that the members claim the following States as their homes: New York, Secretary of State Stimson and Secretary of the Treasury Mills; Oklahoma, Secretary of War Hurley; Minnesota, Attorney General Mitchell; Ohio, Postmaster General Brown; Massachusetts, Secretary of the Navy Adams; California, Secretary of Interior Wilbur; Missouri, Secretary of Agriculture Eyde; Michigan, Secretary of Commerce Chapin, and Virginia, Secretary of Labor Doak.

Mr. Roosevelt already has taken

Schwab Returning, Hurries to Vote

Won't Tell for Whom, but Is Optimistic of Nation's Future.

New York, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, returned from Europe today aboard the liner Rex, silent on his voting choices in the election.

Schwab registered before leaving four weeks ago for England, where he received the Melchett medal for distinguished service in the fuel industry. He planned to go from the pier directly to his Riverside Drive home and then to his polling place to cast his ballot.

Reminded that he was not expressing his usual optimism, Schwab replied: "There has been an overproduction of optimism in the United States in the last several years. I am optimistic. I have not lost my faith in America, if I have lost a lot of money. I feel that ultimately this country is going to be just the same as it was when everything was bright and sunny."

Puerto Rican Women Vote for First Time

San Juan, Puerto Rico, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Women voted for the first time in today's election, turning out in considerable numbers to take their places in the lines waiting at polling places.

All insular officials, including members of the legislature are up for election to a four-year term.

Nation's Oldest Woman Casts Pennsylvania Vote

Philadelphia, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—One of the early voters in Montgomeryville today was Mary Knapp, 106 years old, believed to be the oldest voter in the country.

She was assisted to the polling place by her niece, Henrietta Knapp, but she marked her own ballot and cast it into the box unassisted.

Life in Two Capitals Fits New First Lady for Duties

The new "first family of the land" has ample characteristic to impart to the White House an air of "homeyness" and a place of distinctive personalities. President-elect and Mrs. Roosevelt have four stalwart sons: Franklin, Jr. (upper left), and John (upper right), 18 and 16 years old, respectively, and both students; Elliott (center, below), who is in the advertising business, and James (lower right), an insurance man. At the lower left are Mrs. Curtis B. Dall, daughter, and her son, Curtis, Jr. She has another child, Anna Eleanor, while Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt have a daughter, making three grandchildren in all. It will be the second Roosevelt family to occupy the White House.

PROGRESSIVES MAY LOSE SENATE POSTS

Democrats Certain to Want Their Chairmanships if Given Control.

The Democratic victory puts the Senate progressives who supported Roosevelt in the uncomfortable position of being hoist by their own petards.

The Democratic victory will prove costly to them in committee chairmanships. It will mean, of course, that the ranking Democrat, by right of seniority, on each committee, will take its chairmanship, and this will be harder on the little group of progressives proportionately than on the regular Republicans, because the progressives have more than their share of fat committee posts.

Taking the committees in alphabetical order, it is found that Hiram W. Johnson, of California, is chairman of the commerce committee. If he had fought Roosevelt to the last ditch he couldn't have done more to displace himself as chairman of that committee than he did when he supported the Democratic standard bearer. Senator Duncan U. Fletcher (Democrat), of Florida, who has been in the Senate a long time, is the ranking Democrat on the commerce committee, and, as such, would be eligible for the chairmanship. But the Senator also is ranking Democratic member on the important banking and currency committee, with Carter Glass ranking below him, the military affairs committee and the unimportant committee on printing. A man with the choice of so many plums undoubtedly will find himself in the situation of trying to decide which is the sweetest and find himself surrounded by others who will offer to trade this for that sour one.

Borah Now Chairman.

Senator William E. Borah (Republican), of Idaho, is chairman of the foreign relations committee. He will be displaced in the next Congress. But he will have the satisfaction of knowing that he did not support Roosevelt. Senator Claude A. Swanson, of Virginia, is the ranking Democrat on that committee.

Senator James Couzens (Republican), of Michigan, chairman of the interstate commerce committee, will be displaced by a Democrat, and Senator Ellison D. Smith, of South Carolina, is the ranking Democrat on that committee. The Democrats might have organized the last Senate if they could have arranged some switching about so that Senator Couzens wouldn't have had to serve under the chairmanship of Senator Smith. But Senator Couzens is not among the little group of progressives whose earnestness may cost them the place.

Ashurst Is Ambitious.

But George W. Norris, of Nebraska, the shining mark for opponents of the progressives, will lose his committee chairmanship. He is chairman of the Senate judiciary committee. Senator Henry F. Ashurst, of Arizona, is the ranking Democrat on the committee. Senator Ashurst is a suave, pleasant gentleman of erudition, but is not the type to assume the role of sacrificial lamb. Even if Senator Ashurst should be tempted by the chairmanship of another of the committees on which he is ranking Democratic member, there still would be the veteran Democrat, Senator Thomas F. Walsh, to take his place on the judiciary committee.

Senator Robert M. La Follette, jr., of Wisconsin, is destined to lose his place as head of the committee on manufactures, but he can take whatever consolation he may from the fact that in supporting Roosevelt he was choosing the lesser of two evils in his effort to save the La Follette dynasty in his home State.

Gerald P. Nye is due to lose his chairmanship of the committee on public lands and surveys.

"Cactus Jack" Garner, Banquet-Hating Vice President, Brings Administration Asset in Close House Contacts

The plainsman's grin of John N. ("Cactus Jack") Garner, and his gift for forceful speaking of his mind on occasion, will not be forgotten in the House when he moves across Capitol Hill to the Senate. They are likely to prove assets in advancing administration measures. Mrs. John Garner's interests center primarily in her husband's career, whether he be a Texas representative or the Nation's Vice President. The informal pictures at the right show her handling his mail and, above, cooking a hasty meal for him in his office at the Capitol.

DEMOCRATIC SWEEP SEEN IN OKLAHOMA

Roosevelt Is Far Ahead and Complete Party Ticket Seems Victorious.

Oklahoma City, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—A free-handed gift of ballots to Franklin D. Roosevelt, counted tonight in mounting thousands from Oklahoma's polling places, apparently was leading the State's few hard-fought contests toward Democratic victory.

Never in doubt from the start, the presidential tally sheet gave the New York governor a 4-to-1 lead by the time the first 120,000 ballots were tabulated, although President Hoover carried the State four years ago by 175,000 votes.

And, polling every ounce of its normal Democratic power, Oklahoma tendered commanding leads to Senator Elmer Thomas over Wirt Franklin, Ardmore Republican, and to J. C. (Jack) Walton, impeached governor, over J. H. Johnston, whose Republican candidacy for corporation commissioner received the support of some prominent Democrats.

Walton's lead was better than 20,000 at 9:30 p. m. Senator Thomas was ahead by 38,000 votes.

The presidential figures, from 1,235 out of 3,314 precincts, were 185,921 to 55,499 for Roosevelt.

At the same time, M. G. Garber, the State's only Republican, dropped more votes behind E. W. Marland, Democratic oil leader, in the Eighth (northwest) District. This nominally Republican area was giving Marland nearly a 2,000-vote margin.

Gov. Murray seemed to be putting over his hard-fought income tax measure by around 8,000 votes.

Stone Mountain Bonfire Celebrates for Roosevelt

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—A bonfire that can be seen for 30 miles will be lighted on top of Stone Mountain Wednesday night if Franklin D. Roosevelt is elected President. Enthusiastic Democrats have been hauling wood to the top of the granite mountain for five days. Old automobiles, 1,000 automobile tires and two barrels of oil will help the blaze burn.

The junk and wood have been piled on the highest spot, far above the unfinished memorial to the Confederacy which graces one side of the hulk of granite.

Cabinet Jobs Start With Taking of Oath

A Cabinet officer's tenure of office begins when he takes his oath. The act of March 2, 1867, limited terms to four years and one month. This was repealed after two years.

Under the present law a Cabinet officer continues in office indefinitely, without reappointment, unless he is removed. He may be removed by the simple process of appointment of a successor, who is confirmed by the Senate.

Elderly Couple Braves Rain to Support Hoover

Ottumwa, Iowa, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—President Hoover should know about Lincoln and Sadie Brown, an aging Wapello County couple. In rain and mud, Mr. and Mrs. Brown walked 4½ miles to the polls here.

Brown had been ill. Still weak, he couldn't drive his old truck because he didn't have the strength to crank it. Mrs. Brown said: "We did it for Mr. Hoover."

Cactus Plains of Texas Produce Vice President

Speaker John N. Garner Is First From South in More Than 75 Years to Reach That Office.

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE.
(Associated Press.)

John N. Garner, of Texas, will be the first man from the South to sit in the Vice Presidential chair since William R. King, of Alabama, presided over the Senate in President Pierce's administration, more than 75 years ago.

And Garner, in the second highest office in the country, probably will remain "Cactus Jack" of the plains to his admirers in the Southwest. For throughout his long service in the House he has good-naturedly scoffed at Senate self-esteem, and repeatedly declared that the Speakership was second in importance only to the Presidency.

Has Sense of Humor.

The fortunes of politics have brought to him the office for which, he once humorously suggested, he was unqualified because he couldn't eat all of the banquet repasts served to a Vice President.

Despite an apparent aversion to the formal social duties of his new position, Garner will bring to the Roosevelt administration one very substantial political asset born of his talent for sociability.

Through him the White House will have an exceptional channel for maintaining contacts with Congress, particularly with the House, despite personnel changes brought about at the election.

Scores Are His Friends.

Scores of men sitting in the lower chamber are his friends. One of his most conspicuous traits is that of making and keeping friends without regard to party lines, the outstanding example being the long and intimate friendship with his political adversary, the late Nicholas Longworth, of Ohio.

The Vice President-elect knows the political relationships of virtually every two-term member of the House to the current issues that may be discussed in that body. He has also a 30-year knowledge of the practical workings of the House and its committees, and their relationship to Senate action.

He has a background of information as to the origin and political significance of important appropriation bills and other legislation.

Inactive in Office.

As Vice President, of course, he will be relatively inactive in the actual deliberations of the Senate, because of the traditions of party neutrality that time has imposed upon the presiding officer of the Senate.

Many Vice Presidents, however, have been valuable cogs in party machinery, and Garner has the reputation of being one of the most able negotiators on Capitol Hill.

Mrs. Garner, who has been almost continuously his secretary and chief assistant since he came to Washington in 1903, has shown, like her husband, no fondness for the formal aspects of social life in the Capital.

A stiff-bosomed shirt is "poison" to the Texas plainsman, his friends say. He wore a brown sack suit when inducted into the Speakership last winter. He did put on a full dress suit and silk topper, however, for a White House function.

FREIGHTER PHEMIUS WITHOUT WIRELESS

British Steamer Radioes She Is Speeding to Save Stricken Vessel.

Colon, Panama, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—The British ship Killerig wirelessed tonight through Kingston, Jamaica, that the Blue Funnel line freighter Phemius was reported off Cape Gracias a Dios, Nicaragua, with her wireless transmitter gone.

This was the first news of the Phemius to reach here since she was struck by a hurricane two days ago, 150 miles off Cape Gracias a Dios.

The Killerig wirelessed she was proceeding at full speed to the aid of the stricken ship.

Another ship arriving tonight reported picking up a message authorizing her to broadcast the Phemius was in tow of a United States Navy ship. These reports were unconfirmed here by the naval district headquarters, which is in hourly communication with the aircraft tender Swan, the last position of which was given as near the Phemius. The Swan and the United States destroyer Overton had gone to the rescue.

The aircraft tender Swan and the destroyer Overton already were on the way to the Phemius when headquarters ordered out the mine sweeper Lapwing, the tug Mallard, the destroyer Sturtevant and three submarines. The Swan radioed from Serando Bank that no sign of the Phemius had been found, although a raft without a name had been discovered.

The freighter New York City, which arrived here today, reported picking up an unsigned message last night, which said the Phemius still was afloat. The United Fruit Liner Ariguani reported by radio that she had reached Kingston, Jamaica, without encountering any trace of the Phemius.

The San Simeon, of the American Quaker Line, her steering gear disabled and her rudder jammed, was about 400 miles off the Nicaraguan Coast and to the south and east of the Phemius. She reported that she had effected temporary repairs and was awaiting the arrival of the Panama Canal tug Favorite, which left to tow her to this port.

The ship Velma Lykes, from Houston, which was due in Colon Sunday, has not been heard from, and the British freighter Pearl More also is overdue.

Havana, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Northwest Jamaica was being lashed by the tropical storm curving up out of the low Caribbean latitudes, Father Gutierez Lanza, of Belen University Observatory, said late tonight.

ROOSEVELT AHEAD IN MASSACHUSETTS

Has 69,000 Lead, as Gov. Ely, 73,000 Votes Ahead, Is Conceded Victory.

Boston, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic candidate for President, led President Hoover in Massachusetts by a large plurality on the basis of reports in today's election from more than half the precincts in the State.

The unofficial vote in 922 of the 1,707 precincts in Massachusetts was: Hoover, 311,538; Roosevelt, 380,115.

With Gov. Joseph B. Ely (D.), candidate for reelection, rolling up a large lead, Lieut. Gov. William S. Youngman, his Republican opponent, conceded him victory.

Youngman, 241,772; Ely, 314,162.

In Boston, a stronghold of Democracy, Gov. Roosevelt had topped President Hoover by more than 90,000 votes, with less than 40 of the city's 362 precincts to report. Gov. Ely, who was running ahead of Gov. Roosevelt in Boston, held a slightly greater lead over Youngman. Outside of Boston, President Hoover ran ahead of Gov. Roosevelt by a fair margin on the whole, but with the larger cities giving the New York Governor majorities as a rule.

89-Year-Old Man Flies 1,200 Miles to Vote

Los Angeles, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—I. M. Yost, 89-year-old Denver citizen, flew 1,200 miles to cast his vote.

"You see," he said upon arriving here by airplane last night from Fort Worth, Tex., "I live in Denver and I had my ballot mailed to my son's home at Santa Ana, Calif. The first thing I knew I had visited too long in Texas to get to Santa Ana by train and get that vote back to Denver. There was just one thing to do, and here I am."

Stench Bomber Seeks To Halt Hoover Parade

San Francisco, Nov. 8 (U.P.).—A stench bomb was thrown into Fulton street here today shortly before President Hoover's parade passed up nearby Market street.

The "bomber" climbed to the roof of a building, threw the missile and escaped down a fire escape, a witness told police.

SOLDIERS GUARDING NEW MEXICO POLLS

Two Are Wounded at Terrero; Nephew Kills Uncle; Troops Hurt.

Santa Fe, N. Mex., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—With three national guardsmen in hospitals as result of the mobilization of troops in four counties, New Mexico voters exercised their franchise today.

Troops watched the polls in San Miguel, Valencia, Sandoval and Guadalupe Counties. They were ordered there by Gov. Arthur Seligman, who said he had received petitions from voters asking protection and predicting violence at the polls.

This was vigorously denied by H. W. Kane, representing business men of Las Vegas, within the martial law area. Kane, publisher of the Las Vegas Optic, in a statement, denied the governor to "truthfully point out any evidence supporting his martial law action."

Three troopers were injured by overturning of their motor car as they hurried from Clovis to their assignment at Las Vegas.

Despite the martial law clamp, two men were reported wounded at Terrero, 60 miles west of Las Vegas. The little mining town is isolated and details were not learned immediately by the San Miguel sheriff's office, which began an investigation.

The martial law areas were commanded by Brig. Gen. Osborne Wood, son of the late Gen. Leonard Wood.

At Gallup, Juana Baca, Republican leader, was shot and killed last night as he left a hall with United States District Attorney Hugh Woodward. His nephew, Joe Baca, 22, was arrested and, officers said, readily admitted the shooting, which he asserted was the result of a family quarrel. Former Gov. Richard Dillon was speaking to a political gathering in the hall when the elder Baca was shot.

"Hoover's Poorhouse" Felicitates Roosevelt

St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Democrats here cabled Gov. Roosevelt last night: "Hoover's poorhouse unanimously wishes your success."

They were recalling the President's reference to the islands last May, when he said: "The Virgin Islands may have some military value some time. Opinion upon this question is much divided. In any event when we paid $25,000,000 for them, we acquired an effective poorhouse, comprising 90 per cent of the population."

Descendant of Seward Votes for Roosevelt

Atlanta, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—A descendant of a long line of stanch Republicans cast the first ballot in the Adamsville Precinct today and marked it for Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Charles M. Seward, Atlanta manufacturers' agent, has been a lifelong Republican as were his forbears, one of whom was Secretary of State in President Lincoln's Cabinet.

Governor of Arizona Is Ill With Pneumonia

Phoenix, Ariz., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—As the electorate of Arizona was naming his successor, Gov. George W. P. Hunt, seven times chief executive, was taken to a hospital tonight in a serious condition, suffering from pneumonia.

Officials estimated more than 80 per cent of the 152,393 registered voters would cast ballots to establish a record for Arizona elections.

SENATOR KING IN LINE FOR D. C. CHAIRMAN

Capper Will Lose Post if Democrats Take Control of Senate.

The Democratic victory in the national elections will have a very important effect on the character and course of District legislation in Congress.

The most important result of the election will be the demotion of Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), of Kansas, as chairman of the Senate District committee. Senator Capper, who has been one of the most interested and devoted friends of the District, will have to give up his District of Columbia committee chairmanship in favor of a Democrat.

Senator William H. King (Democrat), of Utah, is the ranking Democrat on the District committee and, as such, would be entitled to the chairmanship. He also is the ranking Democrat on the committe on immigration and that on privileges and elections and would be entitled to chairmanship of that committee. He must choose between the two because senatorial custom proscribes one senator holding the chairmanship of two committees.

Glass Ranks Next.

Senator Carter Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, ranks next to Senator King, but Senator Glass is the ranking Democrat on the appropriations committee and would be entitled to the chairmanship of that committee, such an important and powerful place that he certainly would not be willing to give it up even if Senator King wanted to step out of the District committee, and Senator Glass had a greater interest in District legislation.

Assuming that Senator King passed up his District committee chairmanship for the chairmanship of the nationally important immigration committee, and Senator Glass became chairman of the appropriations committee, that would make Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), of New York, chairman of the District committee.

Senator Copeland hasn't devoted a great deal of time to study of District affairs since he came to the Senate, but he has gone out of his way to interest himself and fight for various things for the District, both as a member of the District committee and as a member of the District subcommittee on appropriations, of which Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), of Connecticut, has been chairman.

Copeland Is Sympathetic.

Not certain about his omniscience about District affairs, Senator Copeland probably would be a kindly District committee chairman, disposed to be sympathetic to the pleas of the people of the District. Certainly the senator would give a ready ear and appreciate the importance of legislation dealing with social welfare and social hygiene.

If it should transpire that between now and December of next year, the regular meeting date of the new Congress, something should happen to eliminate the first three Democrats from the chairmanship of the District committee the brash and up-and-going young Millard E. Tydings would be in line for the committee chairmanship. But under the apparent geniality of the brash young Marylander is a great ambition as apparent as it is deep, and if he were chairman of the District committee it would be perforce of circumstances and regarded merely as an interlude. He feels he is for more important things.

Except for upsets, the question of chairmanships has been settled in the House, which was organized by the Democrats in the last session.

J. B. McD.

Hoover's School Teacher Early West Branch Voter

West Branch, Iowa, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—President Hoover's elementary school teacher, Mrs. Mollie Brown Carran, was among the first to vote today. Mrs. Carran, a guest of the President when he opened his campaign in Des Moines, also sent a message of encouragement to the Chief Executive.

First at the polls here was Mrs. Jennie Scellers, owner of the house in which the President was born.

'Oven Man' Casts Democratic Vote

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Jack Doty, known as the Memphis "oven man" because he lay in an electrical heating apparatus nearly a year for treatment of burns suffered in an automobile accident, kept his promise today and walked to the polls to vote the Democratic ticket.

Soon after the accident in November, 1931, doctors placed him in the "oven" but were skeptical of his recovery. They told him he probably wouldn't live, but he laughed at them and replied: "I'll vote for a Democrat in the 1932 election."

Since then he has remained in the "oven" heated to 103 degrees to bake the impurities out of his seared body. Meanwhile doctors grafted new skin on the wounds. Doty showed slow but steady improvement and made the best of his confinement by playing bridge with relatives and friends while prone on his stomach.

Presidential Problem Averted by Congress

The term of a President of the United States begins at midnight on March 3, under present law.

How then can the retiring President, whose term of office expired at midnight, March 3, sign and make effective laws enacted by the Congress in the forenoon of March 4?

The answer is that Congress sets the clock back and recesses instead of adjourning and consequently does its concluding business technically on the legislative day of March 3 on the calendar day of March 4.

HOOVER TRAIN PLOT THEORY IS DOUBTED

Railmen Differ on Whether Dynamiters Intended to Wreck Special.

Elko, Nev., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Railroad officials were in disagreement tonight as to whether two men frightened away from the Southern Pacific right of way near Palisade, Nev., last night had planned an attempt to wreck the special train speeding President Hoover across the Great American Desert to California.

Several sticks of dynamite were found near the place where Watchman Charles E. Fish surprised the men, one a Negro.

Otis Weeks, division engineer for the Southern Pacific, declared after an investigation that the two "undoubtedly had planned to wreck the Hoover train," by dynamting an overhead crossing of the Western Pacific, so that it would crash on the tracks below.

Bridge Not Molested.

Weeks, who was riding the pilot engine preceding the President's special, conducted a careful examination of the entire vicinity after the pilot train had been flagged down by Fish.

No evidence was found, he said, to indicate that the bridge had been tampered with.

Both Daniel O'Connell, chief investigator, and A. A. Lowe, northern district inspector of transportation, said they found no evidence of an attempt to wreck the train.

Lowe, however, stated that 22 sticks of dynamite were found near the roadbed, while O'Connell said all that was found was an old stick of giant powder, which had no caps or fuses attached and was not dangerous.

Surprises Marauders.

According to the story told here by Fish, the watchman, he surprised the two men as they were approaching the overhead crossing and drove them away after a scuffle, in which the tip of one of his fingers was shot off.

"I thought at first they were prospectors," he said, "but when I shouted, the Negro jerked a gun from his pocket and leveled it at me."

An unnamed Southern Pacific official told a correspondent for the Evening Gazette that five sticks of dynamite were found trampled in the dirt where the fight took place, and that another dozen sticks were found in a sack dropped by the men as they fled.

Senator Wagner Almost Forgets to Cast Ballot

New York, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—United States Senator Robert F. Wagner almost forgot to vote for himself and the rest of the Democratic ticket after reaching the polling place today.

He was about to enter the booth when photographers asked him to pose. Several pictures were taken and then the senator, who is running for reelection, started out of the polling place, forgetting that he had not yet voted. He was called back and after voting predicted a sweeping victory for the whole Democratic ticket.

Women in Puerto Rico Cast Ballot First Time

San Juan, Puerto Rico, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Women voted for the first time in today's election, turning out in considerable numbers to take their places in the lines waiting at polling places.

Voter in New Rochelle Writes in 'Will Rogers'

NEAR RIOT MARKS NEW YORK VOTING

150,000 "Floaters" in City, Hoover Election Fraud Bureau Charges.

New York, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—A near riot at a Brooklyn polling precinct and charges by the Hoover election fraud bureau that there were 150,000 "floaters" in the city punctuated an early and swift movement to the polls today.

The excitement engendered by presidential and gubernatorial elections was heightened by the last-minute move on the part of independents to write in the name of Acting Mayor Joseph V. McKee.

Although not encouraged by McKee, a large vote was reported as having been polled for the acting mayor in opposition to the Tammany candidate, Surrogate John P. O'Brien, and the Republican aspirant, Lewis H. Pounds.

Is Otherwise Quiet.

Except for the Brooklyn disorder where police broke up one near riot where many Communists were registered, the balloting passed off quietly.

Complaints were numerous and varied. The majority of them having to do with all political parties charged fraud, alleging repeating, intimidating and jostling of voters.

After a tour of polling places of the city, Monroe Percy Bloch, counsel of the election fraud bureau of the Hoover engineers committee, complained that there were 150,000 "floaters" in the city, with 75,000 of them in Manhattan. He said he knew definitely of four "floaters' supply houses" and that he suspected several other places.

Complaints also were received from persons desirous of writing in the name of McKee. The complainants said that pencils were not furnished and that some voting machines had not been supplied with the rolls of paper necessary for writing in the name of a candidate not printed on the ballot.

95 Per Cent Indicated.

Scattering reports indicated that 95 per cent of the 1,034,443 voters registered in Manhattan and the Bronx had cast their ballots.

A popular figure at the polls was former Mayor James J. Walker. Upon emerging from the polling booth, Walker said he was not feeling well and thought he would leave the city for a few days.

Because a police sergeant and a patrolman ignored his request to arrest an election official who permitted a woman to vote twice, Paul Blanshard, chairman of the city affairs committee, said he would apply for warrants for the arrests of the police officials. Blanshard said he was surrounded by gangsters when he also demanded the woman's arrest and that she disappeared during the excitement.

Assembly Race Costs Man Pound of Pretzels

New Britain, Conn., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—A pound of pretzels, value 25 cents, has been llated with the town clerk by James McBride, a barber, as his primary campaign expense.

He ran for nomination to the General Assembly, and bet the pretzels with another barber that he would win. He didn't, and, paying the debt, he obeyed the law and entered the item as campaign expense.

Nonpartisan Slogan Before Ohio Church

Urbana, Ohio, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Prominently displayed in front of the Urbana Methodist Church was a nonpartisan slogan devised by the pastor, Dr. W. H. Wehrly. It follows:

"A man can not be a good Christian unless he is a good citizen. He can not be a good citizen unless he performs his civic duty. He does not perform his civic duty unless he votes. He votes against his country unless he votes for worthy men."

Conrad Reno Predicts Election to Be Voided

(Associated Press.)

The election will be declared void, says Conrad Reno, presidential candidate of the People's party. He said the Supreme Court would set it aside because "there are at least 25 States whose presidential election laws violate the fourteenth amendment," by keeping the names of Reno's electors off the ballot.

Democrat Fears Losing Vote More Than Death

Seattle, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—James McDonald, 83, had only one request when they took him to the city hospital.

Of six members of the new Senate already elected, five of them, Democrats, have been recorded as favoring repeal and one, Senator Dale (Republican), Vermont, has not been classified definitely.

Elected to the new House were 55 Democrats and 15 Republicans, described in various wet and dry organization polls as being for repeal; 9 Democrats and 3 Republicans for submission, and 5 Republicans and 1 Democrat for prohibition.

ROOSEVELT SILENT PENDING LAST COUNT

the room to add his congratulations to those Smith and numerous other leaders already had extended to Mr. Roosevelt.

Amid much cheering for "the President," Roosevelt later passed down the corridor to the ballroom and spoke to the workers of the committee. From there he went upstairs to the nineteenth floor to repeat the same speech in another crowded room.

He had hardly reached the place at the end of the long table before word reached headquarters that President Hoover had conceded defeat.

In the following table are given the names of the 26 men who have been elected to the Presidency of the United States, the years in which they were elected to that high office, the electoral and popular votes by which they were elected, the electoral and popular votes of their principal competitors, and the total vote in each election.

Although only 26 men have been elected President in the past, 30 have held that office and Gov. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, of New Nork, will be the thirty-first to do so. Six Vice Presidents have ascended to the Presidency because of the deaths of the men elected. Two, Theodore Roosevelt and Calvin Coolidge, were subsequently elected for a full term as President. Three others who held the office of Vice President subsequently were elected President. They were John Adams, Thomas Jefferson and Martin Van Buren.

* There was no popular vote for electors, who were selected by the legislatures. The first popular vote for electors was in 1824.

1. Voting was under the old constitutional provision, requiring electors to vote for two candidates, the one receiving the majority being elected President, and the next highest, Vice President. Jefferson and Burr, receiving the same number of electoral votes, the presidential election was thrown into the House of Representatives. Jefferson received the votes of ten States and Burr of four on the thirty-sixth ballot.

2. The revised election machinery, set forth in Article XII of the Constitution, was effective for the first time. It provided for separate votes for President and for Vice President.

3. Monroe missed by only one electoral vote the unique honor of a unanimous election accorded only to Washington.

4. Jackson received the largest popular vote, but failed to get a majority of the electoral college and the election was thrown into the House, which elected Adams. Clay was charged with having made a deal for his support.

5. Greeley died after the elections and before the electoral college assembled.

6. Charges of fraud were made and the electoral commission decided all disputes in favor of Hayes, thereby keeping out of the White House Tilden, who had received 250,000 more votes than had Hayes.

$10 VERDICT ENDS TAXI OWNERS' SUIT

Judge Orders Damage Case Settled in Favor of Independent Group.

By the consent of attorneys for both sides, Justice Joseph W. Cox, in the District Supreme Court yesterday, directed a jury to return a nominal verdict of $10 in favor of the Independent Taxi Owners Association, which had filed suit against five defendants for $500,000 damages.

The original defendants, William, Phil and Joe Brown, Fred and Clarence Maltby, and the Black & White and Yellow Cab companies, were charged by the Independent company with having conspired to keep the name of the complaining company out of the phone book, the contention being that cab calls intended for the complainant were received by the Maltbys and given to the other defendants.

Directed verdicts freed the Browns, Clarence Maltby and the Yellow Cab company. Fred Maltby and the Black & White company were the only remaining defendants and they agreed to the $10 verdict.

Fred Maltby, it was shown, had a phone listed under the name of the Diamond Cab Messenger Co. This he had had since 1922, and the sueing concern did not come into existence until 1926. Attorneys Whiteford, Marshall and Hart, and Fred Maltby represented the defendants.

Miner Rescued After Being Caught in Slide

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Thomas Coleman, 35, one of two men buried under a slide of rock and coal early today at Avoca while digging fuel, was rescued alive this afternoon and rushed to Taylor Hospital. Louis Doran, who was trapped with Coleman, was still in the cave and rescuers were working to save him. The condition of Coleman was not determined as he was started for the hospital.

Coleman and Doran, both of Avoca, were digging coal for themselves in a shaft. They were at the bottom of the pit when the slide buried them. Rescue gangs from the Pittston company rescued Coleman.

Plan to Close Ford Plants Is Denied

Official Says Company Has No Intention of Ending Factories.

Detroit, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—An official of the Ford Motor Co. today issued an emphatic denial of reports that the company plans to abandon 26 of its inland assembly plants within ten days. The report, to the effect that assembly work would be centered in six seaport cities, was made yesterday in Charlotte, N. C.

The official, who refused the use of his name, said that "the Ford Motor Co. is not and has no intention of abandoning any of its plants. This story has arisen from a misunderstanding of some reorganizations we are making to attain better manufacturing conditions.

"As the situation has stood to date," the official said, "we have been operating 52 plants two or three days a week, getting out from 50 to 100 cars a day at each plant. This neither is good from a manufacturing point of view nor does it provide workmen with a living wage. We are, therefore, for the time being, concentrating our production at points where shipping factors are more advantageous."

President May Take Oath To Suit Own Convenience

Can Be Sworn In on First Hour on March 4, But May Defer It Till March 5 If Public Business Sustains No Injury, Marshall Declares.

Under the provisions of the so-called lame duck amendment to the Constitution, which is not yet effective, the term of a President begins at noon on January 20.

Just when the term of one President ends and another begins under present law is a subject of conjecture for those who wish to refine the point to an unnecessary fineness. Even if a President-elect, some time in the future, didn't take his oath of office promptly at noon on January 20, the Nation probably wouldn't go to pot.

When John Marshall was chief justice of the United States Supreme Court, he replied to an inquiry about the beginning of the presidential term as follows:

"I have conversed with my brethren on the subject you suggested when I had the pleasure of seeing you and will take the liberty to communicate the result.

"As the Constitution only provides that the President shall take the oath it prescribes before he enter on the execution of his office, and as the law is silent on the subject, the time seems to be in some measure at the discretion of that high officer. There is an obvious propriety in taking the oath as soon as it can conveniently be taken, and thereby shortening the interval in which the executive power is suspended.

"But some interval is inevitable. The time of the actual President will expire and that of the President-elect commence at 12 in the night of the 3d of March. It has been usual to take the oath at midday on the 4th.

"Thus there has been uniformly and voluntarily an interval of twelve hours during which the executive power could not be exercised. This interval may be unavoidably prolonged. Circumstances may prevent the declaration of the person who is chosen until it shall be too late to communicate the intelligence of his election until after the 4th of March. This occurred at the first election.

"Undoubtedly, on any pressing emergency the President might take the oath in the first hour of the 4th of March, but it has never been thought necessary so to do, and he has always named such hour as he deemed most convenient.

"If any circumstance should render it unfit to take the oath on the 4th of March, and the public business would sustain no injury by its being deferred until the 5th, no impropriety is perceived in deferring it till the 5th."

"I have made no promises and I assure you I am 'under the heel' of no one," he said in a letter to George C. Doody, of Minneapolis. "If I am elected to the Presidency you may be sure that I shall leave no stone unturned to put the Democratic policies, outlined in our platform, into effect.

"That will involve choosing capable officials. They will be chosen without regard to personal friendship or political expediency, but with a view to efficiency and a high standard of public service."

Although it is likely that Mr. Roosevelt will select and announce the personnel of his Cabinet before he takes office on March 4, there is no legally compelling reason for him to do so. As a matter of law he might assume the Presidency without making any Cabinet appointments, and the present Cabinet members would be legally authorized to continue functioning as heads of the various departments.

In the early days of the country it was the practice for Cabinet members to continue serving from one administration—that is, without regard to the advent of a presidential election—into the next without reappointment. But on March 2, 1867, Congress enacted a law which prescribed the tenure of Cabinet officers as four years and one month. But that supposedly remedial law was found to have as many or more objectionable possibilities as arose in the absence of a law prescribing a specific term for Cabinet members, and it was repealed after two years.

Pickering Was Ousted.

Relations of Presidents with members of their Cabinets have not always been pleasant and the Nation wasn't very old when the troubles began. During the second term of Washington, Timothy Pickering, of Pennsylvania, had been appointed Secretary of State. Mr. Pickering continued in that office when John Adams became President. President Adams didn't reappoint him, but just permitted him to continue on the job.

There must have been serious friction between President Adams and his Secretary of State, because finally the President demanded Pickering's resignation. The Secretary refused to resign. What fields of speculation are opened by the possibilities ensuing upon a successful defiance by Pickering! Adams set the national style, however, when he dismissed him.

One of the most interesting sidelights on the administration and character of Abraham Lincoln is afforded by his troubles with Stanton and others. Wilson was at times at bitter odds with some of his Cabinet and there was the famous conferences in which his Secretary of State, Robert Lansing, conferred with others, seriously considering whether the stricken President should be removed from office. It is no secret that President Hoover and some of his Cabinet have had serious and bitter disagreements. President Taft had a Cabinet furor which got national attention.

Philadelphia, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—A few minutes after she had voted, Mrs. Helen Hubert, 53, of this city, fell dead from heart disease in the doorway of her home today. Mrs. Hubert had just returned from casting her ballot and was waiting for the mailman when she collapsed.

ROOSEVELT AND 'MA' FAVORITES IN TEXAS

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—On the face of early returns Texas today reclaimed its traditional allegiance as a Democratic State.

The same incomplete returns gave Mrs. Miriam A. (Ma) Ferguson (Democrat), the State's first woman governor, defeated for reelection six years ago, a big lead over Orville Bullington, of Wichita Falls (Republican).

George W. Armstrong (Independent), who emphasized in his campaign that he was a dry, trailed far behind.

The vote for national candidates appeared to reverse completely the vote in 1928, when Herbert Hoover carried the State over Alfred E. Smith by 26,004 votes.

All of Texas' eighteen Democratic district congressmen, including Garner, who ran in the Fifteenth District, were elected. Garner has indicated he will not resign as a representative, in the event he is elected Vice President, until after the next session of Congress.

Texas also elected three Democratic congressmen at large, Joseph W. Bailey, of Dallas, son of the former United States senator of that name, now dead; Sterling P. Strong, of Dallas, and George B. Terrell, of Alto.

Bullington had the support of the Democratic faction led by Gov. R. S. Sterling, who was beaten by Mrs. Ferguson in the primaries.

Son of Britsh Banker Found Dead Atop Train

London, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Police were puzzled today by the strange death of Richard Francis Kindersley, third son of Sir Robert Kindersley, former governor of the Hudson's Bay Co. and a director of the Bank of England.

His body was discovered on the roof of a train, the head battered. The train left Waterloo Station, London, soon after midnight and the discovery was made when it reached Farnham. Richard Kindersley lived in Grosvenor Square with his father, who said today his son had been in Surrey yesterday and encountered a motor accident, which seemed to have brought upon him a severe concussion. Sir Robert said he did not suspect foul play.

Baltimore Candidate Votes Twice for Himself

Baltimore, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—One man in this city voted twice for himself today, and there is to be no contest about his ballot.

He is Ambrose J. Kennedy, Democratic candidate for the House of Representatives for the full term beginning March 4, and also is the unopposed candidate for the unexpired term of the late Representative J. Charles Linthicum. So he marked the ballot twice for himself.

The police training is being undertaken jointly by the League of Virginia Municipalities and the Virginia Police Executives Association and indications, according to Harold I. Baumes, director of personnel training of the league, are that nearly all municipalities and counties will take advantage of the opportunity to secure valuable training for their police officers without any charge whatever.

Alleged Morrow Letter Writer Held for Jury

Boston, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Charles C. Jodrey, 55-year-old unemployed Everett carpenter and father of nine children, who allegedly sent a threatening letter to Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, mother-in-law of Charles Lindbergh, was held for the Federal grand jury when arraigned today before Judge James A. Lowell. He was released on his own recognizance.

Jodrey sent a series of letters to Mrs. Morrow at her Englewood, N. J., home, Federal agents said, culminating in a communication which allegedly contained a threat. The contents of the letter have not been made public. Jodrey told Federal officials he had been made desperate by unemployment.

THOMAS PLEASED OVER PARTY VOTE

2,000,000 Ballots Would Be Cause for Jubilation, He Declares.

"If we get 1,000,000 votes," he said, "we will be moderately encouraged; every vote over 1,500,000 will be decidedly encouraging. But every vote over 2,000,000 will be cause for tremendous jubilation."

With a total national vote cast for presidential candidates of 40,000,000, Thomas called his expectations modest. The largest previous Socialist vote in a national election was 967,000 for Eugene V. Debs in 1920; in 1928 Thomas gathered 275,000.

"We know we will not win," he said, "but, no matter how small the vote, this campaign is a victory. The intellectual bankruptcy of capitalism, expressed in the futility of the two old parties, makes the Socialist vote the only one that counts. Ultimately they will coalesce in some form of fascism and the Socialist will be the only opposition."

Defense in Scottsboro Case for Venue Change

New York, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—William L. Patterson, national secretary of the International Labor Defense, announced today that immediate steps will be taken to obtain a change of venue for the new trial granted seven Scottsboro, Ala., Negroes in a decision handed down Monday by the United States Supreme Court.

LANKFORD CRUSHED, STATE BACK IN FOLD

sentatives. Darden was the opponent of Representative Lankford, the Republican, before the supreme court redistricting decision.

Late returns last night showed Arlington County, where many Washington workers reside, giving the Roosevelt ticket an approximate 400 vote plurality. This count marked the apparent first alignment of Arlington County with Democratic colors since 1916 in the famous Hughes-Wilson campaign.

Fairfax Goes Democratic.

Fairfax County, adjoining Arlington, gave the New York executive 2,356 votes to 1,196 for Hoover, reversing its 1928 complexion, when it went Republican by a short margin.

The City of Alexandria followed its neighbors into the Democratic columns, giving Gov. Roosevelt 2,941 ballots to 1,199 for President Hoover.

Yesterday's election in Virginia was the climax of a sweep back toward the party of its fathers since the 1928 majority for President Hoover. In 1929 the State rejected a Republican anti-Smith coalition candidate for governor in favor of Gov. Pollard, and a year later two of the three Republican representatives were beaten. Representative Lankford's loss yesterday completed the national legislative trek back to the traditional standard.

Man, Buried Alive 38 Days, Claims Record in Annapolis

"Slim" Jones, of Richmond, Expected to Live Unless He Contracts Pneumonia; Is Weak, But Chats Happily; Loses 20 Pounds.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 8.—Though weak, and suffering somewhat from nausea, Robert L. (Slim) Jones, of Richmond, Va., otherwise was resting comfortably in a ward at Annapolis Emergency Hospital today, following his exploit of remaining "buried alive," for 38 days, thereby setting a world's record for such a stunt. Jones says the former record was 37 days.

Jones completed an exploit of the like, though for a much shorter period, last summer at Chesapeake Beach. After recovering in that instance, he came to this section and allowed himself to be placed 6 feet underground at the Annapolis baseball park. This was on September 1. Last night the earth was removed from the box that contained his body, and he was raised to the surface. A hurried examination was made by Dr. George C. Basil, and Jones was removed to the hospital in an ambulance. The physician said the man would live if he does not develop pneumonia within a 48-hour period.

Jones lost 20 pounds during the period of his interment. Weak and stiff of joints, he was unable to stand, though he chatted in a happy vein. Photographers and news reel operators were on hand to "shoot" Jones' "exhumation," but because of a heavy mist of rain, this was deferred for several days when Jones will reenact the disinterment. Meanwhile, he will preserve a heavy growth of beard.

Daily Baby Contest Will Be One of Features at Auditorium.

The fifth annual District Grocery food show of the District of Columbia will open this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Washington Auditorium with more than 80 exhibitors participating with their different lines of food and many new popular features.

One of the main features of the show this year is a previously unknown process of freezing perishable foodstuffs. This is the first time the new process has ever been on exhibition, according to officials of the show.

"Santa Claus" will be very much in evidence, as every afternoon he will distribute gifts to all children visiting the show, who are under 6 years of age. This will take place every day at 4 p. m.

Another feature of this year's show will be a popular baby contest to be held every afternoon for children over 1 year and under 4 years of age. The winner of ecah day's contest, to be picked by applause from the audience, will be awarded a $2.50 gold piece.

Once every hour during the afternoons food prizes will be distributed from the stage, the winners to be selected by drawing from a basket. The show will be open for ten days from 2 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon and from 7:30 to 10 o'clock in the evening.

What Today Means to You

"SCORPIO."

If November 9 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a. m. to 8:30 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 2 p. m. and from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m. The danger hours are from 10:30 a. m. to 11:45 a. m. and from 7 p. m. to 8 p. m.

Influences operating on this November 9 would seem to be particularly favorable to the carrying on of any enterprise of a commercial nature. Business activities entailing a quick turnover can most probably be successfully carried out on this day. Away from the office, much gayety will be in evidence and social gatherings of every sort will flourish.

The child born on this November 9 will have much to overcome in the way of fear. Once he has been taught to stand on his own feet and to stick up for his own rights he will be a splendid little person. The child will be unusually honest and will have a very loving nature. His work in school will probably not be outstanding, but he may be counted on to lead an upright and worthy life.

If you were born on November 9 you are probably a very sensitive person, so sensitive in fact that at times you feel that it is difficult for you to mingle with groups of people. Seek to overcome this extreme sensitiveness and you will find yourself to be a person with a most buoyant disposition. You have a tendency to criticize adversely and thereby you often lose friends. Work to develop the positive side of your character and you will soon find yourself better able to face and overcome the daily trials that seem to stand in your path.

Often you are too visionary in your thought. You are living in a practical world and your artistic and idealistic nature must be made to conform to the world if you are to have your share of success. Do not be discouraged if success comes slowly. It will probably be more lasting if it does. You may find it difficult to decide on what is to be your life work, but do not let that trouble you. Do the job well that you have in hand and quite naturally and without any effort on your part you will be led into the proper channels for you to follow.

Born on November 9 you will probably have more than your share of difficulty in adjusting yourself to the demands of married existence. Once, however, you have learned to pull in double harness you will come to be a splendid wife or husband as the case may be. As a parent you will have no peer.

Successful people born on November 9:

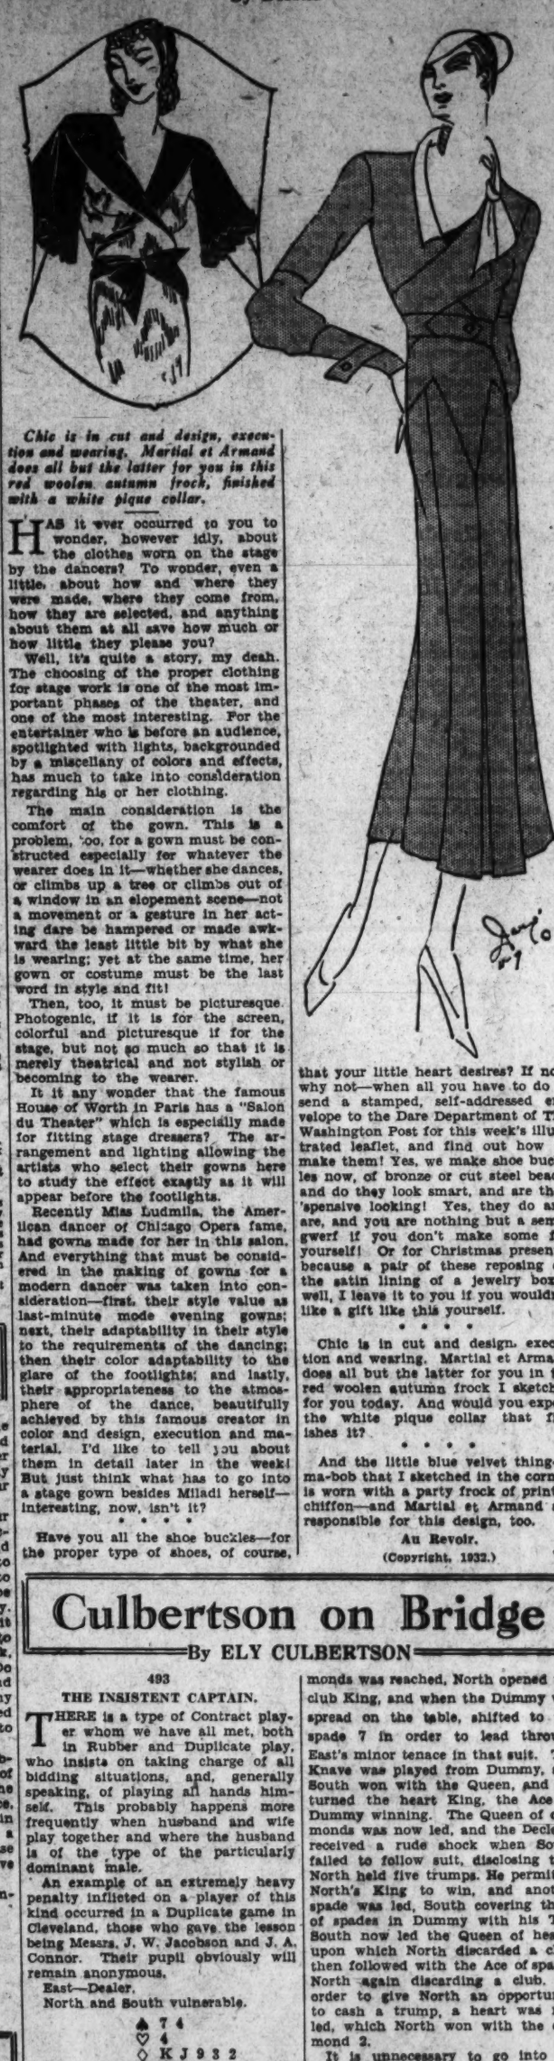
Interpreting the Mode

By DARE



Chic is in cut and design, execution and wearing. Martial et Armand does all but the latter for you in this red woolen autumn frock, finished with a white pique collar.

HAS it ever occurred to you to wonder, however idly, about the clothes worn on the stage by the dancers? To wonder, even a little, about how and where they were made, where they come from, how they are selected, and anything about them at all save how much or how little they please you?

Well, it's quite a story, my deah. The choosing of the proper clothing for stage work is one of the most important phases of the theater, and one of the most interesting. For the entertainer who is before an audience, spotlighted with lights, backgrounded by a miscellany of colors and effects, has much to take into consideration regarding his or her clothing.

The main consideration is the comfort of the gown. This is a problem, too, for a gown must be constructed especially for whatever the wearer does in it—whether she dances, or climbs up a tree or climbs out of a window in an elopement scene—not a movement or a gesture in her acting dare be hampered or made awkward the least little bit by what she is wearing; yet at the same time, her gown or costume must be the last word in style and fit!

Then, too, it must be picturesque. Photogenic, if it is for the screen, colorful and picturesque if for the stage, but not so much so that it is merely theatrical and not stylish or becoming to the wearer.

It it any wonder that the famous House of Worth in Paris has a "Salon du Theater" which is especially made for fitting stage dressers? The arrangement and lighting allowing the artists who select their gowns here to study the effect exactly as it will appear before the footlights.

Recently Miss Ludmila, the American dancer of Chicago Opera fame, had gowns made for her in this salon. And everything that must be considered in the making of gowns for a modern dancer was taken into consideration—first, their style value as last-minute mode evening gowns; next, their adaptability in their style to the requirements of the dancing; then their color adaptability to the glare of the footlights; and lastly, their appropriateness to the atmosphere of the dance, beautifully achieved by this famous creator in color and design, execution and material. I'd like to tell you about them in detail later in the week! But just think what has to go into a stage gown besides Miladi herself—interesting, now, isn't it?

* * * *

Have you all the shoe buckles—for the proper type of shoes, of course, that your little heart desires? If not, why not—when all you have to do is send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this week's illustrated leaflet, and find out how to make them! Yes, we make shoe buckles now, of bronze or cut steel beads, and do they look smart, and are they 'spensive looking! Yes, they do and are, and you are nothing but a semi-gwerf if you don't make some for yourself! Or for Christmas presents, because a pair of these reposing on the satin lining of a jewelry box—well, I leave it to you if you wouldn't like a gift like this yourself.

* * * *

Chic is in cut and design, execution and wearing. Martial et Armand does all but the latter for you in the red woolen autumn frock I sketched for you today. And would you expect the white pique collar that finishes it?

* * * *

And the little blue velvet thing-a-ma-bob that I sketched in the corner, is worn with a party frock of printed chiffon—and Martial et Armand are responsible for this design, too.

THE INSISTENT CAPTAIN.

THERE is a type of Contract player whom we have all met, both in Rubber and Duplicate play, who insists on taking charge of all bidding situations, and, generally speaking, of playing all hands himself. This probably happens more frequently when husband and wife play together and where the husband is of the type of the particularly dominant male.

An example of an extremely heavy penalty inflicted on a player of this kind occurred in a Duplicate game in Cleveland, those who gave the lesson being Messrs. J. W. Jacobson and J. A. Connor. Their pupil obviously will remain anonymous.

East—Dealer.

The Bidding:

South	West	North	East
			1♡
2♣	2◇	3♣	3◇
3♠	Pass	4♣	4◇
Pass	Pass	5♣	Pass
Pass	5◇	Dbl.	Pass
Pass	Pass

West's bidding was all very bad. Even the bid of two diamonds over South's vulnerable Overcall was extremely rash. A free bid, under these circumstances, promised a hand of fighting strength to his partner; as, inasmuch as East had opened the bidding, there was no reason to assume that desperate measures were necessary to save the situation. South, too, could have made a stronger bid than the mere Overcall, but explained his strategy later as being based on a study of his opponents' psychology. The subsequent bidding by North and South was quite sound. Let us draw a veil over that of West and his partner.

When the final contract of five diamonds was reached, North opened the club King, and when the Dummy was spread on the table, shifted to the spade 7 in order to lead through East's minor tenace in that suit. The Knave was played from Dummy, and South won with the Queen, and returned the heart King, the Ace in Dummy winning. The Queen of diamonds was now led, and the Declarer received a rude shock when South failed to follow suit, disclosing that North held five trumps. He permitted North's King to win, and another spade was led, South covering the 9 of spades in Dummy with his Ten. South now led the Queen of hearts, upon which North discarded a club, then followed with the Ace of spades, North again discarding a club. In order to give North an opportunity to cash a trump, a heart was now led, which North won with the diamond 2.

It is unnecessary to go into the play in detail, it being sufficient to say that West won, in all, 4 tricks, cashing the heart Ace and two club ruffs and the trump Ace, the penalty reaching a total of 1,800 points.

As I have pointed out, both East's and West's bidding was bad, but West's was especially atrocious, and brought in its wake its deserved reward.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

YOU have heard a lot about self-made beauty, haven't you? The woman who knows her best points and emphasizes them, or who plays up distinctive features thereby making herself pleasantly individual, the woman who is meticulous about every detail of dress and personal loveliness and therefore is neatly trim at all times and easy to look at, all these belong to the self-made beauty class. All are sisters under the skin in that they have improved upon mother nature.

Not Overnight.

But self-made beauty can not be born overnight. It takes time, training, coaxing. But, those of you who have gardens know the delight you experience in preparing the earth, sowing the seed, weeding and watering and finally in watching the flower bloom forth. Could it thrill you as much if you had less to do with it? Never. The enthusiasm, even if greater, would be short lived. So with yourself.

I've seen eyelashes grow twice their length, grow thicker, more silky and abundant and darker, too, by the simple, old-reliable olive oil treatment. A wee bit of olive oil is applied on eyelash brush and the lashes brushed carefully, the upper lashes up and the lower down and under. The brushing is important because it stimulates the circulation at the roots of the lashes and the blood stream does the nourishing, you know, pushing the lashes forward more quickly. Be sure you use a good grade of olive oil; colorless and odorless castor oil is just as good; plain vaseline may be used or 1 per cent yellow oxide of mercury. None of these will injure the eyes, but care should be taken that none gets into the eyes or a slight irritation may result. This will only be very temporary, of course.

I have seen straight hair take on a soft and flattering wave, thin straggly hair grow thicker, dull hair brought to new life and luster. Brushing, massage and coaxing can do all of these things. You can train the temper of your hair, you know, just like a child's.

Even stubby fingertips have been transformed to tapering digits, by pinching and massage with a little cream.

Health and beauty built up, excessive weight and bulges trimmed down, eyes made to look larger, ankles smaller and so on and on.

It may all take a year and a day, or a whole decade. What of it? Think of the fun you will have in laughing defiance at nature. Think of the satisfaction it must give you to look in your mirror and know that ten years from now you will only look ten years lovelier.

By the way, I have a raft of bulletins to help you look lovelier, if you will write your specific problem in self-made beauty.

SUN BATHS.

(Department of Labor.)

Longer sun baths are needed in fall and winter than in spring and summer, because in fall and winter the ultra-volet rays are weak. In cold weather a sun bath can be given indoors near a window opened at top or bottom, the baby lying in the patch of sunlight coming through the open space. By holding her own hands in the sun the mother can tell how warm it actually is. The room should be heated and the doors closed to prevent drafts. Watch the baby carefully and cover him if the sun goes behind a cloud.

At the first indoor sun bath let the sun shine on the baby's face, hands and arms for fifteen to twenty minutes; after a few days uncover his legs also. Lengthen the sun bath gradually until it lasts one to two hours. When the sun is warm enough, even the baby's shirt may be taken off. In the coldest weather it may be better to give two short sun baths a day instead of one long one.

After a baby is used to indoor sun baths, he can begin outdoor ones very early in the spring.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

ONE KIND OF GRANULATED LIDS.

THE condition of the eyeball and eyelids, which most persons lump together under one name—pink-eye—can be divided into at least three diseases—acute catarrhal conjunctivitis, pink-eye and vernal conjunctivitis.

Pink-eye, properly speaking, is a conjunctivitis due to infection with the Koch-Weeks bacillus. In the particular field of pink-eye we also have forms of conjunctivitis due to the pneumococcus, and another form due to the gonococcus. When we take these into consideration we find the group is composed of at least five separate diseases. Vernal conjunctivitis veers away from the acute disorders and leads us into the semi-chronic disorders. If we let vernal conjunctivitis bring in chronic eyelid inflammations we must add to the group two more members—trachoma and granular lids not trachoatpus.

Now let us consider one of the larger group, one that stands between the acute and chronic vernal conjunctivitis. It is an inflammation of the covering of the eyeball and lining of the eyelids which is characterized by itching, the formation of mucopus, and crusting of the edge of the lids. The itching is comparable with that of a fresh case of hay fever and the secretion of matter is suggestive of pink-eye. The disorder generally lasts two years at least, and in some cases it runs for five or even more, and it is a close relative of hay fever.

Dr. L. Lehrfeld says it is of two varieties—that which involves especially the lids and which causes most itching, and the less itching variety which affects the eyeballs more than the lids.

To Dr. Lehrfeld we are indebted for a very efficient, simple treatment. It is a watery solution of boric acid—about a 3 per cent solution. The mucus and pus between the ball and lids stick so closely and are so difficult to clean out that Dr. Lehrfeld dubs it chewing gum mucus. When a plug of the mucus is present itching is intense. When it is removed the annoying symptom stops.

Dr. Lehrfeld recommends that some of this solution be used cool as a wash seven times a day. It is applied with an eye cup. The boric solution solidifies the gummy mucus and brings it away, thus ending the itching for the time. Some other remedies are employed. Among them is a radium. Many eye specialists report success from the use of radium in this disease. Some relief is given by wearing lightly tinted glasses.

BE CAREFUL OF MOLE.

D. L. T. writes: I am approaching 60 years of age. For the past ten years I have had on my face a mole appearing first as a light-colored freckle, gradually enlarging and darkening until it is almost black, so that it looks like a tea leaf or some foreign body on my face. It is not sore but rather disfiguring.

What would be safe to apply to remove or bleach it? I found your article on moles a relief to me.

REPLY.

As you say, I had an article several months ago in which a distinction was made between moles that threaten little danger of cancer and those with the contrary tendency.

The one you have appears to be of a reasonably safe type. However, let me advise you not to try to remove it, or to bleach it with chemicals. If you do anything—and moles are safer off than on—have this one removed by operation. Your surgeon can tell you how much operation will be required and how much scar will be left. You can then weigh the advantage against the disadvantages.

Remember this: The kind of mole that is essentially cancer from the start is very malignant and anything done may make matters worse. Using chemicals is like pouring gasoline on a fire. The moles that are near the cancer border may be pushed over that line by the use of chemicals.

TO AVOID SNORING.

N. C. L. writes: Tell me how to overcome the habit of sleeping with the mouth open. Is it harmful, and how?

REPLY.

It causes snoring and thus leads to divorce occasionally. It causes coated tongue and foul breath sometimes and these have social consequences. That is about the whole story.

Sleep on your side or your stomach. Some wear a head harness that holds the lower jaw up. Some seal the lips together with tape.

VICTIM OF BUILDING ACCIDENT EXPIRES

Inquest Set Today in Death of Interstate Commerce Structure Workman.

An inquest into the death of George Currie, colored, 24 years old, of 505 Twenty-first street northwest, the second workman to die from injuries received on a Government building in the last few days, will be held at 11 a. m. today.

The first man to die from injuries was Lewis Marlow, 45 years old, an iron worker, who received a fractured skull last Friday at the new Justice Department Building, Tenth street and Constitution avenue northwest. Marlow died at Emergency Hospital last Saturday.

Responsibility Placed.

Lee R. Burch, superintendent of structural steel construction at the building, was held responsible for the death by a coroner's jury. Marlow was struck by a keg of rivets which broke through a temporary flooring.

Regardless of the two deaths, the Federal inspection system was defended yesterday by Government inspectors. Neal A. Melick and C. H. Branscombe, construction engineers representing the Treasury Department, declared that the inspection system here is more rigid than any required code.

Ten Government inspectors are constantly on duty on the buildings in addition to the inspection provided by the contractors and the insurance companies, Mr. Melick said.

Negligence Charged.

After the inquest into the death of Marlow, the coroner's jury held Burch negligent in his responsibility over the laying of the temporary flooring which collapsed.

Admitting that he was responsible for the proper laying of the floor, Burch told the coroner that a plank holding four or five kegs of rivets had given way when he stepped on it preparatory to moving some of the kegs. Burch said that he almost fell through the flooring.

James P. Day, a fellow employe of Marlow, told the coroner that it was his understanding that a subplatform should have been placed under the flooring. He said that there was no such flooring.

Moncada Praises Influence of U. S.

Nicaraguan President Says Growth of Civic Ideals Due to America.

San Juan del Sur, Nicaragua, Nov. 9 (A.P.).—President Jose Marie Moncado said today that he considered the growth of the Liberal party, which won Sunday's presidential election, to be the result of "American influence, which in three years of continuous free elections, notwithstanding small errors, has given my people lessons of civic virtue."

The president said that the election of Dr. Juan Bautista Sacasa, Liberal candidate for president, was assured with a margin of about 23,000.

The election was carried out, he added, "with the greatest order and impartiality throughout the country, except in a few unimportant districts where the rebels interfered."

Earle Theater, the French Line, the Eastern Air Transport and the Edison Hotel, will award for the most logical twenty-word interpretation of the unusual and dramatic ending of "One Way Passage," a round-trip to France with all expenses paid, aboard the S. S. Paris of the French Line. The winner has the privilege of taking an escort.

Arrangements have been made by The Washington Post and Warner Bros. Earle Theater for the winner and escort to start their pleasure trip by flying to New York in one of the Eastern Air Transport's large airliners. While in New York, the Edison Hotel will be their stopping place.

The trip to France will be aboard the S. S. Paris, of the French Line, which has been called "a bit of France afloat."

There are no strings attached to this offer. It is not even necessary to see the picture, as a synopsis is published in this issue of The Post. Employes of The Post, Warner Bros theaters, the Edison Hotel, the French Line and the Eastern Air Transport and relatives of any of the employes of these firms are barred from competition.

Send your entry to the "One Way Passage" editor, The Washington Post, before midnight, November 17.

SYNOPSIS

Dan Hardesty and Joan Ames meet in Hongkong's most famous international bar and fall in love at first sight. They are passengers on the same liner bound for San Francisco, but each hides from the other the sentence of death that hangs over them. Joan has an incurable heart ailment. Dan faces a death penalty at San Quentin.

Eluding officers, Dan has one glorious day with Joan at Honolulu. He plans to escape on a tramp steamer bound for Mexico. On the way to boat, he tells Joan of his trip. The shock brings another heart attack and Dan forfeits his chance for freedom in order to get the woman he loves safely back to the steamer. En route to the American coast she proposes that they meet New Year's Eve in Agua Caliente and Dan, hiding his grief, accepts with a cheerful smile. Later she learns from a steward what awaits him when he arrives. When he says good-by, they both repeat their pledges to meet below the Mexican border. At that supreme moment neither can say "good-by."

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

WITH returns complete from 4,987,351 noting districts, out of a total of 4,987,352, it is reliably reported by Mr. Hubbard Keavy, this department's West Coast expert on figures, that in conformity with the seeming public demand for "a change," Clara Bow has undergone a metamorphosis that will be immediately apparent to all those who see "Call Her Savage."

CLARA BOW.

It seems that the last time, previous to this time, that Mr. Keavy talked with Mrs. Bow-Bell, she was still the "It" girl, with the flashing, challenging eyes and all the seductive wiles of the confirmed siren. When he walked on her set the other day, however, imagine his surprise, upon noting her eyes, to discover that they now look grave and intelligent! And so, he gives you to understand, does all of her.

She has poise, authority and confidence now, has Clara. Eighteen months ago, or whenever it was, when her affairs became so tangled, she gave the impression of having lost her self-confidence almost to the last drop.

You remember what happened after all that trouble. She decided to take to the much talked about wide open spaces, where she could recover her health, her mental equilibrium and a little of the old perspective on life. Being financially well off, despite a few unfortunate experiences in backing her daddy in projects that mostly turned out to be duds, Clara was able to take her time, turning down stories offered her by producers until the one she liked came along.

Even after she had signed her contract, the erstwhile "Brooklyn bonfire" refused to be rushed. The script had to be changed several times to suit her and she is said personally to have selected her supporting cast.

Perhaps more important in the lay mind is the scarlet item that her hair is again red, after the blonde tryout, and is being worn in a long bob. The Bow figure once more is one to hang clothes on. The twenty-odd pounds that accrued during the loafing period on the Bow-Bell ranch have been gradually eliminated by diet.

Clara and her spouse, Rex Bell, since you must know everything, have taken a new house in a quiet part of Hollywood. The house she occupied so many years in Beverly Hills has been rented.

Incidentally, there are three leading men in the new Bow picture—Monroe Owsley; Ben Lyon and Gilbert Roland, who, as Louis Alonzo, was reported engaged to Clara several years ago—if that can be construed as an especially distinguishing characteristic!

A last-minute report from up-State New York communicated to this column through Bernard Simon, a theatrical analyst retained by Arthur J. Beckhard productions, is to the effect that Mr. Beckhard, identified, of course, as the producer of "Another Language," has discovered that there is a definite hazard in giving the stage the sort of overwhelming success that the hit Washington failed to recognize last April as such has since become on Broadway.

The play being a satire on the manners, if any, and customs of middle-class Americans, the entrepreneur has found that it is dangerous to confide too much to comparative strangers about the perplexities attendant upon its production.

An instance was offered recently when Mr. Beckhard accepted an invitation to dine with a family he had only recently met. During the prepandial cocktails—and that's about the best kind of a cocktail there is, so I hear—he thought to amuse his hosts with anecdotes about his play, and, among other things, told of the arduous search for one of the worst "atrocities" in the show—an old-fashioned dining-room chandelier of the type that used to be made of green glass and had a lot of tassels hanging from it. These are no longer manufactured and so it was quite a task to find one appropriate to the first act of "Another Language," which is supposed to represent a room in the worst of decorative taste.

Mr. Beckhard told of combing New York to find such a chandelier and how, at last, one had been located in a junk shop—a very paragon of ugliness, he said.

Then his hosts, who had seemed not very appreciative of the anecdote, took him in to dinner!

Yeah, you guessed it. There in the dining-room hung the chandelier he had been talking about!

It is one of life's unfortunate mysteries why dining-room floors will not open up and swallow one at times like these, but somehow they never do!

As more and more complete precincts in New York City turn in their totals, it becomes increasingly a certainty that in a season filled with financial pitfalls for too many actors—and managers, too—Daniel Frohman, with characteristic generosity, will donate the entire proceeds of his lecture tour to the Actors' Fund of America, of which he has so long been president.

Mr. Frohman, the greatest humanitarian the contemporary theater can boast, will come to Washington next Wednesday, November 16, to deliver his lecture on "Reminiscences of the Stage and Its Stars" in Constitution Hall at 8:15 o'clock that evening.

His talk is more than a mere outline of the theater's history in America during the past 50 years, for he relates with kindly humor and appreciative affection many personal and professional anecdotes that take his hearers behind the scenes, where the public is so rarely admitted.

With late returns still being tabulated, it nevertheless now seems a surety that the Universal Weekly, after a two-year suspension, will make its appearance regularly hereafter.

The first issue of the once popular house organ of the Laemmles, father and son, under its new lease of life, bears date of November 5 and is a prosperous looking 32-page brochure of interesting content and excellent printing and craftsmanship.

The resumption of publication may be interpreted as Universal's tacit proclamation that at Universal City, at least, "happy days are here again" and that the powers that be have reached a belated, if not reluctant, conclusion that their enterprise will not be gobbled up in a frenzy for "chain" and "consolidated" managements, as was feared a couple of years ago, when they scurried into the cyclone cellar and pulled it in after them!

Through the combined facilities of the Associated Press, the United Press, the cider press and the press of election night duties, our statisticians are now able to announce with some finality that, according to final count, Mrs. Phil Lampkin, wife of the musical director at Loew's Fox Theater, departed Washington last Monday evening for a protracted sojourn in distant parts.

Mrs. Lampkin, known to the stage as Marge La Marr, and formerly half of the vaudeville team of Sinclair & La Marr—or maybe it was the other way 'round—proceeded to New York for a brief visit, whence she will journey to Los Angeles to the home of her brother, with a screen test at one of the major motion picture studios the principal objective of her visit. A large group of Washington friends will be cheering her on to victory from the sidelines.

Roosevelt, Hoover, Thomas, Hoover, Roosevelt, Upshaw, Thomas, Roosevelt, Wagner, Hoover, Roosevelt, Hoover, Roosevelt, and so on, ad lib, as this goes down to the copy-chopper.

Hooray for our side! I knew it all along!

COURT FIGHT OPENS ON 3-CENT CAR FARE

Traction Companies Claim They Lose Money on Cut-Rate Basis.

A test of the legality of the 3-cent fare for school children was begun yesterday in the District Supreme Court when attorneys representing the Washington Rapid Transit Co., the Capital Traction Co. and the Washington Railway & Electric Co. launched their battle to have the court abrogate the order of the Public Utilities Commission, which put the fare in operation.

Practically the entire court day was spent placing valuation figures in the record, and in laying the ground work for a showing that the 3-cent fare in causing the companies financial losses.

The transit companies succeeded in showing that the cost of hauling the average passenger was 7 cents, and that there was a direct loss sustained on each reduced fare passenger.

The commission's order for the school fare reduction was issued 20 months ago. It was based upon an act of Congress that directed the commission to take such action. One of the contentions of the companies is that the act is unconstitutional both in its nature and because it has entailed a financial loss. This, they contended, makes the order confiscatory.

Attorneys representing the companies are: G. Thomas Dunlop, S. R. Bowen, John S. Barbour and George P. Hoover. Richmond B. Keech, people's counsel; William A. Roberts, assistant corporation counsel, and C. F. Dolle, of the National Catholic Welfare Council, are representing the commission. The trial, which will last several days, is being held before Justice Peyton Gordon.

Japanese Detachment Feared Slain by Rebels

Tokyo (Wednesday), Nov. 9 (A.P.).—Rengo News Agency dispatches from Tsitsihar, Manchuria, said today it was feared a Japanese detachment of 59 infantrymen had been wiped out by guerrilla fighters north of Tsitsihar.

The detachment has been missing for eleven days. It was dispatched to the relief of the Taianchen garrison on October 28, near the Chinese-controlled branch railway out of Tsitsihar, where Chinese irregulars were reported to have attacked. Eight bodies were recovered. Dispatches said it was feared the remainder of the troops had encountered an overwhelming enemy.

Loan Injunction Action Dismissed

Californians Lose Efforts to Keep R. F. C. From Making Award.

Justice Oscar R. Luhring in District Supreme Court yesterday dismissed injunction proceedings brought by a group of Californians to prevent the Reconstruction Finance Corporation from lending $40,000,000 to the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California.

The loan, which has been approved by the corporation, was made on the strength of a finding by the corporation that the project was "self liquidating." It is a part of a $220,000,000 bond issue authorized in California to develop and augment the water supply system of the southern portion of the State.

Through Assistant United States Attorneys John W. Fihelly and John J. Wilson, the Finance Corporation, in its answer to the request for an injunction, charged that the persons filing the petition were not sufficiently interested to maintain the suit and that, furthermore, the corporation, having exercised its discretionary powers, could not be controlled by the courts.

Taxi Driver Reports Holdup.

David P. Morton, 27, 1646 U street southeast, reported to police last night that he was held up and robbed of $5.50 by two colored men. He said the men entered his cab at Seventh and N streets northwest, and told him to drive to an address on Westminster street. When he arrived one of them stuck a gun in his back and took his money.

Two Men Attack Taxicab Driver

Is Knocked Unconscious When He Reveals Lack of Cash to Pair.

Police were looking last night for two men who slugged Theodore Bancroft, 26, 2605 Twelfth street northeast, a taxicab driver, and left him unconscious on Sixteenth street near Blagden avenue northwest.

Bancroft said the men entered his cab at Fourteenth and Decatur streets northwest and told him to drive to 6300 Twenty-ninth street northwest. While driving along Blagden avenue in Rock Creek Park they stopped him and asked to be driven back to Sixteenth street. When they turned on Sixteenth street, he said, one of the men asked him if he had any money. He answered that he "didn't have a cent."

He was struck with what is believed to have been a blackjack, and was unconscious for several minutes.

2 Alban Towers Tenants Robbed

Radio, Clothing and $14 Are Included in Loot; Doors Jimmied.

Two tenants in the Alban Towers apartments, at 3400 Massachusetts avenue northwest, reported to police yesterday that burglars had entered their apartments during the day.

William J. Weber reported about $100 in cash and $14 worth of clothes were taken from his apartment, which also was jimmied.

Army Officer's Home Ransacked.

Capt. R. G. Jenks, of the United States Army, reported to police yesterday that his home at 952 Massachusetts avenue northwest was ransacked Monday night, and linens and towels, valued at $15, were stolen. He said the burglar broke the glass in the front door.

ANNE ARUNDEL LEAD HELD BY ROOSEVELT

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 8.—Count of the ballots in Anne Arundel County is proceeding slowly and complete returns will not be available before early morning. The county will go heavily for Roosevelt, however, and also for Tydings for senator, and Gambrill for Congress, it is indicated.

In all but two or three voting precincts the early count showed Roosevelt leading by a ratio of two and a half to one and indications were that claims of Democratic leaders of a majority of 3,000 would be reached. The pluralities of Tydings and Gambrill probably will exceed that figure.

The county normally is Republican in national elections by a small margin. Four years ago, however, it went along on the Hoover wave and rolled up the record majority of more than 3,000 for the Republican candidate. Hoover also carried Annapolis four years ago by more than 300. The majority against him this time probably will be greater than that.

In the Fourth Ward of the city where the large proportion of the Negro vote is centered, Republican leaders apparently failed to arouse customary interest among the electorate and the vote polled in the two precincts there was light.

WEDNESDAY NOVEMBER 9, 1932 SPORTS

VANGUARD OF PROS TUNING GAMES AT KENWOOD

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

EIGHT years after Connie Mack discovered that the chances of developing a pennant contender from raw material were nil, if not niller, the Chicago White Sox are subscribing to the same theory.

After dismantling his famed champions of 1914, including the "$100,000 infield" of McInnis, Collins, Barry and Baker, Connie Mack was pained to see his teams finish in the cellar of the American League for seven consecutive years.

During that period, more minor leaguers, college stars and sandlotters came under the inspection of Mack than attached themselves to any other three clubs in the league. But the famed sage of the Athletics' dugout could not lift his club out of eighth place in all those years and then he decided on a different course.

Strand, Simmons Purchase Gave Start.

Mack's first move was to buy the highly-touted Paul Strand and Al Simmons from the Milwaukee Club. Then he paid $106,000 for Lefty Grove, then with the Orioles. He picked up Joe Boley for a mere $50,000, Max Bishop for something like the same figure from Baltimore, and George Earnshaw for a reputed price of $75,000. They brought the A's pennants in 1929, 1930 and 1931.

The White Sox now have decided to go into the market for their ball players. The late Charles Comiskey, senior, did buy Willis Kamm for $100,000 and Chalmers Cissell for $125,000, but they couldn't lift the Sox out of the doldrums. Charles Comiskey, junior, has decided on another course, to-wit: His purchase of Al Simmons, Jimmy Dykes and Mule Haas from the Mackmen.

The Simmons-Dykes-Haas deal is the largest straight cash deal that baseball has witnessed in a decade and attests the intensity of the desire of the White Sox to rebuild in a large way. It marks the cleavage from the old methods of attempting to develop minor leaguers.

Simmons Cost Nats Flag, Says Griffith.

Simmons, of course, is the particular reinforcements. Unpopular though he may be, his presence on any ball club is a welcome asset. Clark Griffith always claimed that Simmons cost the Nats the pennant single-handedly in 1930, when he hit home runs in the last inning of both games of a double-header on Decoration Day to restore the Athletics' morale for their pennant drive.

With the White Sox, Simmons should bolster an attack that has been woefully weak. In Philadelphia, he was said to have outlived his usefulness last season because of a mental attitude that interfered with his best baseball. Jealousy of Jimmy Foxx's home run and runs-batted-in record was cited as one reason; but, whatever the cause might have been, it was a fact that Simmons aroused the ire of even the mild-mannered Mack by indifferent play.

Running out ground balls was a job for his valet, some Philadelphia writers said of Simmons. His play in the field also lapsed last season and Mack was glad to release him when he got his price. But in new surroundings in Chicago, Simmons is likely to shine anew, and playing as he can, he may become the idol of South Side fandom.

Haas and Dykes will bolster two other weak spots in the White Sox line-up. In center field, Haas rates with Sammy West and Tom Oliver

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 8.—Naval Academy gridders will engage in little, if any hard scrimmaging, in preparation for the game with the University of Maryland in Baltimore Stadium Saturday. This announcement was made this afternoon by Head Coach Rip Miller when his charges resumed activities after a day of rest in view of the hard game with Columbia last Saturday.

Every man of the varsity squad was in togs and indulging in some form of work, with the exception of "Butch" Harbold, mainstay at center, and "Soupy" Campbell full back. Both are nursing minor hurts and were given an additional lay-off. Johnny Waybright, speed merchant and first string back, who has been bothered by a leg injury for nearly two weeks, rejoined the squad and was romping about, though taking things lightly. Otherwise all of the players are in fine fettle.

Defense of Old Line Plays Practiced

Again the squad worked out during a misty rain and on a heavy turf, so that they profited much from the opportunity of handling a wet ball, as there has not been a great deal of rain here this fall. The major portion of the practice was devoted to defensive work against Maryland's style of aerial attack, as observed by scouts. Miller is pretty well satisfied with the work of his forward wall, except possibly developing more coordination in offensive play. As to general defensive play, the men have measured up to scratch. This was amply demonstrated in the Columbia argument, as Lou Little's proteges made but scant progress in straight plays.

All of the big group of backs were given work in the defense against passes. The mentors are mindful of the fact that in Poppleman and Widmyer, Curly Byrd has developed a passing combination quite the equal of last year's pair, Chalmers and Pease, who were responsible for the lone touchdown that sent the Tars down to defeat. They also know that Widmyer is a speedy and shifty youngster. He performed here last year when the Maryland Freshmen clashed with the Navy Plebes, and he was the bulwark of the Freshmen attack. Hence the Tars will be well drilled to watch this youngster.

Feature at Latonia Captured by Skirl

Latonia, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Closing through the stretch with a fine burst of speed, C. V. Whitney's Skirl, a 5-year-old son of Broomstick and Pigeon Wing, took down first money in the Dixie Terminal Purse, feature of a typical off-day program here this afternoon.

Benny Creech's Portcodine, a 6-to-5 choice, staggered home in second place. Third money went to M. B. Cohen's Col. Hatfield.

Three 2-year-olds and three older horses accepted the issue in the Dixie Terminal, an affair for campaigners of all ages at 6 furlongs. The winner was second choice in the betting, paying $3.40 for $2.

CARD FIVE TRIUMPHS.

Washington Cardinals routed Old Ironsides on the basketball courts last night at the Central High gym, 26 to 10, with Beall, forward, leading the attack with 10 points. Donville, Ironsides forward, ran up 8 points.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

Best Colonial Team Ready Friday

By BOB CONSIDINE.

GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY has requested The Post, that spreader of unbiased information, to come to its aid and deny certain unwholesome innuendoes that have been creeping up out of the reclaimed wastes of Williamsburg, Va., to the effect that when William and Mary meets the Colonials Friday night at Griffith Stadium William and Mary won't have a bunch of regulars in the game because they are injured.

This, The Post has been asked to disseminate, is an age-old bit of craftiness often flung out by boards of football strategy in the hope that it might cause the enemy to allow its football lackies to grow fat and careless during the four days of practice preceding games.

But G. W. will not feed off these rumors that Halligan, Stewart, Slade, Worrell, Quirk and others of the sterling William and Mary first line-up are on the blink. In proof of this, it held one of the customary grueling workouts in ankle-deep mud yesterday at Griffith Stadium and began to work itself into a competitive lather whose head had not been approached since just before the Alabama game.

Best Colonial Team Available.

George Washington will put perhaps the strongest team in its history on the field Friday night, for it so happens that its more brittle stars all happen to be in good shape, for the time being. Johnny Fenlon, in better shape than at any time since the start of the season, will be back in the back field, working alongside of Nig McCarver, the ninth most potent scorer in the East, and Chris Doose, who returned to hard work yesterday and bowled over enough of the long-suffering third team blokes to show that he was back in form.

Incidentally ticket sales for this battle are exceeding any game played here this year, save the Alabama affair. The bulk of the present set of Colonials were freshmen when William and Mary hung a 53-13 trouncing on the then varsity outfit in 1929, and they are throbbing with good old-school spirit to do something about it.

Speaking of cripples, and alleged cripples, word has been received from Buckhannon, W. Va., grazing area for West Virginia Wesleyan gridmen, that a somewhat banged-up team will make the trip to Washington to play Georgetown next Saturday.

Among the players said to be languishing of varied ills are White, end; Blondin, guard, and Hall, Beveridge and Hull, backs. The Wesleyan line is causing Coach Cebe Ross almost as much trouble as Georgetown's line once caused Tommy Mills, and is now causing Jack Hagerty.

G. U.-Wesleyan Game Promising.

Georgetown has met Wesleyan thrice, 1928, 1929 and 1930. All three games were thrillers, and Saturday's promises to be in line with preceding years, for the teams are about evenly rated. West Virginia University beat Georgetown 19-0 and Wesleyan 14-0.

Maryland continued its work yesterday of tuning up for Navy, a game the Old Liners are tremendously keen to win. Saturday's tiff in Baltimore is one of those "rubber" things, the boys having split their last two games by 6-0 scores.

Maryland will have the services of several brittle regulars who were chipped badly in games of several weeks back and could not play against Vanderbilt. One is Earl Widmyer, whose great speed and the fact that he runs until he bumps into something, has been a marked disadvantage to him to date.

Oliver Gets C. U. Call Over McVean.

They have just about given up hope of getting Charley McVean back in old-time form at Catholic University. Charley is the brainiest quarter back in the lot and the best kicker, but tricky knees have kept him on and off the squad all season. So yesterday the coaches began concentrating on Tom Oliver.

Oliver can kick 'em high, wide and handsomely. C. U. will need a real kicker, not so much next Saturday against Providence, for only an act of Providence can force C. U. to lose that game, but the following Friday when the Cards meet up with Duquesne at Griffith Stadium—Duquesne and Silvo Zanielli, one of those 65-yard booters.

Scoville, Cue Champ, Wins in East Tourney

New York, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Kinrey Matsuyama, one of two New York representatives in the Eastern three-cushion billiard championships, the winner of which will compete for the world title at Chicago, today defeated William Greenwood, of Pittsburgh, 50-42, in 60 innings in title play. Frank Scoville, of Buffalo, the 1931 winner, hung up his second straight victory today, beating Greenwood, 50 to 36, in 49 innings.

Scoville's high run was 5; Greenwood's, 4. It was Greenwood's second defeat of the day.

BURL FIGHTS BRENON AT PORTNER'S

Bantams Travel 10 Rounds Monday in Feature Bout.

EDDIE BURL, battling bantamweight from Jacksonville, Fla., who fought such a sensational fight with Jimmy Mack, of Philadelphia, two weeks ago, will return to Portner's Arena in Alexandria Monday night to oppose Johnny Brenon, of Trenton, N. J., highly regarded in Eastern flatic circles, in the feature ten-round match on the weekly program.

Burl, a rugged 118-pounder, who shakes off licks from the toughest fighters, won an eight-rounder from Mack in what local experts have considered one of the best fights seen at the Alexandria arena in many a moon. Brenon, a topnotcher, is said to be a clever performer, and will come here with a fine record to his credit.

Matchmaker Frankie Mann has indicated that the winner of the Burl-Brenon bout may meet Mack, although Billy Landers has been hinted as a future opponent for Mack.

Brenon Claims Victory Over Koscis.

In the semiwindup of eight rounds, Matchmaker Mann has booked Frankie DeAngelo, District Italian scrapper, and Joe Fino, busy little 122-pound Filipino. DeAngelo fought two matches with Benny Schwartz after a lay-off from the ring, earning a draw in the first and losing the decision in the second encounter. Fino, from Jimmy Irwin's stable, is fresh from a successful campaign. Recently he won in Saginaw, Mich., before a capacity crowd.

A six-round bout will bring together Frankie Fullam, Catholic University sensation and former national A. A. U. middleweight champion, against Sammy Britt, Young Van's nemesis.

Gibich, Star Catcher, "Signed" for 5 Years At Dear Old Jackson

Detroit, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—The baseball team at dear old Jackson State Prison can look forward to a winning season next year if a capable catcher was all it needed. For, with the aid of Recorder's Judge Henry S. Sweeny, Nicholas Gibich, 18, who was good enough for try-outs with the St. Louis Cardinals and the Pittsburgh Pirates, has "signed" for from one to five years.

Gibich, who had pleaded guilty to burglary, said he had kept abreast of the athletic situation at Jackson Prison through a brother.

"So if I have to go to prison, send me to Jackson," he asked Judge Sweeny. "They need a catcher for their ball team up there."

So Jackson Prison it was.

Anderson Shifting Notre Dame Players

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Coach Heartly Anderson made more alterations in the Notre Dame football machinery today and vigorously expressed dissatisfaction with the way it operated Saturday.

Anderson's theme was defense against passes. He characterized Notre Dame's efforts in this respect against Kansas as being short of what he expects. John Robinson, a sophomore, was sent to center, with Tom (Kitty) Gorman being moved to the second team and Ben Alexander to the third eleven. Capt. Paul Host, demoted after the Pittsburgh defeat, returned to the regular line-up and John Tobin was tried at right half back.

BRITISH GOLF VET DIES.

St. John, New Brunswick, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—John White, one of the oldest active golfers in the British empire, died today at his home here. He would have been 91 in January. Only last week he had played golf, which he was credited with introducing in this city.

WESTERN IS 6-0 WINNER ON GRID

National Training Is Given First Defeat by High Eleven.

SCORING early in the first period, Western clung to its slim lead with the tenacity of a shipwrecked sailor clinging to a spar to gain a well deserved 6-0 victory over National Training School's smooth working grid machine yesterday. A small crowd saw the Training School take its first defeat from a public high school team.

Surprised by the potency of Western's drive, Training School did not recover its composure until late in the third quarter. Then it opened up with a furious assault of line plunges, intermingled with forward passes, to gain access to Western territory.

Kiski's 25-Yard Run Features

Kiski's 25-yard run featured the offensive which reached the 3-yard line. Here the visitors were penalized 5 yards for being off-side. On the next play Merryman's pass over the goal line was grounded, returning the ball to Western.

Reds Reynolds, chunky little Western half back, tallied the winning touchdown. Reynolds was substituted for Rohrbaugh after a pass from Corcoran to Groettum, good for about 25 yards, had brought the ball to the 10-yard line. Reynolds made the necessary distance in two tries.

A second period drive by the big Red eleven, which collapsed on the 12-yard line, also found Reynolds bearing the brunt of the burden.

Both of Pitt's Ends Boomed For All-Eastern Selections

By HENRY McLEMORE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8 (U.P.).—When the football experts sit down in a few weeks to name their all-Eastern teams, the little matter of which men to place on the ends of the No. 1 outfit is going to present a problem.

In past years the end question was no question at all. There usually was one or two outstanding flankmen. But the good year 1932 finds the East supplied with a bumper crop of wingmen, four or five of which are good enough for any man's first team.

Those experts who caught the Pittsburgh-Notre Dame act argue that you couldn't go wrong by sticking Skladany and Dailey, the Panthers' starting ends, on your team. This writer didn't see Pitt against the Irish, but he did see the Panthers and Army, and he agrees with all the rave notices about Skladany. Skladany caught two touchdowns against the Cadets and played a whale of a defensive game.

King, of Army, Performs Brilliantly

Skladany, however, was not the only man that did some powerful ending on the field that day. The Pitt man's performance was little more impressive than the job turned in by Dick King, of the Army, the lad who broke his leg in the Harvard game Saturday, and King's running mate, Kopcsak, was no slouch.

Army, it seems, always can be counted on for capable ends. Charley Born, who coaches that department of play for the Soldiers, must have a private supply of wingmen, for he seldom, if ever, misses throwing a pair of honeys out there on the field.

Fordham has a bear of an end in a kid named Nitka. If you don't believe it, ask any man on the St. Mary's team. The slippery footing had a great deal to do with the failure of St. Mary's spinner plays against Fordham, and so did Nitka. He was forever slipping through and smearing plays before they started.

Most of the talk about Columbia's undefeated football team centers about Quarter Back Ralph Montgomery, the slippery, swivel-hipped ball carrier. But great as Ralph is, he wouldn't be so hot were it not for a couple of ends, Matal and Lippoth. Matal is probably the finest money player in the East, being one of those boys who hit the heights when the going gets roughest.

It was Matal who snagged the pass

Armour and Horton Smith Tour Course in Practice For National Capital Open

Sarazen's Entry Also Expected for Play Starting Saturday.

By DAVE HERMAN.

TWO national golf stars, Tommy Armour and Horton Smith, their eyes cast on fist-prize money, strolled around the Kenwood course yesterday for their first practice rounds in preparation for the $2,500 National Capital open classic Saturday and Sunday.

The towering Smith, who arrived after a visit with his parents in the Ozarks of Springfield, Mo., played 27 holes, limbering up with a snappy nine-hole round in the morning, and engaging in an eighteen-hole match in the afternoon. Teaming with Walter MacCallum against Al Houghton and Maury Fitzgerald, Smith toured the layout in 69 strokes, 1 below par for the course. The home tutor, Al Houghton, also held his own, stepping around in 69.

Smith Powerful Off Tees.

Smith, smacking tremendous tee shots, playing on a rain-soaked course and in a drizzle most of the time, made the first nine in 33, and was three shots higher on the homeward voyage. He appeared in fine fettle, and said he was looking forward to the opening 18-hole round Saturday with the greatest of interest. Smith is registered out of the Glen Oaks Club, Chicago. The "Joplin Ghost," as he is best known by virtue of his sensational streak of victories in money tournaments a few years ago, stated he would play the course daily in order to prime himself for the championship.

Armour, former British, American, Canadian open and P. G. A. titleholder, who has shot rounds of 69, 63, 69 in as many days over his former course, Congressional, plodded around in 72, being 36 each way. He played with Parker Nolan against Billy Jones and Sandy Armour his brother, the latter two losing on the eighteenth hole.

Armour Shows Skill With Irons.

The "Black Scot," a World War hero, dropped a couple of birdies along the way and showed versatility with the use of his irons—a department of the game in which he is considered a master. His putter also worked well. On the eighteenth, his second shot lay to the left of the

Post's Chart Aid To Grid Fans In Contest

FOOTBALL fans competing in The Post's weekly selections contest are finding valuable information concerning the teams in the chart of comparative scores published in the sports pages each Monday.

Many of the winners have attributed much of their success to the knowledge gleaned about the teams from The Post's chart, which includes every major institution in the country, and entrants in this week's contest who are seeking tickets to the Catholic University-Duquesne game here next week are referred to last Monday's chart.

Another valuable aid in the selection of the winners in the weekly list of 12 games has been The Post's consensus of staff writers published each Friday morning, which is maintaining an average of .729.

The weekly contests are increasing in popularity weekly as is attested by the thousands of responses. The rules of the contests are simple. Merely predict the probable scores of the 12 games listed below and forward your entry to the Football Contest Editor of The Post before Friday at midnight. The result will be announced in Sunday morning's Post.

Should contestants tie in the number of winners selected, the victor will be decided on the basis of closest scores. Tickets to the Duquesne-C. U. game will go to the three leaders.

DARK SECRET REVELS IN MUD TO WIN PIMLICO FEATURE

Choice Leads Small Field From Start

Victory Second for Wheatley Stable in $5,000 Event.

By WALTER HAIGHT
(Post Staff Correspondent).

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, Nov. 8.—Dark Secret, winner of the Potomac Handicap at Havre de Grace, found a field to his liking and muddy track made to order, and led a group of five for a mile and a half here today to win The Bowie, $5,000 added, feature. It was the twenty-fourth running of the event which Mate captured last year. Evergold was second by a length and a half, with Canron third by another five lengths.

In the absence of Hank Mills, who is under suspension, Albert Robertson had the mount on the Wheatley Stable ace. But you or I or Aunt Kate would have probably done as well. Dark Secret felt that mud under his feet and needed only guiding for the rest of the trip.

Dark Secret Never Menaced

Aside from a mild bid by Canron as the field swung for the stretch and a futile rush by Evergold in the last quarter, Dark Secret was never threatened.

The Wheatley Stable, owned by Secretary of Treasury Ogden Mills and Mrs. H. C. Phipps, gained $3,950 by the victory. Dark Secret closed at even money and paid a $3.80 mutuel.

The Labrot entry of Happy Anne and Bally Bay ran one-two in the opener to hold Red Run to third. The entry turned in a good job, Bally Bay forcing the pace set by Red Run until the latter tired. At this point in the stretch run Bellizzi brought Happy Anne up to take the decision by a length and a half. Red Run was the favorite. The entry rewarded at $8.10 to win and $6.20 to place.

Everybody hopped on the Band Wagon in the second race and it was no contest. Gilbert rushed his mount out to a three-length lead turning away from the clubhouse and easily held French Knight safe. Band Wagon's margin was twelve lengths at the end. Third money went to Bushranger. They raced over the mile and 70 yards course in 1:47-1-5.

Solace Shows Return To Form

Solace came back to Maryland and a victory in the third race. Two apprentice jockeys hooked up in a stretch duel, and Calvert, aboard Solace, took the verdict from Black Patricia and Todd. The favorite, Prize Day, was third. Black Patricia led from the break until the closing sixteenth.

Up, claimed yesterday by J. N. Crofton, won today by three-quarters of a length over Rubio, with third money going to Dyak. With the exception of a sixteenth at the start, when Proteus was exhibiting his early speed, Up had the advantage.

Sunvir turned in another victory for Herbert Simpson, who claimed him this fall from Mrs. Hitt. This time Sunvir battled to a victory over Faylin and Alcman.

$15,000 Memorial Attracts Fine Field

Special to The Washington Post.

Bowie, Md., Nov. 8.—Albert C. Bostwick's Mate, fourth largest money winning thoroughbred in America, with more than $275,000 in purse money to his credit, is among the great list of nominees for the $15,000 James F. O'Hara and Gadsden D. Bryan Memorial Race, closing feature of the Southern Maryland Agricultural Association's meeting.

The Bryan-O'Hara memorial is being held in honor of those great sportsmen of that name, who built and operated this track. It will be contested over the mile and three-sixteenths route on Tuesday, November 29, closing date of the host organization's session as well as the date for the lowering of the 1932 Eastern turf season.

One can get an idea as to what America's most prominent owners think of the Bryan and O'Hara memorial by glancing over the official list of eligibles as released today by Race Secretary Joseph McLennan:

AT THE POST

with Bill Benniags

DEAR AL: PIMLICO RACE TRACK.

An election debate switched back to racing last night. The subject turned to which race horse was the nearest to human. One fellow came through with the information that Exterminator not only watched the starter to get a good break at the barrier, but also could tell when he reached the finish. The boys listened quietly to that. Finally one said, "Partner, that's nothing. There was a horse back around 1910 that was really intelligent. Why one night he got hold of the entries for the next day and found that he had No. 13 post position. The next morning, he scratched himself!" That, my good friend, is all for today.

FIRST RACE—ACCENT failed in top flight company but has performed well with better than these. Deserves a chance for this purse. STAR FAIRY'S last two races were beauts. May not like the going but is still the one to beat. LADY LEGEND was a trifle short last out.

SECOND RACE—BUTTER BEANS finds a track made to order for her and will muster enough speed to take care of these, I believe. PORTDEN has class but is inclined to be sore. Just made it in that victory at Laurel. GRAND PRINCE for the show. HAGERSTOWN has some chance.

THIRD RACE—OLD BALDY can not be knocked off the top here. Has off-track form that makes him superior. BURNING FEET has improved and will be the one to afford the battle, if any. FAIR IMAGE to show.

FOURTH RACE—TRED AVON is the natural choice here after beating Equipoise. She can run with these or pull up to these off that race. GLASTONBURY is the wake-up horse. MR. SPONGE for the rest.

FIFTH RACE—LADINO did everything asked the other day in a sprint and should go well here. RACCOON and SWATTER for the place battle.

SIXTH RACE—GENERAL COURT may provide the upset here. Has good trials as a recommendation. BRANDON ROSE and NEGOPOLI appear best of the others.

HAPPY ANNE, at home in the going, raced reserved while her stablemate forced a stiff pace, came around the leaders when ready and finishing fast, came away gradually. BALLY BAY, hard ridden to disgrace of RED RUN, continued with good courage at the end. RED RUN, hard urged to hold a brief early lead, weakened after five furlongs. FAIR BILLY closed stoutly from a slow beginning. MISS TEENIE could not threaten in any stage. RUSTIC LADY went well, placed early, but tired. FLORA CANTER could never reach a contending position. CHISEL appeared sore going to the post.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BAND WAGON, $8.10, $4.10, $2.80; FRENCH KNIGHT, $4.70, $3.60; BUSHRANGER, $2.20.

BAND WAGON, showing a fondness for the going, moved into a safe lead after a half mile and increased his margin without effort thereafter. FRENCH KNIGHT, following closest to the winner, was held perfectly safe. BUSHRANGER went forwardly placed and had no excuses. JUDGE JUDY, sluggish in the early racing, passed tiring horses at the end. LORD RAGLAN was unable to hold a forward position when put to a drive. FAIR CREST had no mishaps. UNION was never serious.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SOLACE, $15.60, $8.30, $4.40; BLACK PATRICIA, $5.90, $3.70; PRIZE DAY, $2.50.

SOLACE, partial to the footing and kept close to the pace, gained stoutly when put to a drive, disposed of BLACK PATRICIA and came out slowly under punishment. BLACK PATRICIA, also partial to the going, went to the front at the first turn, saved ground whenever possible, and held on resolutely when challenged. PRIZE DAY, forwardly placed throughout the running, finished with good energy. CHATTY could not improve his position in the final half mile. RUANE, a distant trailer for the first five furlongs, worked his way up on the inside thereafter in a game rush. BUBOLA held a good position early but weakened. COLOSSAL was never a strong factor. WILLIAM T. pulled up lame.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—UP, $7.90, $4.80, $2.90; RUBIO, $5.60, $3.70; DYAK, $3.30.

UP, outpaced for the opening furlongs, wore PROTEUS down to open up a winning lead when entering the home stretch, was forced to a drive in the final furlong and outstayed RUBIO. Latter, squeezed back directly after the start, was taken to the outside of run when crossed by DYAK, slow to start, but finished with good stride, secured racing room on the inside during the stretch run and closed strongly. PENNATE, ridden hard, showed a good effort. MINTON was unable to reach contention. PROTEUS was done after a half mile. SANS COIN was not good enough. KAI-FINN stopped.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-half miles. Purse, $5,000 added; the Bowie Handicap. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gates. Won handily; place, easily. Went to post at 3:14½. Off at 3:16. Winner, Wheatley Stable's br. c. (3), by Flying Ebony—Silenced. Trained by G. Fitzsimmons. Value to winner, $3,950; second, $1,000; third, $500; fourth, $250. Time, 0:25, 0:49 2-5, 1:15, 1:41 4-5, 2:09, 1:37 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DARK SECRET, $3.80, $2.90, $2.40; EVERGOLD, $4.10, $3.10; CANRON, $3.10.

DARK SECRET, revelling in the going, opened up a winning lead early and racing in the better footing throughout was never seriously threatened. EVERGOLD, retarded for the first quarter mile, responded to hand urging and finished courageously. CANRON, steadied in the early stages, made a mild bid when covering a mile and one-quarter, but tired steadily when kept in the deeper footing. MAGYAR, urged throughout, could not reach the leaders. REHOBOTH quit after a mile.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:47½. Off at 3:48. Winner, H. E. Simpson's blk. g. (6), by Sun Briar—Olga Virginia. Trained by P. B. Cassatt. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24, 0:49 2-5, 1:15 2-5, 1:42 3-5, 1:49 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SUNVIR, $5.90, $3.80, $2.70; FAYLIN, $11.40, $6.10; ALCMAN, $3.70.

SUNVIR, rated close to the pacemakers, moved up fast to take command midway of the far turn, and held sway thereafter. FAYLIN, stoutly ridden from the start, had a lot taken out of her racing PRINCESS ZELDA into defeat and could not withstand the winner. ALCMAN improved his position steadily and finished with good energy. SYRIAC made up ground in the final half mile. GARLIC closed with good speed. LA SALLE was kept in repeated trouble. FAIR SUN weakened after six furlongs. PRINCESS ZELDA was unable to get clear and was raced into defeat.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. The Patapco. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 4:19. Off at 4:20½. Winner, Superior Stable's b. g. (5), by Bud Lerner—Delphine. Trained by C. E. Dale. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:49 2-5, 1:15, 1:42 2-5, 1:47 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HYMAN, $19.60, $8.80, $7.00; PENCADER, $4.60, $3.30; MARSE ROBERT, $8.10.

HYMAN, hurried into contention, wore the leaders down when entering the home stretch, was stoutly ridden and outstayed PENCADER. Latter slipped through on the inside when reaching the back stretch, reached the leaders but was taken extremely wide during the stretch run. MARSE ROBERT improved his position on the outside all the way and closed stoutly. BRIGHT BIRD was used up racing with MERIDIAN QUEEN and tired after gaining command. SWATTER had no excuses. RENAISSANCE weakened from his early efforts. CAMP PRINCE raced disgracefully and can do better. A LA CARTE quit.

"Shipwreck" Kelly Ill; To Quit Football

New York, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—John (Shipwreck) Kelly, former University of Kentucky football star, who was with the New York Professional Giants this season, has been forced by illness to quit the gridiron.

Attendants at the Roosevelt Hospital, where Kelly was taken several days ago, said his condition was not serious. Pending a more definite diagnosis of his case today, however, denial was made that he was suffering from heart trouble.

Grimes, Cub Hurler, Fears Appendicitis

St. Louis, Nov. 7 (A.P.).—Burleigh Grimes, pitcher for the Chicago Cubs last season, will enter a St. Louis hospital for examination this week, it was learned tonight, and possibly be operated upon for removal of his appendix.

Grimes, who had troubles with his appendix during the 1931 season but was able later to pitch for the St. Louis Cardinals in the world series against the Philadelphia Athletics, decided to go to a hospital today after conferring with a doctor.

STEELE BACK IN FEATURE ON MAT

Tackles Vassell Tomorrow Night at Auditorium.

NEW administration or not, the lumbering rasslers of Mons. J. Turner will do their piecework at the Auditorium tomorrow night, headed by a match between Ray Steele, one of the best rasslers in the country, and George Vassell, a bulbous-nosed gent, who can take it.

The semiwindup, a much more evenly matched affair, mates up Gino Garibaldi and Herman Hickman in what promises to be a bloody affair, for both boys are roughies and are members of that exclusive wrestling fraternity which does little or no punch-pulling.

There appears to be a Steele-Garibaldi match in the air, if these two come through in good style tomorrow night. If so, such a match promises to rank with the best ever promoted here.

Ernie Dusek-Coleman Top Prelims

Tomorrow night's preliminary boys are the same old durable crew that trade nose-tweaks nightly throughout the land. The best should be the Ernie Dusek-Abe Coleman bout. Dusek, a younger brother of Rudy, is only 23, but already shows the signs of a grizzled old timer, except that he is a willing mixer. Coleman is rated much higher in other cities than in the District. He recently rassled Jim Londos in Baltimore in one of those title matches.

Two sluggers, Lou Plummer and Joe Cox, paddle each other in the fourth bout of the evening, and the show probably will be opened by a match between mountainous Pat McKay and George McLeod.

Warm Springs Eyes Voting; 98 of 100 Go for Roosevelt

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Warm Springs, which nestles in the hills of Meriwether County in southwest Georgia, watched and waited with great interest today for balloting affecting Franklin D. Roosevelt, the man who made it famous.

At no time since he was named Governor of New York has the town watched an election with such keen interest.

For it is here that Roosevelt has come for ten years for rest. It is here the Warms Springs Foundation was organized under his leadership to afford supervised treatment to infantile paralysis sufferers.

The village of Warm Springs itself cheered each election bulletin favorable to Roosevelt, but this was insignificant to the enthusiasm with which they were received at the Warm Springs Foundation.

Scores of patients and others crowded around the radio in the lobby of the inn. A score board had been erected so they could readily follow the electoral votes of each State.

Among those voting was Morgan Williams, who said he had not cast a vote in a presidential election since Theodore Roosevelt was a candidate.

YESTERDAY'S ANSWER.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

RADIO programs will return to normal today, with the exception of two periods to be devoted to yesterday's election. For nearly two months air schedules have been upset by political broadcasts. Listeners will welcome the regular entertainment features again.

A complete post-election review for the benefit of those who were lucky enough to sleep through the ballot count will be given over WJSV from 9 to 9:30 o'clock this morning by Frederic William Wile and Edwin C. Hill.

Leaders of the campaign forces of the two major parties will discuss the election during the National Radio Forum (WRC, 9:30 p. m.). Everett Sanders, chairman of the Republican National Committee, and James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, will be the speakers.

THE subject of a third chain's buying or leasing WMAL may be discussed by Milton R. Baker, manager of the station, with the promoters of the new network while he is in New York this week.

Estimating that about $5,000,000 worth of radio time had been devoted to the presidential campaign, Senator Clarence C. Dill, of Washington, co-author of the radio act of 1927, praised the "fair" attitude of both major broadcasting companies and independent stations. He spoke over a N. B. C. network from Spokane, Wash.

Senator Dill revealed that the cost of a Nation-wide hook-up over the N. B. C. red network of 58 stations was $12,250 an hour; over the blue network of 55 stations, $10,110 an hour, and over the Columbia chain of 91 stations, $15,600 an hour. He said that the three major parties spent approximately $1,250,000 on national hook-ups alone.

"Amos 'n' Andy" and "The Goldbergs" will go on a five-nights-weekly schedule. The Saturday broadcasts will be omitted, beginning this week. There is some speculation as to the reason for cutting down the number of broadcasts. It may be necessary to reduce expenses, the sponsor may feel that the acts are beginning to lose their popularity, or it may be because Saturday night is not the most desirable night on the air.

BECAUSE of the illness of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, former Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin will address the annual Lord Mayor's Banquet in London, which will be heard over WRC and WJSV at 4:45 o'clock this afternoon. It is expected that Baldwin will talk about Great Britain's foreign affairs, as well as empire matters.

"Sourwood Mountain," a group of lonesome tunes from the mountains of Harlan County, Ky., will be sung over the air by the Westminster Choir (WRC, 2:30 p. m.).

A DRAMATIZATION of scenes from "Man Against Woman," Jack Holt's new starring vehicle, opening at RKO-Keith's Theater on Friday, will be presented by the Northern Dramatic Company (WOL, 8 o'clock tonight).

The new laws and rules of contract bridge will be explained by Ely Culbertson in a talk over the WJZ network at 6:15 o'clock tonight.

WJSV is experimenting with a hillbilly period, following a number of requests from listeners to the old WJSV for this type of music. Uncle Tom and His Hired Help were on last week and may be heard again shortly if there is enough demand for this type of entertainment to warrant their return. Listeners are asked to tell WJSV whether they care for this type of entertainment.

Toledo Man to Speak On Christian Science

A lecture on "Christian Science: the Road of Spiritual Achievement" will be delivered Friday evening at 8 o'clock in Memorial Continental Hall, Seventeenth and D streets northwest, by Paul A. Harsch, C. S. B., of Toledo, Ohio.

Mr. Harsch is a member of the board of lectureship of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist of Boston, Mass. He will be introduced by Clarke F. Hunn, first reader of the Third Church, under the auspices of which this lecture is given. The lecture is free and the public is invited.

WHEAT AT WINNIPEG CUTS PART OF GAINS

Winnipeg, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Burdened with heavy hedging sales despite a moderate sale of wheat to Europe, wheat today relinquished half of yesterday's brilliant advance and dropped to lower levels today. When the last quotation was marked up on the board wheat rested at levels ¾c to 1⅛c a bushel lower than yesterday's close.

The heavy sales proved to be a boomerang from Monday's wild splurge. Farmers had parted with more wheat than was at first believed and elevator companies today were forced to hedge at prices lower than those at which they had purchased in the country yesterday.

The volume of trade was good and the market was particularly active in the late trade.

England Converts Last of War Loans

London, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—The lists were opened today for the final conversion loan totaling about £1,028,000,000 which the government is floating to pay off the remainder of the unconverted war loans and 5 per cent treasury bonds.

The sale opened at three-eighths of 1 per cent discount, subscriptions totaling less than was anticipated. After a few hours, however, the quotation rallied to one-eighth discount. Applicants for amounts up to £5,000 received full allotments. Others obtained about 75 per cent of their applications.

This loan completes conversion of the British long-term credit to practically a 3 per cent basis and is the fourth government operation of the kind since spring. Conversion operation since July have saved the country £38,000,000 annual interest on the national debt.

British Columbia To Refine Copper

Ore Formerly Taken to Tacoma Will Be Given Empire Preference.

Victoria, B. C., Nov. 8 (A.P.).—The provincial government announced today the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co. was ready to open its copper plant at Trail to refine the metal now taken to Tacoma, Wash., in order to procure the British preference of 4 cents a pound provided by the new Anglo-Canadian trade treaty.

The government outlined new arrangements for putting British Columbia copper into the British market under the new empire trade preferences. These preferences are not applicable to Canadian copper refined at Tacoma.

It was explained that the company is merely awaiting a request for the use of its plant and that the question of shipping costs to Great Britain by way of Trail at a sufficiently low cost to compete with copper from other places will depend on Trail charge rates and freight costs.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Nov. 8 (A.P.)—Business was supended throughout the financial district today, security and commodity markets and the banks being closed for the election. Leading markets in other centers likewise suspended because of the presidential balloting.

Many in Wall street recalled the animation and excitement that pervaded the financial district on presidential election nights before the advent of radio. It was the custom of most brokers to keep their offices open so that clients might receive the election returns over the financial news tickers and the brokers' own private wires. Election night now, however, finds Wall street closed down tight.

Speyer & Co., and J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation, have been informed by the trustees for the Kingdom of Bulgaria 7½ per cent stabilization loan of 1928 that they have received from the Bulgarian government sufficient funds in foreign exchange to provide for a 50 per cent payment on the interest coupon due November 15, next. The trustees are arranging with the paying agents for the loan to pay 50 per cent of the coupon. In order to preserve the bondholders' claim to the balance, the dollar coupons will be marked 50 per cent paid and returned to the bondholder.

Freight loadings on its own lines and loaded cars received from connections for October set for the Reading Railway a new high mark for any month of the year to date at 123,632 cars, it was announced today. Baltimore, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—The National Union Mortgage Co., of this city, today advanced a plan to the holders of its 5½ per cent gold bonds to pay 25 per cent of the face amount in cash and extend the remainder for a period of five years.

The organization, a holding company owning the bonds of eight separate mortgage companies, which are deposited as collateral for its own bonds, has maturing during the next current year and the following 365-day period $1,031,500 of bonds which can not be paid in full.

Cotton Goods More Active.

New York, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Cotton goods were more active today and print cloths rose ⅛ cent. Buyers are purchasing more finished goods and some are taking on spring lines. Burlaps opened very quietly. Moderate orders came in for overcoatings and women's coatings for immediate shipment. Rayon orders were of moderate volume for January delivery.

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday authorized the New York Central Railroad Co. to acquire and operate the Chicago, Attica & Southern Railroad Co. The commission said the properties of the road, located in the Chicago area, have a $165,000 value.

Mexican Peso Is Higher.

Mexico City, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—The value of the Mexican peso closed higher yesterday than at any time in the past six months, the quotation being 32.5 on the dollar. Increased Mexican exports and higher prices for products was given as the reason for the steady valuation increase over the past ten days.

Utilities Auction Delayed.

New York, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—The auction of Middle West Utilities common stock held by New York banks as collateral loans to Insull Utility Investment, Inc., and the Corporation Securities Co. of Chicago has been postponed until December 5, it was announced today.

Visible Supply of Grain.

New York, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—The visible supply of American grain shows the following changes in bushels: Wheat decreased 2,430,000, corn increased 524,000, oats decreased 94,000, rye decreased 100,000, barley increased 119,000.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London—Trading was more cheerful on the stock exchange despite the decline in gilt-edged securities caused by profittaking. Industrials, speculative issues, goldmining shares and oils were actively firm. Transatlantic issues started well on favorable overnight Wall street reports, but slackened somewhat later pending the outcome of the election. The closing was steady.

Paris—After an opening influenced favorably by better foreign news, prices on the bourse retrograded. Rentes were irregular while international issues were dealt in hesitantly. The market closed irregular.

Berlin—With traders more hopeful toward a subsiding of the internal political activity here, prices moved upward, causing a shortage of offerings. The closing was strong.

HEAVY U. S. ISSUES OF BONDS FORECAST

Bankers See Time Nearing for Government to Take Care of Maturities.

New York, Nov. 8 (A.P.)—While the market for long-term bonds has not yet improved sufficiently to justify the United States Treasury in attempting huge Government flotations at this time, some Wall street bankers hold the recent improvement in interest rates presages a possible return of suitable market conditions.

In recent years, the strong demand by banks for short-term Government securities, with highly liquid qualifications, has stimulated the offerings by the Treasury of short-term bills, certificates and notes. Nevertheless, interest rates have dwindled to unprofitable levels on that type of investment, and once the national budget is balanced or some assurance is given that early balancing can be contemplated, some bankers contend that long-term financing by the Government may again be in order.

Member banks of the Federal Reserve System in 101 leading American cities have been heavy buyers of short-term Treasury securities in the past year. As of October 26, their holdings aggregated $5,298,000,000, an increase of $1,165,000,000, or 28 per cent over their total holdings of $4,133,000,000 the year previous.

A review of prospective maturities shows that $2,084,288,000 of Treasury notes, certificates and bills will have to be refunded before next March 4.

Before the end of the fiscal year, on June 30, 1933, the Government will be obliged to take care of $3,669,-823,000 maturing notes, certificates and bills.

Santa Fe Loadings Decline 1,160 Cars

Week's Drop in Freight Is Watched by Street; Loss Studied.

New York, Nov. 8 (A.P.).—Santa Fe's report of freight movement for the week ended November 5 showed a volume of 27,163 cars, against 28,323 a week previously, indicating a continuance of the normal slackening of freight movement expected at this time.

Wall street is chiefly interested in how severe this seasonal contraction will be. Last year loadings dropped from an autumn peak for the week ended October 1 of about 780,000 cars for all Class 1 roads to a low in the final week of the year of about 440,000 cars.

Loadings evidently reached a seasonal peak this year in the week ended October 15, with a total of about 650,000 cars.

Winnipeg's Wheat Prices Advancing

Quotations for all four contracts for future deliveries reached their highest points at noon, where they held, with November showing a gain of 3¼ cents, at 49½; December 3½, at 49¼; May 3¼, at 53¼ and July 3⅜, at 54⅝.

Short covering, which developed rapidly after weakness in the Canadian dollar in New York, pushed prices hurriedly upward to show an improvement of more than 2 cents above the low levels established during the drastic break of October 25. Heavy buying to cover sales at Chicago was evident, though export trade was almost at a standstill.

Greenbrier Gridmen Beat Staunton, 13-0

Greenbrier received the opening kick-off and marched down the field 80 yards for its first touchdown. Coleman carried the ball over. Staunton made its lone gesture in a scoring direction in the third period, but Greenbrier rallied and held for downs with the ball on its own 10-yard line.

Ellis went over for the second touchdown after a 35-yard march in the final minute of play.

CATHEDRAL STAINED GLASS LOST IN FIRE

Valuable Formulae Saved as $15,000 Blaze Sweeps Philadelphia Studio.

Nearly $15,000 worth of stained glass, made by hand for windows of Washington Cathedral, was destroyed in a studio fire Monday night at Philadelphia, it was learned yesterday.

The glass was stored in the studio of Lawrence B. Saint, who has made stained-glass windows for the Cathedral since 1928.

A safe containing the formulae developed by Mr. Saint with which he has been able to manufacture glass which approximates that of the medieval cathedrals of Europe was saved.

The formulas represented the life work of Mr. Saint and were based on twelfth-century methods, by which he could nearly duplicate the famed stained glass of the past.

The loss included three completed panels for a large window which was to be in the north transept of the cathedral. Just two weeks ago Mr. Saint delivered the completed rose window of the north transept.

Mr. Saint had spent twenty years studying the methods of the medieval glass makers and from this research had developed his formulae. He has completed the three windows of the north choir aisle and four of the south choir aisle.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

THE command of the United States Army during the World War, as is always the case, was vested in the chief of staff in Washington. During the World War Gen. Pershing was in command only of the American Expeditionary Forces, and in this command he was under orders of the chief of staff. Four generals were successive chiefs during the World War, and Pershing served under each of them. They were Hugh L. Scott, Tasker H. Bliss, John Biddle and Peyton C. March.

Playing against the University of Mexico in 1931, Billy Boehm, University of Tulsa half back, handled the ball three times in three minutes and scored three touchdowns. He took a pass for a 30-yard run to the first touchdown. He intercepted a pass for his second touchdown and returned a punt for his third. Boehm was in the game five minutes, elapsed time, or three minutes' playing time.

One of the easiest jobs should be that of the traffic officer in front of the House of Parliament in the tiny kingdom of Tonga, an English protectorate. The native officer has to direct, on an average, one horse-drawn cart per hour past the governmental seat. Another easy job would be cleaning guns for the Tonga standing army—its soldiers carry wooden guns.

THRONG BRAVES RAIN TO GET RETURNS AT POST ON U.S. VOTING

2,000 Learn of Roosevelt's Victory From Bulletins Flashed on Screen.

The tide of the election of Franklin Delano Roosevelt to the Presidency was visibly portrayed last night to 2,000 voteless Washingtonians, who congregated in front of The Post as up-to-the-minute returns were relayed to them from all sections of the country, as gathered by 50,000 employes of the Associated Press.

A drizzling rain that fell for hours didn't deter the watchers as The Post supplied the latest returns, interspersed with cartoons, showing the trend of the balloting, and kept the spectators in good humor with Micky Mouse comedies and short moving pictures.

The opinion of the crowd seemed to be decidedly Rooseveltian, because every time the picture of the President-elect was flashed on the screen, there was a salvo of cheers, and prolonged hand-clapping. The same reception was given his running mate, John Nance Garner.

Some Loyal to Hoover.

There was a liberal sprinkling of Hoover supporters, who shouted loudly and long whenever the Chief Executive showed a display of strength in the balloting.

When his picture was projected on the screen there was cheering on the part of the loyal ones, who refused to desert the President even though he was seemingly deluged under the Democratic landslide.

So that the crowd would be unhampered, the Police Department prohibited vehicular traffic on E street and Pennsylvania avenue, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets. Only street cars moved in this area. Traffic was routed so as not to interfere with the crowd.

Latest Counts Given.

As the returns came in from the United Press and Associated Press wires, they were immediately relayed to the screen. Political interpreters gave rapid-fire comments on the significance of the counts.

Shortly before 11 o'clock, when it seemed apparent that Gov. Roosevelt was the victor, the crowd began to dwindle.

As soon as the result was evident, The Post released its giant presses and the paper, carrying results—complete to the hour—was sent to the street.

Crowd of 2,000 Attends Post's Election Party

Louis Johrden, Post Staff Photographer.

Part of the crowd of 2,000 who attended The Post election party in front of The Post Building last night. From 7 o'clock until 11 o'clock the guests of the newspaper watched returns from all sections of the country as they were flashed on the screen. A side-screen, on which sound pictures, including "Mickey Mouse" comedies, were projected, kept the throng in good humor. Post political interpreters supplemented bulletins with rapid-fire comments on the election trends. The throng stayed until The Post announced that the election of Gov. Roosevelt was conclusive.

DISTRICT EMPLOYES SET $112,869 GOAL IN CHEST CAMPAIGN

1932 Mark About $11,000 Under Last Year; Gifts to Be Voluntary.

A goal of $112,869 was set for the Community Chest campaign among District employes at a meeting of all department heads yesterday afternoon in the boardroom of the District Building. This is somewhat less than $11,000 under the collections last year. The goal last year, however, was $124,005, whereas the collections amounted to $123,221.

No suggestions were made as to what each District employe is expected to contribute, but Elwood Street, director of the Community Chest, and Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, who is in charge of the drive in the District Government, explained that employes would be encouraged to set aside so many cents a day for the Chest.

Plans for Payment.

Collections will not be made from the salaries of employes as last year, but department heads will collect contributions, unless the contributor prefers to pay directly to the Chest, and will make monthly reports.

This method, it was explained, has an advantage over payments by check, in that it will save the Chest time and money.

Newbold Noyes Speaks.

Newbold Noyes, chairman of the 1932 campaign, spoke in behalf of the Chest and set forth the idea of each contributor putting aside a few cents each day for the sake of starving children and adults in the District. He insisted, however, that all contributions be strictly voluntary. Many employes, he said, could make generous contributions merely by cutting down on expenditures for cigarettes, candy and the like.

The drive will be carried on at the same time as the general campaign, from November 14 to 24.

McKeever, Realty Dealer, Bankrupt

Paper, Filed in Baltimore, Shows Liabilities of $666,000.

Orders have been signed adjudicating Robert L. McKeever, prominent in local real estate circles, a bankrupt and referring the case to Holden S. Felton, referee, according to Baltimore dispatches yesterday, which stated Mr. McKeever had filed a petition requesting the action in United States District Court there.

The petition listed assets totaling $155.88 and liabilities of approximately $666,000. Mr. McKeever said last night that more than 90 per cent of the liabilities are secured by mortgages and practically all of them are accommodation paper. The action was taken in Maryland, Mr. McKeever residing on Brookeville pike near Silver Spring.

Mr. McKeever has been engaged in the real estate business for approximately fifteen years, first as a salesman, and in 1920, with associates, established a well-known firm which sold many homes and negotiated numerous important transactions. The members of this firm established their own offices more than a year ago.

Hunting Will Be Barred At Lorton and Occoquan

Hunting will not be permitted on the reservation surrounding the District penal institutions at Lorton and Occoquan this season, Capt. M. M. Barnard, superintendent, announced yesterday. In previous years many District and Virginia hunters, including numerous Washington policemen, have hunted there on the opening day for quail, November 15.

Capt. Barnard explained that he had just put out 100 pheasants on the reservation and that he wanted them left alone to breed for a year before they are hunted.

Hospital Aid Is Freed In Patient's Fatal Leap

Paul R. Pope, an attendant at St. Elizabeths Hospital, yesterday was exonerated in the death of George D. Webster, an inmate of the institution, who jumped from an eleventh-story window of an apartment hotel at Dupont Circle October 21. The grand jury turned in an ignoramus.

Pope had gone into the building with Webster, who wished to inspect an apartment. Seizing an opportunity, Webster, who was 49 years old, opened a window and threw himself out. Pope had been held for the grand jury after a coroner's jury investigated the death.

Four Masons Hurt At Georgetown U.

Four stone masons were injured seriously at Georgetown University yesterday when a scaffold, on which they were working with a heavy stone, broke and they fell about 15 feet to the ground.

They were treated at Georgetown Hospital for cuts, bruises and possible internal injuries. The men were working on the new science building of the university.

John Amoros, 26, of 29 Olive street northwest, suffered lacerations and bruises and a serious injury to his right foot; Albert Conte, 27, 475 Maryland avenue northeast, possible fracture of the skull and other injuries; Louis Coliqui, 34, 629 C street southwest, fractured ribs, cuts and bruises; Paul Emma, 30, 748 Sixth street northwest, mashed foot and other severe hurts.

CAPITAL FOLLOWS RETURNS CLOSELY

Post Gives Results at Keith's and Indicates Trend by Aerial Beacon.

The citizens of the Capital watched keenly the trend of the voting by other citizens who gave to Washington a new neighbor—Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

The returns of the balloting were relayed to Washingtonians in night clubs, fraternal houses, theaters, business houses, in front of newspaper offices, and those who stayed at home were kept informed through the radio.

Atop the Wardman Park Hotel was an aerial beacon which swept through the sky, colored red for Roosevelt and green for Hoover, relaying the news in symbol to those in transit. This special convenience was arranged by The Washington Post.

In the R. K. O.-Keith's theater, a special election night show was featured by late dispatches, relayed from the editorial rooms of The Post and announced from the stage.

The beacon on the Wardman Park Hotel was kept moving until 10:13 p. m., when it was almost conclusive that Gov. Roosevelt had been elected. Then the beam was fixed perpendicularly, indicating the election of the Democratic candidate.

Violent Deaths of Two Men Called Suicides by Coroner

Workmen Try to Rescue Salesman Who Plunges Into Anacostia River; Second Victim, Well Dressed, Hangs Self on Tree Near Taft Bridge.

Suicide certificates were issued last night by Coroner Joseph D. Rogers in the deaths yesterday of an unidentified man found hanging from the limb of a tree in Rock Creek Park near Taft Bridge, and of William Calvin Rock, 28, 546 Fourteenth street southeast, who plunged from the Pennsylvania Avenue Bridge and was drowned in Anacostia River.

The body of Rock was recovered an hour after a passerby summoned the Fire Rescue Squad. Workmen who were painting the bridge threw the drowning man part of their scaffold, but he disappeared without making any attempt to save himself.

Hundreds of persons crowded the bridge to watch police attempts at rescue, and it became necessary to clear the crowds, due to the unsafe condition of the span rails. Rock, a salesman for Harrison Co., commission merchants, was identified by his employer. He had left the office of the company before noon, apparently in good spirits.

A colored woman crossing the Taft Bridge discovered the body of a man suspended from a tree. She called several workmen, who notified police. The man was well dressed, but had no papers on his person identifying him. His coat and hat were neatly arranged beneath the tree.

THREE TRADE BODIES FAVOR FERRY PLANS

Littlepage Points Out That Many Would Get Work on Undertaking.

The support of the trade bodies of Washington was lent yesterday to the application of the Chesapeake Beach Railway Co. for funds from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to proceed with ferry and construction work which would connect the Capital with the Eastern Shore.

The request for funds, the first from which the advantage would accrue to the Capital, was supported by Thomas P. Littlepage, president of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, at a hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Indorsed by Three Bodies.

He stressed the fact that many recommendations for applications to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation had been made, but that this was the only one which was indorsed by three Washington trade bodies—the Chamber, the Board of Trade and the Merchants and Manufacturers Association. In this statement he was seconded by Mark Lansburgh, president of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association.

"The advantages of the undertaking to Washington," Mr. Littlepage said, "are without question. Hundreds of thousands of food products are now shipped by round-about methods to Washington and thousands of Washingtonians are prevented from visiting the Eastern Shore because of inadequate transportation service.

Would Meet Need, He Says.

"The undertaking of the proposed extension of the service offered by the Chesapeake Beach Railway Co. would meet this need; be mutually advantageous to the Eastern Shore and Washington and would be a powerful factor in the reduction of living cost.

"No commission can know in advance with absolute certainty the desirability of any such recommendation. All conditions, however, point to the desirability of the proposed undertaking. From the construction viewpoint the time is ideal because the necessary materials can be secured at minimum cost, thus insuring a low capital cost. From the labor viewpoint the undertaking now of the work is of vital importance because of the large amount of employment which would be afforded at the time when the need for reducing unemployment is greatest."

TRAFFIC TOLL

A minute lost may save the life and property of a fellow citizen. Drive cautiously in heavy traffic, on slippery streets and on the open road, as a duty to yourself and others.

Up to date there have been 37 more deaths and 204 more injuries than during the corresponding period of 1931. The total number of accidents has decreased by 437. The figures are:

	1931	1932
Deaths	68	105
Injuries	3,073	3,277
Accidents	7,209	6,772

Constitution Is Slated To Leave Here Dec. 1

The United States frigate Constitution will probably end its stay at the Navy Yard here about December 1, the Navy Department announced yesterday. It will go first to the Norfolk, Va., Navy Yard where it will be fitted for its long cruise to the Pacific Coast.

Theft From Benefactor Punished by Six Months

Because he stole $26 from a man who had befriended him by giving him a position when he was jobless and hungry, Archie Boyd yesterday was sent to jail for six months by Judge Isaac R. Hitt, in Police Court.

Charles H. Gordon, who took Boyd in and gave him work, said he had trusted him with $26 to make a payment on an automobile. Instead of doing that Boyd fled to Canada, where he was arrested.

Night Watchman Freed In Slaying of Youth, 16

Raymond W. Koerner, a night watchman at a lumber yard at 4301 Sheriff road northeast, yesterday was cleared by the grand jury of a charge of fatally shooting Mitchell Botts, colored, 16 years old, about a month ago. Koerner told police the boy was prowling about the yard late at night. The boy's body was not found until the day following the shooting, the watchman being unaware he had hit any one.

Jury Exonerates Lawyer in Death

Capt. Calhoun Freed After Shipping Board Aid Dies in Crash.

The District grand jury yesterday exonerated Capt. C. C. Calhoun, attorney, of a charge of homicide when it returned an "ignoramus" to Chief Justice A. A. Wheat in District Supreme Court. The charge arose when Capt. Calhoun was held for the grand jury by a coroner's jury that investigated the death of Henry C. Littlefield.

Littlefield was killed when his automobile and one operated by Calhoun collided at Tenth street and Pennsylvania avenue on October 13. Calhoun, on his way to the laying of the corner stone of the new Supreme Court Building, was a short distance in front of President Hoover's car, and he claimed policemen urged him to speed up to make way for the President.

$250 Fur Piece and $70 Stolen.

Mrs. Lydia E. Thompkins, 1616 Q street northwest, last night reported the theft of a fur piece worth $250 and $70 in cash from her apartment. She said she believed a duplicate key was used to gain entrance.

Woman Bequeathed $20,000 Trust Fund

A $20,000 trust fund is created for Miss Julia McFarland, 1820 Kalorama road northwest, under the will of Mrs. Florence E. Roundey, who died in New York October 6, according to Associated Press dispatches.

Jury Indicts Woman In Slaying of Husband

Man Indicted in Death Of Another in Crash

Norman T. Hutchinson, colored, was indicted on a charge of manslaughter by the grand jury yesterday. He was the driver of an automobile which collided with a machine operated by Lyle Scholten, of the Naval Air Station, at North Capitol and K streets, killing Catherine Caldwell, 23, of 2407 First street northwest, a passenger in Scholten's car.

A colored girl, Hallie Williams, 28, also was killed in the crash and six others were injured.

Italo-American Group Honors Retiring Envoy

Yesterday a representation of Italo-American students of Catholic University of Washington called at the Italian Embassy to pay their respects to retiring Ambassador Nobile Giacomo de Martino.

The ambassador was given an artistic souvenir. Father Christopher spoke on behalf of the students, praising the ambassador for his achievements in strengthening the bonds between the two countries.

Man Who Lost Limb Gets $32,500 Verdict

A verdict for $32,500 was awarded Milton F. Colburn, 1434 W street southeast, by a jury in the court of Justice Jesse C. Adkins yesterday because Colburn suffered the loss of his left leg when a truck owned by Harry B. Sweeney ran over him in 1925.

The truck, it was claimed, crossed on the wrong side of the street and struck Colburn as he was alighting from a street car on Nichols avenue southeast. The law firm of Simon, Koenigsberger, Young & Brez represented Colburn.

Zoo Acquires Rare Specimens of Toads

Creatures Were Captured in Jungles of Guiana.

A shipment of 50 of the rare Surinam toads, found only in the wilds of British Guiana, will arrive here soon to be added to the National Zoological Park, Dr. William A. Mann, curator, announced.

Dr. Mann sought vainly for many weeks in the Guiana jungle to corral specimens of the Surinam toads. Thought quite successful in capturing many other desired specimens, he did not get any of the toads.
